Axis Reported About to Give Turks Ultimatum

Greeks Capture Another Hill In Albania, Push Ahead 6 Miles; 30,000 Italians Surrounded Near Koritza, Belgrade Reports

The War Today

The Fire Spreads

By the United Press

Vichy, France, Nov. 4.—Unofficial quarters tonight hinted Turkey may receive an ultimatum within a few hours demanding that she accept Axis occupation.

Diplomatic dispatches reaching Vichy indicated early extension of military operations to the whole of the Aegean region.

In this connection it was pointed out that the Turks had called up for duty reserves between 20 and 40 years of age.

Axis occupation of Turkey, it was explained, could only be accomplished through Greece and Bulgaria. Since the Greeks are reported holding back the Italians, it was anticipated here that Bulgaria would agree to passage of Axis troops through its territory in return for restoration of an outlet on the Aegean. Bulgaria has been deprived of such an outlet since 1918.

Balkan Entente Dead

It was pointed out that if Turkey is presented an ultimatum by the Axis, Russia will be face to face with a difficult military and diplomatic situation. For despite certain relaxation of the Russo-Turkish alliance last year when Turkey moved closer to France and Britain, there has been no doubt that the Soviet is pledged to help Turkey defend itself against aggression.

The newspaper Paris Soir reported tonight, however, that Russo-German economic talks are progressing favorably in Moscow and that a high Russian personality, perhaps Premier Molotoff, will go to Berlin soon.

Ljubljana, Yugoslavia (Tuesday), Nov. 5.—An unconfirmed report here late last night announced that the Germans have been moving at least two divisions, in sealed trains, southward through Bulgaria from Rumania for the past two days.

According to this report the troops are headed for Petric, on the Bulgaro-Greek frontier, in answer to an appeal from Premier Mussolini for assistance owing to the break in his forces on the northern front.

The report said that the bulk of the German troops had crossed the Danube between Somovit and Nikpol and proceeded southward, partly

They Won't Come Back

By the Associated Press

Athens (Tuesday), Nov. 5.—The capture of part of 4,000 Italian troops sent into Greece to cut communications was reported early today as Greece's kilted shock troops announced they had seized another hill in Albania and taken a quantity of Italian war material.

The Greek defenders who are carrying the war to Italian-conquered Albania were said to have thrust forward 10 kilometers (more than 6 miles) in bitter bayonet charges to seize the heights of Mount Morava in Albania, commanding the road to the Italian base of Koritza.

[Belgrade dispatches said Greece's northern army has surrounded 30,000 Italians in the vicinity of Koritza, and is pounding the town with heavy artillery from newly won positions on surrounding peaks.

Retake River Position

[Matching this achievement, Greek sources reported, the southern army had occupied the south bank of the Kalamas River, from which the Greeks were forced during the first days of the 8-day-old Italian invasion.

[Besides the heights dominating Koritza, the Greeks asserted their forces had occupied Biglista, Albanian town 3 miles from the frontier.

[A Greek general staff announcement received in Belgrade said 30 Italian tanks were captured during an unsuccessful Italian counteroffensive yesterday.

Italians Rush Help

[Frontier reports quoted by the United Press from Belgrade said that a Greek motorcycle corps, by swift dashes and ingenious strategy, had cut the communications of an Italian division (15,000 men) trying to fight its way out of the Korca sector between the Biglista-Korca road and Lake Prespa, north and east of Koritza.

[The reports indicated that the division was the one which in the first four days of the war smashed across the Greek frontier and almost reached Florina. It was outflanked by the Greeks, now reported stronger on this front than at any time since the war started.

[The Italians rushed up reinforcements, including mountain guns, for

(Pictures On Page 19.)

By the Associated Press

Salt Lake City, Nov. 4.—A United Air Lines plane, lost in a blinding snowstorm, crashed into a mountainside today, killing its 10 occupants.

S. V. Hall, U. A. L. vice president in charge of Western operations, said "it looks very much as if the accident was caused by a failure of the range or radio beam.

"Our trip No. 11 reported that the range had irregularities at 5:36 a. m." (Mountain Standard Time.)

Hall said the range was reported "O. K." at 4:24 a. m., but that it evidently failed about the time the San Francisco-to-Salt Lake plane, piloted by Capt. Howard Fey, of Oakland, approached Salt Lake.

No Forewarning

All indications were that the pilots had no forewarning of their danger. The passengers' safety belts apparently were not fastened.

Although the wheels were torn away, evidence was that the landing gear was retracted at the time of the accident

The airplane's chronometer, only instrument to show any kind of a reading after the accident, was stopped at 3:30. This was believed to establish definitely the time of the crash, with the probability that it was set for Pacific Standard Time.

Headed for Airport

The transport radioed about 4:40 a. m. that it was 8,000 feet over Layton, 25 miles north of Salt Lake City, and was heading for the airport here.

Further efforts to contact the plane were futile.

Shortly before noon, Pilot William Haws sighted the wreckage from the air.

The wreckage was strewn over a wide area about 3 miles northeast of Centerville, 10 miles north of Salt Lake City. The Wasatch Mountains rise to 7,000 feet in that area.

Ground parties struggled through foot-deep snow and tangled underbrush to reach the scene.

Nose of Plane Broken Off

Bodies of the passengers and stewardess were piled in a jumble at the front of the cabin.

The nose of the plane, which struck in a grove of scrub oak 250 feet from the top of a ridge and bounced or skidded another 40 feet up the 25-degree slope, was broken away in the crash.

Both Fey and Thomas E. Sandegren, first officer, still strapped to their seats, were thrown 20 feet in front of the wreck.

Both motors were torn from their nacelles and lay forward of the wings.

Just forward of the passenger's entrance the main body of the plane was snapped nearly in two.

The dead, not identified immediately, were listed by the airline as:

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Muir, Detroit.
Joe Cassero, Oakland, Calif.
E. A. Dybdahl, Fergus Falls, Minn.
George L. Stevenson, Sacramento, Calif.
Mr. and Mrs. L. Wilson, Maywood, Ill.

Record Vote Expected Today; Willkie Asks 'United People'; Roosevelt Awaits 'Vindication'

(Willkie's Text, Page 10.)

By William B. Ardery
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York (Tuesday), Nov. 5.—Carrying his Presidential campaign into the election day itself, Wendell L. Willkie told a post-midnight radio audience today that the "free way of life in America" can be preserved "only if we become a united people."

"For seven and one-half years we have had discord," said the Republican Presidential nominee "and we are having discord at a time when we see that it was discord and weaknesses from within that caused European democracies to fall before totalitarianism."

Willkie described his campaign as the "most sacred cause in all the world." He asked Americans "to carry this crusade to the point where we can begin to save America and preserve the liberties of this great beloved country of ours."

Warns of "Apathy"

His brief talk, delivered in a theater studio off Times Square, during a coast-to-coast roundup broadcast by Republican notables, was his final pre-election statement and his third broadcast in 9 hours.

Earlier Monday evening, Willkie made a radio speech calling on all citizens to vote and declaring "apathy undermines liberty."

"The greatest danger to democracy is that the citizens, who have the final authority, may become careless about it," he said.

In mid-afternoon Monday, the nominee broadcast a talk to American women telling them that if elected President he would try "to keep this country out of foreign wars, and to keep it at peace."

"I promise, as I have promised before, not to send your husbands and sons and brothers to death on a European battlefield," he added.

Thanks Democrats

In his mid-evening talk, he said that it was a "false and dangerous" argument to contend that the two-term tradition should be violated "on the grounds that we are faced with an international crisis."

"To thrust aside that tradition is to assume that only one man has the ability to take us through recurring emergencies," Willkie continued. "That means that democracy must surrender in the face of trouble."

The nominee asked his listeners not to vote "the way someone tells you to vote" and added: "Don't let

Chaircar Guides Are Pushing One—To California

Maybe they didn't have enough of it all summer, but anyway, three young World's Fair guides passed through Washington yesterday en route to California on foot—pushing one of the two-seater "rubberneck" chairs.

Fred Berg and Homer Shahk, of Los Angeles, and William Barry, of New York, all 21, stopped in at the District Building to greet Commissioner Hazen. Thus far, they said, the trek has been easier than pushing the chair around the fair grounds.

Two of them take turns riding while the third pushes. They average about 4 miles an hour "and get to ride some."

The youths said they planned to volunteer for military service after reaching the West Coast.

'Bucky' Harris To Lead Nats in '41

Stanley Raymond (Bucky) Harris yesterday signed a one-year contract to manage the Washington Nationals during 1941, ending rumors that he would take a similar position with the Cleveland Indians.

It was indicated that the former "boy wonder" who led the Nats to their first American League pennant in 1924 was given a salary increase.

President Visits His Neighbors For 'Last Time' As a Candidate

By Douglas B. Cornell
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 4.—To a nation living in "the sun light and star light of peace," President Roosevelt asserted tonight that the right of the people to choose their own officers of government provides for them "the most powerful safeguard of our democracy."

He spoke in an election eve broadcast from his country home, after declaring in a statement that he awaited the verdict of the electorate tomorrow "in full confidence of vindication of the principles and policies on which we have fought the campaign.

"After the ballots are counted," Mr. Roosevelt told the country in his broadcast, "the United States of America will still be united."

There is every indication, he said, that the number of votes cast tomorrow will be by far the greatest in American history.

"That is the proof—if proof be needed—of the vitality of our democracy," he asserted.

Talks in Poughkeepsie

The obligation of the people to their country does not end with the casting of votes, he added, as "every one of us has a continuing responsibility for the Government which we choose."

Democracy, the President said, is not "just a word, to be shouted at political rallies and then put back into the dictionary after election day."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke from the study of his home overlooking the Hudson River.

Earlier in the evening, before a crowd gathered on the busiest street of nearby Poughkeepsie, the Chief Executive made his final public appearance before the election and said:

"To you the men and women of my home county, I speak for the last time here on Market Street on the eve of an election."

It was the last of a series of talks made during the day to his Hudson Valley "neighbors," whom he had visited on a 90-mile "sentimental journey" by motor.

In all his campaign Mr. Roosevelt has not uttered publicly the name of his Republican opponent, Wendell L. Willkie.

Republicans Parade

Two hours before he spoke in Poughkeepsie, Republicans staged a parade for Willkie.

Tomorrow, at 12:15 p. m., Mr. Roosevelt will drive up to the old Town Hall in Hyde Park village, tell the election clerk his name and occupation—usually it's "farmer"—and cast his own ballot behind the curtains of a voting booth.

In the same white frame building will be cast the votes of Mrs. Roosevelt, the President's 86-year-old mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, and his personal secretary, Miss Marguerite Le Hand.

In his tour of the mid-Hudson valley during the afternoon, the Election Eve Statements . . .

ROOSEVELT

On the eve of the election, I desire to extend heartfelt thanks to the men and women everywhere who have shown their confidence in the Administration by working for the election of the Democratic candidates . . .

As the campaign closes I have a deepened conviction that the principles for which we are fighting transcend partisanship. They involve the principles of true Americanism and the democratic way of life. To all who have labored to advance those principles by working in behalf of the Democratic candidates, I return heartfelt thanks.

I await the verdict of the electorate tomorrow in full confidence of vindication of the principles and policies on which we have fought the campaign.

WILLKIE

During the last several weeks our cause has moved irresistibly toward victory. Millions upon millions of citizens, who have heard the arguments on both sides, have joined our side. They have joined us because they see that we alone can assure the principles of democracy, create opportunity and preserve freedom.

The news coming to us tonight is that, even now, the surge of that tide continues with accelerated power. News of our victory comes pouring in. It comes by telephone, by telegraph, and by letter. It tells us that the people are determined that tomorrow they will make democracy endure in our land.

Election Gives U. S. Employes Part Holiday

Hundreds to Vote In Home Communities Across District Line

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt's order that Government employes get sufficient time to vote will mean part holidays for hundreds of Washington workers, a checkup showed yesterday.

His order gave most of the election day breaks to Federal employes working in Washington who live in nearby Maryland and Virginia. About a third of the employes here live in communities across the District line.

Office orders sent out in most Government agencies yesterday specified that employes would get "sufficient time," but suggested that a 2-hour to 3½-hour limit was sufficient.

Average time given for voting was about the same as that granted employes who registered for selective service training three weeks ago.

In the top Government offices it was learned, only four of the nine Cabinet officers will take advantage of the "sufficient time"

Both Parties Drive to Get House Control

432 Seats at Stake; G. O. P. Predicts It Will Get Majority

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Though the Presidential show has been stealing the spotlight, almost equally significant is the battle that ended last night for control of the House.

A real possibility arose that the Presidency and Congress may be in different political hands, which would be a situation that has not existed since President Hoover's 1931-32 regime.

If Wendell Willkie, Republican nominee, wins the big race, it is considered probable that he will carry a Republican majority into the House along with him. But no

Worker Is Killed On First Day At D. C. Armory

Death paid off Homer B. Porter, 40, yesterday for his first day's work as an ironworker on the new District Armory at Nineteenth and B Streets Southeast.

Police said Porter, working 90 feet above the street, was passing tools to a workman above when he caught a temporary steel crossbeam for support. The beam gave way, striking him across the forehead and toppling him to the concrete below. He was the third man killed on the project.

Porter went to work on the armory yesterday, coming here from a job in Alexandria. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Marion Porter, of 432 Tenth Street Northeast, and a daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Gray Kelly, of Ashland, Ky.

Marathon Speaker Passes 55th Hour

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Nov. 4 (AP).—Edward Devlin passed the fifty-fifth hour of a projected 66-hour speech for President Roosevelt at 7:15 p. m. today, confident he can talk until 6 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The 19-year-old University of Alabama student, who began his marathon speech at 12:15 p. m. Saturday, said he decided to make the speech supporting Roosevelt because Democratic campaign workers "were becoming too confident." He plans to talk until polls open in Atlantic City, N. J., his home.

Third Term or No

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

America goes to the polls today in an unpredictable battle of ballots to resolve for the first time the third term question and name the occupant of the White House for the next four years.

With an election eve talk by the President from Hyde Park and an early morning last appeal from Wendell Willkie, the final blasts of campaign oratory died away, and the case was turned over to the judges.

Unprecedented registration led to predictions of a turnout of 50,000,000 voters, 5,000,000 more than cast their ballots in 1936.

However, unfavorable weather forecasts for such key States as New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin threatened to cut this total.

Should Know by Midnight

By midnight tonight, the Nation should have some indication of the winner unless today's balloting follows the close pattern of the Wilson-Hughes contest of 1916.

In that election, with which today's outlook has been widely compared, the conclusive results were not known for 48 hours.

At stake in today's record invasion of the polls is not only the Presidency and the third-term tradition but Democratic control of the House.

Thirty-five Senate seats, not enough seriously to affect Democratic control, will go on the block and 33 governors' chairs.

G. O. P. Hopes for Majority

But from the 432 House seats tossed into the lottery, Republicans were hoping to salvage enough either to whittle down the present Democratic majority of 259 or wrest an actual majority of their own.

The majority of reliable polls left the outcome in doubt, and political reporters for the most part were less certain of the verdict than they have been in any contest for a quarter of a century.

Doubtful factors untapped in the polls, such as the war issue, conscription, the third-term tradition,

Mrs. Cutting Killed as Horse Falls During Warrenton Hunt

Special Dispatch to The Post

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 4.—Mary Converse Cutting, socially prominent Warrentonian, was killed today when her champion horse fell on her during the Warrenton Hunt. Her mount, Irish Buckle, died of a heart attack, examination disclosed, while clearing a fence near Rixeyville, and crushed Mrs. Cutting as he fell. Mrs. Cutting died before she could be taken to a hospital.

An expert equestrienne, Mrs. Cutting rode Irish Buckle to win the Warrenton point-to-point race in 1938. She was the owner of several horses and rode daily.

Her husband, George Cutting, is the secretary-treasurer of the Virginia Gold Cup, manager of the Aberdeen-Angus Association, manager of the North Wales Club, and trustee of the Alexander-Hagner estate. The Cuttings came to Warrenton from Colorado about five years ago.

Besides being prominent in hunt country social groups, Mrs. Cutting was the head of the Children's Home of Fauquier County, and had taken an active part in the affairs of the Red Cross, the Tuberculosis Home of Fauquier County and other organizations.

Mrs. Cutting was a member of a well-known Boston, Mass., family. Besides her husband, she is survived by five children, Martha, John, a student at Randles School here, Dorothy, George, jr., and Elizabeth. She was in her late thirties.

Also surviving are Mrs. Cuttings' mother, Mrs Mary P. Converse, of Denver; one sister, Mrs. John Butler, of Chicago, and three brothers.

Race to the Polls

First Town in U. S. Votes Willkie 24, Roosevelt 7

Sharon, N. H. (Tuesday), Nov. 5 (AP).—Racing to be the first in the Nation to cast its ballots in the Presidential election, this traditionally Republican town in the Monadnock region of southern New Hampshire announced at 12:12 a. m. today a vote of 24 for Wendell Willkie to 7 for President Roosevelt.

In 1936, Sharon voted 13 to 3 in favor of Alf Landon over the President, and in 1932 the count was 11 for Herbert Hoover to 1 for Mr. Roosevelt.

Exactly one minute past midnight the voters started balloting in the 175-year-old colonial red brick school house on the pine-covered slopes of Temple Mountain—just 4 miles from Peterboro, inspiration of Thornton Wilder's play, "Our Town."

By candle light and kerosene lamp, the 28 voters—three others voted by absentee ballot—marked their crosses. A State trooper had been recruited for duty at the door since the town has neither a policeman nor a constable.

In orderly fashion the 12 women an 16 men—some in their "Sunday best," others wearing aprons and overalls—formed two lines. Charles N. Wilson, the town's oldest resident, stood at the head of one line. To get there he walked 2½ miles, after hur[illegible] chores on his fam.

"I'm not the least bit ... drawled. "'cause I got up a little late in the morning, 6:30 instead of 4:30 as I usually do."

As Town Moderator George C. Keeler raised an arm, the voters hurried into the seven polling booths—six more than usual. Just 11 minutes later, Keeler announced the vote.

Before the polls opened, a typical old New England supper—chicken pie, coffee, rolls, doughnuts and cheese—was served by the Monadnock Region Association, by train and partly by road, to the railhead outside the former town, then moving through Sofia to the frontier.

Turks Mass on Bulgarian Border

Budapest, Nov. 4 (INS).—Concentration of great numbers of Turkish troops along the Thracian frontier, facing Bulgaria, was reported tonight in dispatches from Istanbul and Ankara.

At the same time, reports from Sofia asserted that the Bulgarian press sharply attacked Turkish newspapers for threatening Turkish intervention in the event Bulgaria entered the Italo-Greek conflict.

The Bulgarian papers laid great stress on assertions that Bulgaria never had given up her claims to Grecian Macedonia, including the seaport of Salonika, regarded as the military key to southeastern Europe.

Bullitt, Biddle, Kennedy Draw Fire of Nazis

By the United Press

Berlin, Nov. 4.—The influential newspaper, Boersen Zeitung, today attacked three ranking American ambassadors as "evil spirits" who helped foment the war and were trying to prevent the establishment of a "new order" in Europe by the Axis powers.

The ambassadors named by the paper's diplomatic writer in a front-pagearticle were Joseph P. Kennedy, William C. Bullitt and Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, envoys, respectively, to Great Britain, France and the exiled Polish government. All thre are now in the United States.

The article referred to an interview with Georges Bonnet, former French finance minister, which appeared in the Marseilles newspaper Le Journal. It said:

"These men and their names, then belong to the 'most authoritative personalities' who promised Bonnet the assistance of America in order to encourage France to enter the war.

Bonnet Didn't Believe Them

"Bonnet did not believe them, but Daladier, Reynaud and others who then precipitated France into misfortune, did believe them. Those are the 'most important foreign influences' mentioned by the French press in commenting on the Bonnet interview.

"These evil spirits were not taught by events and have not lost their importance meanwhile. They make election speeches. Admittedly today they swear solemnly with their right hand that they have no war-like intentions. What they do with their left hand, however, is another question.

"Just as Kenned described Munich as 'gaining time,' so he speaks today of England's 'courageous struggle which gives us time to prepare.'

Would Mean Ruin for England

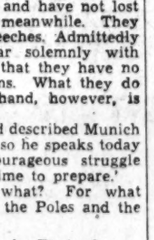
"Bonnet is quite right when he says the American people want peace. They would welcome a Franco-German understanding as a decisive factor in the general understanding of all European peoples . . . Extension of the war can only bring the peoples of Europe, particularly England, to the edge of downfall, just as the promised 'assistance' and encouragement to senseless 'resistance against all and everything' brought France to downfall.

"The promised assistance would at best turn England into a heap of ruin. Helpers in this war have become mere grave diggers."

Welles Denies Secret Pacts

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—Undersecretary of State Sumner Wells tonight asserted that "contemptible charges that this Administration has entered into dangerous secret commitments with foreign governments" had been made and that "the men who make these charges are men who are willing to play politics with the safety of our country."



WELLES

"There have never been, in the history of our political campaigns, more contemptible and more unpatriotic charges made," he said, "than the charges fabricated by the opponents of the President that this Administration has entered into dangerous secret commitments with foreign governments; that the President is forcing militaristic policies upon us; that he is driving this Nation along the road which leads to war."

Welles said such charges were untrue and "deliberately designed to drive fear and confusion into the hearts and minds of our people," and asserted:

"Of one thing we can be sure," he continued. "Those who are responsible for this war, when they made their plans for world conquest, took fully into account the period of our own Presidential elections. They are desperately hoping that these elections may result in a change of national policy, disunity in our national life, or at the very least, months of confusion and uncertainty on our part due to a change of Administration."

a counterattack.]

Fighting flared all up and down the 100-mile Albanian border, but the most intense struggles were declared to be at the two ends, around Mount Morava, on the north, and in the vicinity of the Kalamas River, on the south.

The Greeks counter-attacked the Italian invaders north of the Kalmas River yesterday after withstanding an Italian tank charge.

An Italian counter-attack against the Evzones in the northeast sector was said to have been repulsed, and then the Evzones made their own drive up the slopes of Mount Morava with the aid of hand grenades and bared steel.

The Greek shock troops advancing into Albania claimed capture of many prisoners and much war material.

Seize Supplies

Advices from the front said that the Greeks had seized supplies thrown from the air by Italian planes in an attempt to relieve Fascist soldiers sent into Greece to disrupt communications.

The number of prisoners taken there was not disclosed but front advices said the surrender of the remaining force is pending.

Munitions and guns also were captured.

The Greek high command communique reported that a trench mortar, machine guns and material had been taken at various points of the front.

Nearer the coast, on the Epnirus front where the Italians were said to have made their only important gains in eight days of conflict, the Greeks claimed they were holding their strongly-fortified positions against one Fascist thrust after another.

Aerial Bombardments

The Italians preceded their land attacks with 15 aerial bombardments against border positions while other planes flew across Greece to blast the port of Salonika, causing civilian casualties. On both the active fighting fronts Greek and Italian heavy artillery duelled ceaselessly.

[Italian reinforcements are moving into the front line along the northern Greek border, where the Greeks are holding firmly. Snowfalls have put additional obstacles before the Italians trying to negotiate the steep mountain passes, Belgrade dispatches said.

Bomb Albanian Town

[Meanwhile, British and Greek planes were reported to have bombed heavily the Albanian town of Agryrocastro and Italian position west of Ioannina.]

The high command said the enemy had bombed repeatedly many towns and villages in Greece but that "our aviation successfully bombed and machine-gunned concentrations of tanks and troops at different localities."

The Greeks said five Italian planes were shot down during the day while one Greek plane failed to return.

Reports from Salonika said the Italians raided that important Aegean port city twice during the day and three Italian planes were shot down. It was said one fell in pieces in the city.

A Greek communique said Italian planes bombed Piraeus, Volos and Kastoria and other towns and villages, and charged that all raids were directed against the civilian population.

One plane which raided Piraeus displayed Greek markings, the communique charged.

One Italian plane struck at Athens, but was hotly pursued by Greek and British pursuit ships.

Alarms also sounded in Patras but no bombs were dropped.

Assault Beaten Off

Djevdjelija, Yugoslavia, on the Greek frontier, Nov. 4.—A heavy Italian assault in the Epirus district of northern Greece in an attempt to retain ground lost in a recent Greek counter-attack has been beaten off completely, Greek sources on the Yugoslav frontier declared tonight.

These advices said the Italians failed to recapture any position the Greeks had wrested from the Fascist invaders.

Two Italian planes were reported shot down in the Epirus sector and a third was downed south of Djevdjelija.

Italian Planes Bomb, Machine-Gun Greek Troops in Villages

By the Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 4.—Italian warplanes bombed and machine-gunned Greek troop concentrations, batteries and trenches while the Fascist legions continued their advance on all fronts, a Stefani, Italian news agency, correspondent reported tonight from the Albanian frontier.

The brief report to the official Italian news agency said that Italian planes continued hammering Greek positions along the mountainous country.

Troops Machine-Gunned

The planes bombed Greek troops concentrations in villages as well as turning their machine guns on them, the report said.

Hardy Greek resistance, a poor terrain and unfavorable weather were cited earlier by Stefani as reasons for the failure of the Fascist army to get far beyond the Albanian frontier into Greece.

While the high command declared the drive down the road to Janina (Ioannina), in northwestern Greece, was going forward with the support of bombing squadrons, Stefani acknowledged that the expected lightning warfare had not yet materialized.

"The Italian advance failed to acquire lightning rhythm because of bad weather prevailing in the region for several days and because of the lack of roads," one of the agency's correspondents wrote.

"The terrain permits the use of only one route for the advance toward the east and another toward the west. These roads until today were swampy strips interrupted here and there by dynamite mines exploded by the Greek rear guard."

The Greeks, he declared, have been armed with British and French artillery, rifles, ammunition and airplanes, but argued that they were no match for the Italians in organization and that it was "ridiculous" to believe they could hold out.

Naples Raid Minimized

The high command said its bombers had raided the port of Salonika and the fortress on the Island of Corfu, and declared five Greek planes were shot down in an air fight over Salonika Saturday.

It minimized a British air raid on Naples, the second in four nights, and said antiaircraft fire drove the invaders away and forced them to drop their bombs in open fields.

Rome itself had an air raid warning during the Naples raid. The alarm lasted an hour and 45 minutes.

Report on Africa

Replying to an English announcement that British troops had landed at Crete, Stefani said the Italian government previously had announced that Fascist aviators bombed disembarking troops which, the agency added, were reinforcements.

It was further known, Stefani said, that Crete was occupied by the English "long before the Italian ultimatum to Greece and their presence was one of the reasons for the Italian action in Greece."

Attache and Wife Held

The first secretary of the Greek Legation and his wife were held here today when the diplomatic train left with Jean Politis, Greek Minister, and his staff for the Yugoslav frontier.

The Italians were understood to be holding the secretary, Xanthoupolo Palamas, 38, and his 23-year-old wife because of a report that the Greeks were holding the first secretary of the Italian Legation at Athens as "a Fifth Column hostage."

Boykin and Darr Predict Victory At Roosevelt Rally

Confident predictions of a Roosevelt victory were made by Representative Boykin (Democrat), of Alabama, and Sefton Darr, former president of the District Bar Association, at a Democratic rally last night at the Burlington Hotel.

Boykin, who recently returned from a speaking tour to the West, forecast that Roosevelt would carry Illinois, but said that "Pennsylvania and Ohio are in the balance." Darr predicted a "substantial victory" for Roosevelt "because I have great faith in the horse sense of the average American."

Approximately 150 persons attended the rally, sponsored by leaders of the Roosevelt for 1940 Club and the National Democratic League of Washington.

Mrs. Florence Jackson Stoddard read a poem, rebuking Edna St. Vincent Millay for her recent poem criticizing Roosevelt.

Adm. Day Funeral To Be Held Today

Funeral services for Rear Admiral George C. Day, U. S. N., retired, who died here Sunday, will be held in Fort Myer Chapel at 2 p. m. today with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Chaplain R. D. Workman, of the Navy, will officiate at the services, while Capt. Ellis Stone will command the naval escort. Honorary pallbearers include Rear Admirals M. M. Taylor, J. D. Beuret and W. R. Sexton, Capts. E. S. Kellogg, Chester Wells and C. F. Macklin, Lieut. Col. J. C. Whitaker and J. C. Hooker.

Vocational Group Hears U. S. Aide

Establishment of a national defense training program with "remarkable speed" was attributed largely to the already "going and efficient vocational movement in the United States" last night by James W. Kelly, of the Trade and Industrial Education Service, United States Office of Education.

Addressing Washington vocational teachers at a meeting of the District of Columbia Vocational Association, held in Central High School, Kelly estimated that 150,000 persons are now enrolled in defense training courses throughout the country.

Theodore Parkmen, president of the association, presided at the session, the first held by the association this season.

RAF Pounds Enemy From Kiel to Naples

Bevin Forecasts Supremacy in Air Within 6 Months

London, Nov. 4.—Aerial blows at the Axis from Kiel to Naples were reported by the British air ministry today, along with an official forecast that "in another six months Britain will have passed Germany in aircraft, ships and guns."

Two more Italian submarines have been destroyed by British light naval forces, the admiralty announced. (The Italian high command announced Sunday that two of its submarines had failed to return.)

With the empire's achievement of armament superiority, said Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin, "the ugly Nazi regime will crumble up in Adolf Hitler's hands."

Naples Bombed Again

The British bombed Naples again last night, driving through low clouds and antiaircraft fire to rain exlosives on the oil tanks of the free customs district of Poggioreale and close to the industrial port's main railway station, the air ministry said.

For 70 minutes another group of R. A. F. bombers flew over the German naval base at Kiel. Earlier Sunday, British planes operating in daylight attacked Flushing, Holland, and the airdrome at Soesterberg.

The raid on Naples was the second in four nights, but the British give no hint where the planes started from.

Naples Well Defended

(The Italian high command's communique said the British ran into heavy antiaircraft fire which repelled the pilots, forcing them to unload their bombs in open fields, where one person was killed and several injured.)

The air ministry's news service described Naples as "well defended" and said the antiaircraft fire was more effective than on the first raid last week. Cloudy weather also hampered the fliers, the British said, necessitating the use of flares.

The raiders who bombed Kiel started fires soon after their arrival, the news service said, and later arrivals scored hits with heavy explosives and started two fires in the dock area.

Spain Seizes Full Control In Tangier Zone

By the Associated Press

Tangier, Internationalized Zone of Morocco, Nov. 4.—Spanish rule over this 225-square mile area commanding the approach to the Strait of Gibraltar from the Atlantic became absolute today.

Spain, acting on her own initiative, erased the last trace of the international control she formerly shared with France, Italy and Great Britain by ordering dissolution of the four-power control commission, the legislative assembly and the international information office.

[A Rome radio broadcast heard in New York by N. B. C. said three Spanish planes chased off "one large British destroyer and a number of smaller craft caught trying to sneak into Tangier waters." The announcement said the information came from Algeciras, Spain, near Britain's Gibraltar.

[Earlier reports from Tangier by way of Gibraltar said an Italian submarine had taken refuge in Tangier Bay after being chased by three British destroyers.]

Thus, Spain realized at least one small part of her demands for what she calls her "rightful territories" in Africa.

The new order wiped out the international jurisdiction set up by the Algeciras Treaty of 1911, the International Convention of 1911, a protocol of 1925 and a 1928 agreement by which Spain was given police supervision.

Spanish forces occupied Tangier completely last June 14, four days after Italy entered the war and just before the French collapse.

James Craig Dies; Ex-Postmaster At Waynesboro

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—James Craig, 75, former Waynesboro postmaster and one of Virginia's pioneer commercial orchardists, died today at his home here after an illness of a year.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Wednesday with burial in River View Cemetery.

A native of Augusta County, he was the son of Benjamin and Elizabeth McChesney Craig. He moved to Waynesboro in 1890 and developed extensive apple orchards near the town. He served as postmaster here from 1898 until 1906.

He was known throughout the State for his knowledge of the fruit industry and commercial orchard management.

Surviving is one daughter, Miss Elizabeth Craig, of Waynesboro.

Communists Predict Increase in Votes

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Nov. 4.—A decided gain in votes in States where the Communist candidates remain on the ballots was predicted today by Israel Amter, chairman of the New York State election campaign committee of the party. The ruling off the ballots of candidates in 24 States, however, made a strong Communist showing throughout the National very difficult, he said.)

The campaign chairman pointed out that Communists had been advised to vote for neither Franklin D. Roosevelt nor Wendell L. Willkie. New Deal reforms which brought the President the support of Communists in 1936, he said, were outweighed in this contest by policies which coincided almost exactly with those of the Republican candidate.

British Confirm Crete Seizure, Silent on Aid

Assistance to Greece To Include 45,000 Men, Belgrade Paper Says

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 4.—The landing of British troops on the Greek island of Crete was confirmed officially today, but beyond a laconic announcement to that effect the British people knew virtually nothing of the scope of their aid to embattled Greece.

A Greek spokesman said it was believed that British forces in Crete included land, naval and air units. But this was not officially verified.

Some light is expected to be shed in a public statement by Prime Minister Churchill when Parliament meets again and there is evidence that he may be pressed to speak fully. An editorial in the Daily Mail noted that the first disclosure of the Crete landing came from Athens and observed that "concealment of information from the enemy can become an obsession."

A Reuters, British news agency, advice from Athens said the arrival of the 1,120-ton British escort vessel Wryneck at Piraeus, port of Athens—possibly carrying additional British reinforcements to Greece—had been announced officially.

[The Belgrade newspaper Pravda today quoted Greek newspapers as saying that British aid to Greece will include three army divisions, 45,000 men.

[British Wellington bombers (presumably operating from Greek territory) blasted Albanian ports as well as Italian embarkation points on the east coast of the Italian mainland—the United Press reported from Athens. Bari, Brindisi and Santa Quaranta—where men and munitions are massed for shipment to the Greek fronts—were bombed heavily in the British raids.]

Diplomatic and military observers were mystified by indications of importance in the Italian attack in Greece after months of preparation and a full week of fighting. A Reuthers dispatch from Athens quoted unofficial reports that the Greeks had taken the offensive on the southern front in the past 48 hours and were advancing at some points into Albania.

On the northern part of the front, British military circles said it was reported that the Greeks, "generally speaking, advanced two to three kilometers"—a mile to two miles—from the Phlorina sector down to the Pindus Mountains.

Apart from the resistance put up by the Greeks, observers suggested the Italians' failure to crack Greece's border defenses might be explained most reasonably by the possibility that Mussolini is relying on air raids to break civilian morale and set the stage for installation of a government willing to hand over the strategic points demanded by the Italian ultimatum, holding off his offensive meanwhile.

Wodehouse Reported In Nazi Prison Camp

London (Tuesday), Nov. 5 (INS).—P. G. Wodehouse, noted British novelist and creator of "Jeeves," was reported to be in a German prison camp in a letter published in the Daily Express.

No mention was made of the whereabouts of Mrs. Wodehouse, who was captured with her husband when the Germans took Le Touquet, France, where the couple had a villa.

Nazis Return To Raid Britain After Pause

London, Provinces Attacked; Channel Rough, Skies Cloudy

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 4.—German raiders spreading fanwise through cloudy skies returned to the attack on the United Kingdom tonight after giving the British one of their quietest 24 hours since the all-out air warfare began September 7.

Sirens wailed their customary evening alarm through London once more on schedule. Slight, intermittent gunfire was heard shortly afterward.

Only once during the day was the metropolitan area threatened. A single German raider dropped a few bombs around tea time.

Provinces Raided

Scarcely had the night raid begun in London than reports were received of raiders over northeast, southeast and southwest Scotland, Wales, the vital English Midlands, and Liverpool, which has withstood heavy German aerial assaults.

A bleak northwesterly wind drove heavy clouds along the English Channel. "Invasion watchers" in Dover said the seas there were rough and the clouds and occasional rain made visibility poor.

The Admiralty acknowledged the loss of two big armed merchant cruisers by torpedo, but reported that two more Italian submarines had been destroyed by British naval forces.

24 Killed in Train Wreck

The Admiralty announced the sinking of the trawler Tilburyness after a brush with enemy aircraft. Casualties were not given.

Twenty-four persons were killed and 59 injured today by derailment of the locomotive and several coaches of a Penzance-bound London passenger train in Somerset.

A Great Western Railway official said that "as far as we can tell, it was a straightforward railway accident."

Most of the casualties were said to have been soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Defense-Minded Nurses Storm Question Meeting

Anxious to do their part in national defense, more than 400 Washington nurses stormed a question-and-answer meeting of the District Graduate Nurses Association in the United States Public Health Service Auditorium last night, and many had to be turned away.

With Miss Annabelle Petersen, association president, as moderator, a panel of nursing experts answered more than 100 questions on nursing and the defense program.

Answering the queries were Maj. Julia O. Flikke, superintendent of the Army Nurse Corps; Miss Sue S. Dauser, superintendent of the Navy Nurse Corps; Miss Pearl McIver, senior consultant of the U. S. Public Health Service; Mrs. Mary A. Hickey, superintendent of the U. S. Veterans Administration's nursing service; Miss Katharine S. Read, superintendent of the U. S. Public Health Service's nursing service; Miss Rosalie Peterson, associate public health nursing consultant, Bureau of Indian Affairs; Miss Mary Beard, national director of the American Red Cross' nursing service; Miss Naomi Deutsch, director of the public helath nursing of the Children's Bureau, U. S. Labor Department, and Dr. F. X. McGovern, representative of the District Medical Society to the National Committee on Preparedness.

Japan Shortens Lines, Vacates Several Zones

Island Off Chinese Coast Used as Naval Base Is Abandoned

By the Associated Press

Hongkong, Nov. 4.—Indications that the Japanese army is shortening its lines drastically by withdrawing from several occupied zones, especially in South and Central China, increased tonight.

The abandonment of its zone of occupation in Kwangsi Province, South China, apparently was just about completed and Chinese columns following the retreating Japanese were said to be approaching Yamchow, Kwangtung Province port through which the Japanese in Kwangsi were supplied.

Just off the coast the Japanese abandoned Waichow, an island they had used as a naval base.

Chinese dispatches reported, without independent confirmation, that similar withdrawals were in preparation in the Chungshan district, across the Pearl River estuary from Hongkong, from the Port of Swatow, northeast of Hongkong, and from Yochow, strategic river port in northern Hunar Province, southeast of Hankow.

Last week the Japanese were reported quitting Ichang, on the Yangtze River west of Hankow, high water mark of their Yangtze Valley drive.

Chinese reports had it that the majority of Japan's garrison in Canton, chief city of South China, might be leaving and that several Japanese firms there were preparing to close.

Kwangsi Capital Abandoned

Last week the Japanese South China command announced it was withdrawing from Manning, Kwangsi capital. The explanation was that the acquisition of air and army bases in French Indo-China, from which the Burma Road and other Chinese supply routes could be bombed, made it unnecessary to retain the Kwangsi zone.

Chinese reports said all Japanese troops from Kwangsi would be withdrawn either into French Indo-China or to the Kwangtung coast within 48 hours. There has been no indication whether the others were going home or to other theaters of war.

Problem in Manchuria

[These Japanese soldiers, numbering at least five divisions, are being concentrated at Hainan and Formosa as insurance against American and British moves in the Pacific, the New York Times reported from Shanghai.

[The Japanese feel five divisions are insufficient for any moves against America or Britain but they might possibly attempt to attack Manila, the Dutch or the British East Indies.

[Japan figures 11 or 12 divisions necessary for such a move and the only place these divisions can be obtained is Manchuria. However, the draining of Manchuria's garrison presents a serious problem to Japan for the Soviets may make use of such lessening of power to attempt further incursions into the oft-disputed Siberian-Manchurian border.

[Russia is at present getting large amounts of supplies of war materials and machinery of all kinds, oil and petroleum from America, and any agreement with Japan would cut off this valuable source of supplies. There is little hope that Japanese proposals to Moscow will receive more than a polite sidetracking.]

Chinese spokesmen have denied the Japanese claim that the Kwangsi withdrawal, for instance, was voluntary and pointed out that Nanning was abandoned a few days after strong Chinese forces launched an offensive.

Departure of Japanese residents from Hongkong has been accelerated. More than 50 Japanese, including families of the Japanese consular staff, boarded a liner today.

Japan Tells Plan Of Self-Sufficiency

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, (Tuesday), Nov. 5.—The broad outlines of a 10-year program through which Japan hopes to make herself self-sufficient by grappling Manchukuo and Chnia to her as economic allies were published by the government today.

Details were not disclosed, but the main lines as published by the cabinet information bureau indicated at least the role Japan intends to assign to China if and when she can be made to surrender her economic direction to Japan.

Briefly Japan is to be the industrial unit of the bloc with the other two feeding her with raw materials and providing markets for her products. The announcement summarized the program thus:

1. Japan is to operate the heavy industries and send skilled workers to direct any industries which Manchukuo and China may retain.

2. Manchukuo is to produce enough basic staples and supplies for the entire bloc; large scale, government-fostered immigration from Japan is to raise Manchukuo's population and lessen Japan's pressure of numbers.

3. Chinese unskilled labor to be used to develop mines and other natural resources.

Japan, with her colonies, has a population of 100,000,000; Manchukuo about 35,000,000, China about 450,000,000.

Belief is expresed in many Japanese circles that a change in the Washington administration through the election today might bring changes in the United States' foreign policy. Public interest was keen, but official quarters have remained silent.

Lone U-Boat Sank 3 Ships, Nazis Claim

Five Others, Including Destroyer, Reported Damaged by Bombers

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Nov. 4.—Three British ships, totaling 35,414 tons, have been sunk by a single German submarine, and five others, including a destroyer and a 19,000-ton merchantman, have been badly damaged by Nazi bombers, the high command announced today.

It listed the U-boat's victims as the auxiliary cruisers Laurentic, 18,724 tons, and the Patroclus, 11,314 tons, and the armed merchantman Casanare, 5,376 tons.

The submarine was in command of Lieut. Comdr. Kretschmer, the communique noted, with the observation that the tonnage sunk by his craft had thus been increased to 217,198. He is the second U-boat commander to top the 200,000-ton mark, the high command declared.

There were no details of the sinkings or the fate of the crews. Nor was the big merchantman identified. Informed German sources, however, said a single plane had made a direct hit on the 19,141-ton steamer Windsor Castle several hundred miles west of Ireland.

Two other ships, listed merely as "one destroyer, a patrol boat, a large merchantman and a freighter," were reported by the high command to have been hit off Kinnairds Head, on the east coast of Scotland.

Nazi planes, informed sources said, bombed two 6,000-ton merchantmen in a convoy and both vessels began listing. The others fled to the shelter of the coast, they reported.

[A communique of the British admiralty acknowledged the sinking of the Laurentic, a converted passenger ship which operated between Montreal and Britain in the early thirties, and the Patroclus, a liner which was owned by the China Mutual Steamship Navigation Co.

[The admiralty said 52 officers and 316 seamen were rescued from the Laurentic and 33 officers and 230 men from the Patroclus. Losses were not announced.]

The communique also declared Nazi raiders had bombed airport and war-important industrial objectives Sunday and Sunday night, mostly in Scotland, starting a fire at the Stradishall airport and at Wattisham. D. N. B. official German news agency, said the Wattisham airport's hangars, barracks and planes were destroyed by fire, machine-gunning and cannonading.

The German air force, informed sources said, returned to the attack on Britain today, carrying out armed reconnaissance flights and dive attacks on London and southeast England despite low clouds and a steady rain.

Railways, troop concentrations and a factory were bombed and machine-gunned, these sources said, adding that one British plane was shot down in flames in the sea east of Dover.

Cumberland Group to Confer on Stamp Plan

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—A proposal to adopt the food stamp plan in Cumberland will be discussed Wednesday night by city, county and welfare officials and food dealers.

The group will meet with John McLaren, Philadelphia, Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation representative, who will outline the program to sell surplus foods at discount to persons on relief.

Named as chairmen of committees for group discussions of the plan were: Raymond R. Shade, independent food merchants; George W. Martin, meat dealers; J. Corfield Otterson, wholesale; J. George Smith, bakers; Albert T. Tomsko, chain stores; Edgar A. Dashiell, milk; Arden Lowndes, bankers, and Miss Elsie Heipp, publicity.

Belgrade Offices of Semi-Fascist Group Raided

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Nov. 4.—Police today raided the headquarters of the semi-Fascist "Zbor" political movement and seized documents and papers belonging to Zbor leader Dmitri Lyotis, former minister of justice and president of the powerful Zagreb cooperative. The Zbor headquarters were closed and sealed by government order, but semiofficial circles denied tonight that the movement had been completely suppressed.

Belgrade political circles were shocked by the raid, which, it is learned, followed the issuance of secret search warrants to open the movement's private headquarters and to arrest its principal lieutenants as well as its leader.

Some well-informed circles estimated the movement's strength at more than 80,000 members, and authorities feared pro-Fascist demonstrators and activities as a result of the Italian attack on Greece.

The movement is financed by members' contributions, the profits from the sale of its biweekly organ and—its enemies say—by assistance from Axis quarters.

Pope to Get Air Raid Shelter

Vatican City, Nov. 4 (AP).—Pope Pius XII is determined to remain in the Vatican despite new air-raid alarms in Rome, it was reported unofficially tonight.

A Vatican source said the Pope probably would protest if Rome is bombed because of the many valuable church properties in the city.

It was said that the pontiff finally has agreed for work to proceed on a personal shelter.

Germans Claim Lead In Air, 419 to 138

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—The German wireless reported tonight 419 British planes were destroyed compared to 138 German craft during October in battles over Britain and the German-held continent.

Britain Says Italy Has Lost 29 Subs

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Italy has lost 29 submarines, or one-quarter of her total underwater strength, since she entered the war, the British Broadcasting Corporation said tonight in a broadcast heard by N. B. C.

Pandit Nehru's Trial In India Concluded

Copyright by New York Times

Gorakhpur, United Provinces, India, Nov. 4.—The trial of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the Indian National Congress, on three charges under the Defense of Indian rules was concluded today. Judgment has not yet been delivered.

When the trial opened yesterday, Pandit Nehru refused to plead. He was one of two men selected by Mohandas K. Gandhi to make antiwar speeches as a part of the congress plan of limited civil disobedience in defiance of the government ban on antiwar propaganda.

Ship Reports Aiding Devil's Island Fugitives

Paulsboro, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—A story of giving provisions at sea to nine exhausted men who said they had escaped from the French penal colony on Devil's Island was told here today by an American tanker captain.

Capt. H. L. Dahlof of the L. P. Sinclair said his crew sighted the men adrift in an open boat in the Caribbean Sea 1,000 miles from the penal colony off South America. He said they had been without food and water for five days.

Willkie Vows Best Army, for Defense Only

Tells Women of U. S. Their Men Will Not Be Sent to Fight Abroad

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 4.—In an election eve address to the women of America, Wendell L. Willkie today promised "not to send your husbands and sons and brothers to death on a European battlefield."

"I know about war at first hand, and I hate war," said the Republican Presidential nominee in a C. B. S. broadcast.

"I saw the damage done by war at home and abroad—the loss of security and the extinction of civil liberties even in this land of the free. I have not forgotten that lesson. My every act as President will be to keep this country out of foreign wars and to keep it at peace."

Pledges to Extend Gains

Women have contributed largely to social legislation in recent years, Willkie said, adding that if elected President he would see these social gains were extended.

"I shall see that American industry recognizes your needs and their responsibilities," Willkie said. "In a prosperous country we cannot only maintain these gains. We can, and we will, extend them."

In the defense program, Willkie continued, women would be summoned to help keep "social life secure, an industrial life running efficiently." He admonished however, that "you will keep our eyes fixed on our goal; peace." To mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of American men, the candidate pledged himself to "avoid bringing about a condition of affairs that will make war necessary" and added that he would "never take this country into war until your Representatives in Congress have declared it."

"Army for Defense"

The American Army, he said, will be built as the "soundest, healthiest and the strongest force in the world," but, he added, "it will be an army for defense, and for nothing else."

In his speech this afternoon, Willkie changed his prepared text to promise to keep Americans from European or Asiatic battlefields. The text had mentioned only Europe.

To build a defense and to keep and extend social gains, the nominee asserted, "we must be strong. We must produce. We must all work together. We must all sacrifice, all contribute something in time, in substance, and in effort."

The women of America, he continued, "are prepared and willing to meet these demands."

Philadelphia Bank Records Subpenaed For Vote Probe

Philadelphia, Nov. 4 (AP).—In an unexpected election-eve move a Federal grand jury subpenaed today the records of 20 Philadelphia area banks for its inquiry into charges of election and registration irregularities.

Authorized bank representatives, including the Third Federal Reserve Bank, were directed to appear before the jury Wednesday with records showing all payments of $2,500 or more to "any committee or group or representative thereof."

A spokesman said the jury had information that "abnormal sums of money" would be spent "to coerce the election."

The banks were directed to produce records showing denominations of the bills paid out and if they were paid out by authority of check, draft, note or order, for October 31, November 1, 2 and 4, and for the corresponding dates of the month previous.

The subpenas also directed the banks to show any request for bills of lower brackets or change by any group during the election period. The Federal Reserve Bank was directed to produce all records of member banks who asked for large allotments of cash over the same period.

Maurice Evans To Recite Sunday

Civilians in bombed areas of Great Britain will benefit from a special performance of Maurice Evans in "Shakespeare in Peace and War" at the National Theater Sunday at 8:45 p. m.

Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times, will introduce Evans at the performance, which is sponsored by the British War Relief Society. The star will tell Shakespearean anecdotes and give readings from several of the bard's plays, including Richard II, Othello, Hamlet and Henry IV.

Attending will be members of the Diplomatic Corps, Government officials and student groups from Arlington Hall Junior College, Gunston Hall School, Holton-Arms School, Mount Vernon Seminary and Woodrow Wilson High School.

Chairman of the committee in charge of the benefit performance is Mrs. Duncan Phillips. Tickets are on sale at the theater.

British Hope Roosevelt Will Win Race

Preference Based On Fear Change Will Slow Arms Aid

By Joseph Frayman

Copyright by New York Times

London, Nov. 4.—Every section of the British public is taking a more intense personal interest in tomorrow's Presidential election than in any since the 1916 election. As on that occasion the British regard themselves as more than mere spectators at the contest.

Superficially the British have little to choose between Mr. Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie in their expressed desire to help Britain. From that point of view the people here expect American help in the form of increased shipments of munitions, planes and materials to be as decisive and important in the fighting of the war as the dispatch of the American Army to France in the last war.

Official and individual preferences are governed by the consideration of whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Willkie will be better fitted to organize a great increase in munitions production from which alone effective aid to Britain can come.

Ministers, government officials and newspapers have been well tutored by the foreign office in refraining from expression of any choice which might be construed by the opposition as an attempt to influence the American electors. That discretion has been carried out to the utmost degree but there is no hiding what result the British consider to be in their interests.

A straw vote taken here, would show an overwhelming majority pro-Roosevelt. Their own conservatism leans them toward President Roosevelt, whom they regard as a tried and experienced leader. They are afraid the election of a new President would mean that his early months in office would be taken up with the installation of a new administration. Even if present policies would be adhered to, new men would operate the machinery of the Anglo-American collaboration. That collaboration, particularly since the destroyers-for-bases bargain, seems to the British to have been functioning very smoothly, and they do not want it disturbed.

It is doubtful, they say, whether such an initial halt could be afforded now even if at the end of it the flow of assistance were speeded.

Then, too, from their own experience they know what a large measure of government control is needed to step up the production of munitions. The main trend of Willkie's campaign, as widely reported here, has been toward freeing business from control and restriction of government activity.

France Reticent

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, Nov. 4.—French interest in the American elections tomorrow centers naturally on the effects its outcome may have on the American attitude toward the European conflict.

Most of the comment which by official orders is extremely reserved, turns upon that point through some newspapers, like Le Temps, tonight stress that in spite of the unusual importance given to discussions of foreign policy throughout the campaign the real issue before the American public will be the question of modifying or prolonging the New Deal.

In most quarters it is felt that Whether President Roosevelt or Wendell Willkie triumphs, the United States is likely to pursue the same policy of assistance to Britain, tending more or less rapidly toward actual participation. A Roosevelt victory would be expected to accelerate this action.

Rival Parades Near Clash

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 4 (AP).—A Roosevelt rally and a Willkie parade came together in the middle of a Poughkeepsie street just before President Roosevelt made a speech tonight and for a few minutes it was toss up whether there would be a free-for-all.

The old-fashioned torchlight parade came down the street and a crowd of thousands assembled there let it pass, but snatched at banners and decorations on cars and in hands of the Willkie supporters.

The throng closed in and jammed the thoroughfare shoulder to shoulder and back to back. Willkie and Roosevelt banners were about evenly distributed, and there were a dozen near fights.

One by one, the Willkie banners came down as if mowed by a scythe, and then some of the Roosevelt banners fell in retaliation.

The parade was over half an hour before the Chief Executive arrived and most of the disturbance had subsided when he stepped up to a microphone to speak.

Gillette Satisfied With Denial D.C. League Violated Hatch Act

Chairman Gillette, of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, yesterday indicated that he was satisfied with a denial that the National Democratic League of the District of Columbia had violated the Hatch Act.

Mrs. Eunice Blake Thomas, chairman of the league, denied that the committee had solicited Government employes at their offices for campaign contributions.

Representatives of the Republican National Committee had charged that solicitations were made by letter accompanied by tickets for a benefit dance which was given October 25 at the Washington Hotel. The purpose of the dance was to raise $1,000 for the campaign.

Mrs. Thomas said the letters were sent to the homes of some Government workers but that none produced returns. In fact, she said, the dance was a financial failure.

"The only money we got," she added, "was solicited personally from persons in private business."

Senator Gillette explained that the committee was not interested in how much money was raised but only in whether any solicitations were made of Government employes at their places of employment.

New Deal Farm Program Helping U. S. to Keep at Peace, Wallace Declares

Debtors Get Burden Eased, He Asserts

Final Campaign Talk Cites Farmers' Gains, Defends Fiscal Policy

Henry A. Wallace, Democratic Vice Presidential candidate, said last night that the Administration farm program was helping this country to preserve peace.

"By organizing to meet the rapid and unpredictable changes of world trade, and still to maintain the values of farm products and farm property, we have protected ourselves against a possible source of internal weakness and collapse," Wallace said in a broadcast.

"Peace can be maintained only by preparedness on all fronts and we are gratified that on the agricultural front no such breakdown as that of eight years ago is occurring this year."

Essential to Peace

In the closing speech of his campaign, Wallace said that "labor and agriculture working together in a harmonious way are both essential to peace."

In an earlier speech yesterday he said that Administration policies had "relieved millions of farmers and other debtors from the burden of unreasonable interest rates."

"The total debt resting on the American people last year was about $10,000,000,000 less than in 1929," the Democratic Vice Presidential nominee declared, "but the important feature was the reduction in total interest charges from $8,500,000,000 a year to less than $6,500,000,00"

Wallace, with members of his family, will remain here over election day.

Hits Farm Plan Foes

The former Cabinet member said that the agriculture issue of the present campaign was whether "we shall turn our (farm) program over to the holding company candidate and his Wall Street backers, or whether we shall go on with President Roosevelt."

He accused Republicans in Congress of having a record of "stubborn opposition" to New Deal farm legislation, which, he contended had raised farm income to a "fairly good level of prosperity.

"And we are still on the way up," he added.

Wallace said the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, which he termed the "backbone of the whole farm program," had brought "into being a Nation-wide economic democracy for the first time in history."

Savings on Interest

He said the reduction in interest charges to farms "was brought about by the Federal policy of borrowing large sums of money, and lending to farmers, home owners and business concerns at low rates of interest.

"The financial leaders who control the Republican Party have proclaimed that this policy would ruin the country, but what was really hurting them was the $3,000,000,000 of interest that they could no longer squeeze out of the American people. In spite of all their cries, this country is farther than ever from ruin or from a collapse like 1929, and the reason is that our debt burden is costing us $3,000,000,000 less per year than in 1929."

Roosevelt Means War, Lewis Says

John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, once again urged the election of Wendell Willkie last night, declaring in a brief midnight broadcast that the reelection of President Roosevelt would result in war

LEWIS

"Neither President Roosevelt, nor any spokesman for his Administration," Lewis said in his prepared text, "has been intellectually capable of making answer" to the charges he made in his first speech opposing the President's reelection. "Their responses have been confined to violent personal criticism, abuse and slander of this speaker

"I assert again that the reelection of President Roosevelt will result in the Nation's involvement in war," Lewis said.

Bugles Will Wake Up Voters for Willkie

East Orange, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—With the opening of the polling places at 7 a. m. tomorrow boy buglers will go about the city blowing reveille reminding all to vote — for Wendell L. Willkie preferably.

The Willkie-for-President Club organized 12 youngsters to appear in sections of this city and the Associated Willkie Clubs of New Jersey passed the suggestion on to its 385 member clubs.

The buglers not only plan to wake everybody up but they intend also not to let them go back to sleep. There will be first call and assembly calls at intervals throughout the day.

"At the same time that the President was assuring the Nation of his hatred for war and his love for peace, the Government was evacuating American citizens from areas likely to be affected by a war with Japan. At the same time, he was racing 'his' warships to French possessions in the Western Hemisphere. At the same time, agents of foreign countries, in America and abroad, are giving public assurances to their own people that the United States of America will enter the war shortly following the reelection of President Roosevelt.

"The citizen who votes for President Roosevelt's election tomorrow assumes the hazard of our Nation's involvement in war. He votes to make his son, and other men's sons, available for President Roosevelt's use in the fearful and menacing crime of international politics."

The Presidential Campaign

Willkie Will Bring Units, Says Martin

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 4.—Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., of the Republican National Committee, delivering his last formal address of the campaign, urged the American electorate tonight to bring about national unity by electing Wendell L. Willkie to the Presidency.

MARTIN

"He will reunite the American people," said Martin in a national broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting System. "Class hatreds and domestic turmoil will end. One great people will join together under his leadership. They will unite and through mutual understanding and respect will solve our domestic problems and build a better and busier America."

Such a unity, he said, would be responsible for building the Nation so strong economically and in a military sense that "no foreign foe will dare to threaten the precious institutions of America."

Election of the Republican nominee, Martin said, would assure "peace at home—peace abroad."

"His election will usher in an era of happiness and prosperity," he said. "Vast sums of idle money will be put to work. New industries will spring up; old industries will expand. America will once more be on the march with characteristic American courage and hope."

Of Charles L. McNary, the party's Vice Presidential nominee, Martin said that the Nation would find in him "unquestionably one of the greatest students of the farm problem."

Cudahy Defends 'My Ambassador'

By the Associated Press

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 4.—John Cudahy, United States Ambassador to Belgium, tonight assailed Wendell Willkie for criticizing President Roosevelt's use of the term, "My Ambassador." His address was broadcast.

CUDAHY

"President Roosevelt had no means of knowing that the Republican candidate was so ignorant of elementary diplomatic usage as to be unconscious that every American ambassador is the personal representative of the President," Cudahy said. "In fact, the ambassador stands for the person of the President in the foreign capital to which he is accredited.

"How the chancelleries of Europe would laugh at the ignorance displayed by the Republican candidate for President, if they were not so distracted by so many tragic events.

"The comment is a sad commentary on the weakness of the Republican candidate in any matter relating to international relations. He is beyond his depth on this subject and . . . has no training, no education, no experience in foreign affairs."

Referring to other criticisms against the presence of ambassadors in the United States at election time, Cudahy said, "the Republican candidate should address his complaint to Hitler. We are back in America because the Fuehrer ejected us from all the German-occupied territory of Europe. And we are here without pay."

He concluded with a plea for national unity "no matter who is the choice of the American people."

Dewey Answers Roosevelt Speech

Cleveland, Nov. 4 (AP).—Thomas E. Dewey declared tonight "if the third-term campaign should be successful," then "each day of the next four years" would be "a living affront to those who created this Republic, to those who gave us our freedom."

DEWEY

"Every day would bring us more reprisals against business, against the press, against all those who dare to disagree," the New York district attorney asserted.

"Each day would bring us closer to the point when every Federal judge in the land would owe his place to the will of one man. . . . Every child who reaches voting age at the end of 12 years of one-man rule will have no recollection of any other head of his Government. These are the things of which dictatorship is made."

Dewey appeared on the same Cleveland public hall platform from which President Roosevelt spoke Saturday night. His address, billed by Cleveland Republican leaders as the answer to Mr. Roosevelt's talk, was prepared for broadcast nationally.

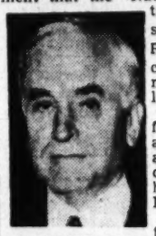
The President's address contained "the usual hymn of hate directed at those who build the factories, who make new jobs," Dewey asserted.

"There are arrayed against him, said the third-term candidate, all those who hate democracy. That statement I resent as a gross libel on the millions of good Americans who will tomorrow vote for the next President of the United States, Wendell Willkie.

"The other group the third-term candidate says oppose him are the Communists. . . . The Communists, he complains, have deserted the New Deal. . . . Who was it who in 1933 accorded recognition to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics? That was no Republican! Who is it who regularly entertains the Communist leadership of the American Youth Congress in the White House? That is no Republican!"

Hull Says Nation Needs Roosevelt

Secretary Hull introduced President Roosevelt for his election-eve broadcast last night with the statement that the "Nation needs continued leadership" of the President in "the critical days and months which lie ahead."



HULL

Hull spoke from his hotel apartment here and the President from his home at Hyde Park.

"This election," Hull declared, "is an emphatic reassertion of the Democratic process in a world in which powerful and sinister forces are arraigned against the very idea and ideal of popular Government."

Asserting that for himself "the choice tomorrow is clear," the Secretary of State said that "once our votes are counted and the verdict of choice is determined, let us wholeheartedly accept that verdict without rancor, without fear, with full confidence—a people united in purpose and in firm determination that our institutions shall be preserved."

Politicians Place Number of Votes Near 50,000,000

By the Associated Press

Record - smashing registrations which may qualify more than 60,000,000 persons to vote today have the politicians guessing as to how these new voters will mark their ballots.

Allowing for the same ratio of stay-at-homes as in former general elections, it is estimated that roughly 50,000,000 may cast votes today. In round numbers, 45,000,000 out of 55,000,000 eligibles voted in 1936, when President Roosevelt had a plurality of almost 11,000,000.

What party leaders won't know for sure until after the ballots are counted is why registrations are breaking all-time records in the large cities and even in many smaller towns. All down the line, but particularly in New York, Pennsylvania and California, voters in increasing numbers have signified their intention of exercising their historic right.

Normal population gains and more persons reaching voting age explain the increases in some instances, but the intensity of the campaign and unusual interest in issues appear to account for others.

Bainbridge Colby Assails Third Term

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP).—Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State in the Wilson Cabinet, said tonight that a third term candidacy was "an affront to the national conscience and violates a basic principle which runs through the body of our law."

COLBY

"The abject creatures of the New Deal who say 'yes' for hire, have been hard put to dodge the third term issue," Colby said in a prepared broadcast address. "They have taken the position that the historic tradition against it is only an attitude of mind—a sort of habit in which we have long persisted, but which can be interrupted or continued as many accord with our momentary state of feeling without much consequence either way. This is tragic mistake."

Colby urged the election of Republican Nominee Wendell L. Willkie, describing him as a "serious American, a sober citizen of the republic endeavoring to portray to his follow countrymen, our situation at home and abroad, our dislocated economy, our lagging defense, our dangers and insecurity."

Willkie Attacks 'Smear Campaign'

anyone high pressure you. If democracy is to live in America, you must vote the way you believe. I say this to you no matter which way you may choose to vote."

Willkie thanked Democrats who were supporting him, saying: "Your own party has been kidnaped by a few men who have accumulated too much personal power . . . We believe in the two party system. In joining with us to fight the New Deal kidnapers, you are strengthening your own party by preserving your own form of government."

Willkie declared he was closing the campaign "without bitterness" and added "there is no place for bitterness or hate in America."

"Especially during the last few days," he asserted, "the opposition seeking to obscure the issues, has attacked me with smear campaign designed to make you question my record and my motives. I have answered everything I thought worthy of an answer."

Earlier Willkie had promised in an afternoon speech "not to send your husband and son and brothers to death on a European or Asiatic battlefield."

"We have a great national defense effort," he said in a broadcast to the women of America, but he said the American Army will be "an Army for defense and for nothing else."

Mrs. Willkie, who has traveled with her husband since he started his campaign, remained at their Fifth Avenue apartment today. The candidate's son, Philip, came to downtown hotel headquarters, greeting visitors and talking frequently with his father.

Willkie's physician, Dr. H. D. Barnard, said he was "in fine shape." The nominee's voice, husky frequently during his 18,000-mile campaigning tour, was clear after a week-end rest from speechmaking.

The candidate and Mrs. Willkie will vote tomorrow at a polling place near their apartment. In a statement today, Willkie called on all citizens to cast their ballots, saying:

"Tomorrow is the day on which all Americans of voting age have their chance to show the world the force and power of the free ballot in a democracy dedicated to peace and progress.

"Voting is the only way our citizens have to control their government. Failure to vote is not only an abdication of the high privilege of American citizenship, but is an acquiescence in whatever loss of liberty may come if the power of the bosses be not outvoted.

"No conditions should prevent the exercise of that right and the discharge of that duty. That high privilege should be exercised and that solemn duty discharged in every city, town and village, regardless of weather, distance or difficulty.

"Voters must remember that their vote is secret and may not be learned by any man. They can vote as they please, regardless of the party in which they may be registered. This year the ballot of each voter will be cast after thoughtful and prayerful consideration of the future of his country.

"Despite last-minute rumors which counsels of desperation spread about me to mislead voters, I repeat now what I said to the convention at Philadelphia immediately following my nomination:

"'I stand before you without a single pledge, promise or understanding of any kind except for the advancement of your cause and the preservation of American democracy.'

"Since that time the only pledges or promises of any sort that I have made to anybody have been those which I have made to the American people in my public addresses. I have neither offered to nor discussed with any person any appointment to any Cabinet position or any other position, and I have never authorized anyone else to do so."

Defense Grows, Biddle Declares

Waterbury, Conn., Nov. 4 (AP).—Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Ambassador to Poland, asserted tonight that the Government's defense efforts were moving forward in such a manner that the Nation had reason to feel confident of its success.

BIDDLE

"Our national consciousness has already been awakened to the necessity of complete preparedness," he said in an address prepared for delivery here and at New Britain, Conn., and distributed by the Democratic National Committee.

"Our Government has already realistically recognized the essential lessons from the tragic events abroad," the Ambassador said after narrating his experiences in Poland during the German invasion and his fact finding journeys through other parts of war-torn Europe.

The Government, he said, planned "a many-sided system of defense against manifold dangers."

This defense, he continued, included the air and naval bases obtained from Great Britain, and defense consultations with Canada and the Latin American republics.

"In brief, our government is seeking to advance, by every appropriate means, the spirit of inter-American solidarity, and the system of continental defense," he said.

The Nation, he said, wanted peace, "but we must be in a position to insist upon it in our hemisphere."

Thomas Descries World Revolution

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4 (AP).—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, said tonight that perhaps the most serious thing of all today "is the general refusal of American college men . . . to recognize that we are dealing with a world in revolution."

THOMAS

"The failure to recognize this fundamental fact," he said in his closing campaign speech before the Harvard Socialist Forum, "vitiates much of our thinking about the war. Even more does it vitiate our thinking about democracy in this country and the road to fascism."

"It is the young who matter most in the tasks that lie ahead," Thomas said. "There is only one choice that we can make; it is the choice between the cooperative commonwealth and the totalitarian state . . . we are not gods in wisdom or power to save the world by the devil's means of war . . .

"Our basic social task should be to put machinery to work for the conquest of poverty."

He said that Wendell Willkie "admits" the "vital weakness" of private capitalism" by his indorsement of the State intervention implicit in Roosevelt's reforms which Roosevelt himself appropriated from Socialists' immediate demands."

Earlier, in a radio address at Springfield, Thomas said that if the people demand defense, he favored an army of "moderate size" raised through voluntary enlistment instead of peacetime conscription; and he declared he was "skeptical" of the usefulness of "enormously expensive battleships."

N. Y. Telephone Co. Gains 5,475 Stations

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—The New York Telephone Co. today reported a gain of 5,475 stations in October, compared with 5,985 a year ago and 3,037 in the like 1938 month. For the first ten months of the year stations increased by 72,858, compared with 60,576 in 1939 and 13,626 in the comparable period in 1938.

Visible Grain Supply

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Visible supply of American grain showed the following changes from a week ago (in bushels): Wheat decreased 1,196,000; corn increased 2,152,000; oats decreased 445,000; rye increased 90,000; barley decreased 168,000.

O'Conor Urges Maryland to Vote

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor tonight urged every registered voter to go to the polls tomorrow. 'I ask every Marylander," he added, "to assure the best interests of his State and his country by voting for Franklin D. Roosevelt for President and by electing a complete Democratic ticket to give him the very vital support he will need during these next four years."

O'CONOR

W. Preston Lane, Democratic national committeeman, predicted that "President Roosevelt and Senator Radcliffe will carry the State by a minimum majority of 75,000; that majority may even go higher."

He declared that the argument against a third term was "a false issue, because the founders of this Nation, in the convention that drafted the Constitution expressly refused to adopt any limitation on the number of consecutive terms to which any individual may be elected. . . . and because George Washington insisted that the people of this country must be free to choose who they wanted whenever and as many times as they wanted."

Savings at Stake, Says Al Smith

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith declared tonight that "given four years more, the third-term candidate will lead you over the hills to the poorhouse and the Government handout.

AL SMITH

In a Nation-wide radio broadcast, sponsored by the Committee for Independent Business Men for Willkie, the 1928 Democratic Presidential candidate charged that for seven years the New Deal had "discouraged private business," and added:

"Values have come down, profits have been wiped out, opportunities for new investment have been cut off."

The address was the last of a series of five delivered by the one-time "Happy Warrior" against the man who 12 years ago nominated him for President.

Discussing "savings and insurance under the New Deal," Smith said the bank depositors in many cases now received "2 per cent (interest) instead of 4½ per cent and you get it every six months instead of every three."

"The insurance companies," he went on, "tell the same story. The income of insurance companies has gone down; therefore, the dividend to their policyholders to reduce premiums has gone down. Therefore the cost to policyholders has gone up. . . .

The former Governor addressed his speech to the "forgotten men, the 45,500,000 savings bank depositors and the 64,000,000 insurance policyholders in the United States," and asserted $54,000,000,000 worth of your money is at stake."

Md. Job Placements Set October Record

Baltimore, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Maryland State employment service tacked up a new placement record during October, Director David L. B. Fringer re ported today.

Fringer said his agency located jobs for 5,292 persons, reducing its files of job applicants to an unusually low total of 53,185.

"Defense contracts which have been let in this State . . . are beginning to make themselves felt on the labor market," the director added.

County Record Set

During October, 274 deeds, mortgages, deeds of trust, releases and agreements dealing with land transactions were recorded in the office of the clerk of the Circuit Court at Rockville, the total being an all-time monthly record for the office, it was stated yesterday. The best previous monthly record was August, when 200 papers of the kind were placed on record.

Utility Man Dies

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 4 (AP).—William Wilson Mallory, 65, president of the city-owned Memphis Light, Gas and Water Division, died today after a lengthy illness.

President Awaits Nation's Verdict

President told his neighbors it was his last appearance before them "as a candidate for office."

Through cities in Dutchess, Orange and Ulster Counties he rode by motor car, declaring along the way that it was not a campaign trip but just another of the type he had been making for years on election eve.

At the very start of the tour, he sat on the folded top of his open car in the center of Beacon, where he was introduced by Morgan Hoyt, a city Democratic leader, who first had presented him to a Beacon audience 30 years ago when he entered politics as a candidate for the State Senate.

"It Is the Last Time"

"As you know," the President said, "this is my sixth visit, the sixth time that I have come down here on the day before election to say 'How-dy do' to a lot of my old neighbors.

"It is the last time, very obviously, that I will do that as a candidate for office, but you can be quite sure that in all the years to come my heart will be in Dutchess County where it has always been."

His words recalled his address Saturday night in Cleveland, where he had asked the American people for "a vote of confidence" and told them that after this next term there would be "another President."

From Beacon, he ferried across the Hudson River to Newburg and spoke again of his "sentimental journey." Thousands of people greeted him and some of the crowd showered him with rice.

"I feel like a bridegroom," he remarked.

At a later stop, after he had been presented a bouquet of red roses, he laughed and observed:

"I feel even more like a bridegroom."

Thousands of yelling people were assembled at Newburg and set up a cry of "We want Roosevelt."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke on the main street, Broadway, where more thousands jammed about his car and tossed paper into the air. They waved banners bearing such slogans as "Better a Third Term Than a Third Rater."

But directly overhead was a huge sign across the street supporting the candidacy of Wendell L. Willkie and other Republican nominees, and there were some calls of "We want Willkie."

Secretary Morgenthau, who lives near the President, rode in Mr. Roosevelt's car for the drive to Kingston.

Pensions Not Imperiled

Mr. Roosevelt said in a statement tonight that he was informed circulars had been distributed saying legislation pending in Congress would deprive State, municipal or county employes, or school teachers of their pensions.

"This is another unethical and deliberate misrepresentation of fact similar to the last minute effort in 1936 to scare the employes as to the validity of their social insurance," the President declared.

"That failed—this will fail," he said.

No Federal law, his statement added, will threaten or endanger the pensions, and "this applies to all States."

The statement, issued at the temporary White House, follows:

"The President was informed Monday afternoon that circulars have been given to State and municipal employes, stating that a bill pending in Congress would deprive them of and endanger their pensions as State, muncipal or county employes, or as school teachers.

"This is another unethical and deliberate misrepresentation of fact similar to the last minute effort in 1936 to scare the employes as to the validity of their social insurance. That failed—this will fail.

"The President states categorically that no Federal law will threaten or endanger the pensions of employes of any State or political subdivision thereof. This applies to all States."

Culpeper Man's Body Found on Tracks

Culpeper, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Cover Frazier, 32, a farm manager, was found dead alongside the Southern Railway tracks south of Culpeper yesterday. He apparently had been killed by a train as he walked along the track. Funeral services will be held here Tuesday, with interment in Fairview Cemetery. His wife and two children survive.

Train Kills W. Va. Man

Logan, W. Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The body of Frank Kelley Cline, 34, of Crockett, Va., was discovered on a railroad track at Holden yesterday by John Bowen, aged 10. State police said Cline, a machine man for the Island Creek Coal Co., was killed by a train.

Va. Apple Growers Feel Effect of Sales Effort

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—L. M. Walker, State commissioner of agriculture, said today the loss of export trade because of the continental blockade was being felt sharply by Virginia orchardists, but that response had been obtained in efforts to boost domestic demand.

The movement of apples during the past week-end was "good" because of the public's response to this sales effort, he said.

The Virginia 1940 crop of an estimated 115,000,000 bushels is somewhat below the 1939 crop. The harvest is nearly done.

The Political Arena

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Mrs. Newton D. Baker, widow of the Secretary of War in Woodrow Wilson's Cabinet, told a luncheon meeting today that the New Deal philosophy had "completely disillusioned" all her Democratic friends. While the armed forces of the country were pleading for defense preparation, she said, "millions of dollars were spent on projects that were often worse than useless."

Mrs. Baker

She said the Roosevelt Administration had done "the most reckless spending of which any government has ever been guilty."

The luncheon was sponsored by the Independent Willkie Advertising Campaign.

Work Too Heavy, Election Board Quits

Camden, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—All four members of the election board of the Tenth District of the Thirteenth Ward in Camden resigned today after stating the record-breaking registration of 1,293 voters was too heavy for them to handle.

Two Democratic replacements were immediately certified and two Republicans were to be certified later today.

Watson Makes 27th Election Eve Speech

Rushville, Ind., Nov. 4 (AP).—Rush County Republicans observed tonight a rite without which the election hardly would be official for them.

They heard former Senator James E. Watson make his twenty-seventh consecutive election eve speech in his home town.

Edison Gets Campaign Funds From Abroad

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP).—Charles Edison, Democratic nominee for Governor, received campaign contributions from persons in Stockholm, Sweden, Nebraska and California as well as in his home State of New Jersey.

Edison, former Secretary of the Navy, reported to the Secretary of State that among the contributors of $37,095 to his campaign fund was Hallett Johnson, of Stockholm. A Hallett Johnson is United States consul general there. Edison reported that he spent $34,440 in his campaign.

Guffey's Office Becomes Information Bureau

The office of Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, became an information and transportation bureau yesterday for Pennsylvania voters employed in Washington.

Pennsylvania is one of the few Eastern States which does not have absentee balloting. One secretary in Guffey's office said "a couple of thousand at least" would go home to vote today "if all the people who called here are going home."

Election 'Doodling' Helps Laundries

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 4 (AP).—The Nation's professional laundrymen reported today that this year's election campaign brought a business boom to the industry.

The American Institute of Laundering said that the American habit of "doodling" on table linens at the thousands of campaign luncheons and in restaurants was the chief reason for the increase in laundry business.

Using visual education methods to prove their arguments, the election enthusiasts have drawn maps, tabulated State-by-State returns and figured the vote by class, creed and color.

Close Race Seen In Record Vote

Both Express Confidence

On the record, both the President and Willkie were "confident." But both carried intensive campaigning deep into election eve, and far into election day, Democratic and Republican oratory signaled the concern of both camps.

No new issues were injected in the campaign finale.

Willkie, whose strenuous campaign had broken all records for speed, distance and speeches, reversing midway a Roosevelt trend, brought his theme plea for unity three times to a radio audience, warning against election "apathy." He was linked over radio with his running mate, Senator McNary, who spoke from his home in Salem.

President Roosevelt toured the mid-Hudson Valley in the vicinity of his Hyde Park home, repeating in effect his pledge not to seek a fourth term. Then both the President and his running mate, former Secretary Wallace, headlined a 10-to-12 Democratic broadcast.

Lewis and Louis Speak

Marshaled behind both candidates was such a repertoire of speakers as has seldom been heard on election eve.

John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chief, and Senator Johnson, of California, voiced last minute pleas for Willkie, as did Al Smith, Joe Louis, Bing Crosby, Mary Pickford, and others.

Secretary of State Hull led a Roosevelt speakers list that again ran the gamut of cross-section America, with Carl Sandburg, Joan Bennett, Dorothy Thompson and Benny Goodman among those on the Democratic program.

G. O. P. Hopes for Clear Skies

Willkie managers hoped for favorable weather to aid the Republican candidate, who must pull much of his strength from rural Western areas where heavy rains could cut down the voting.

But Democrats discounted the weather as a Willkie augury, as both candidates joined in appeals for a big vote

Alike on Many Issues

As the voters went to bat, the big domestic issues of other campaigns had largely been cut away by substantial agreement on objectives of social and labor reforms, farm parity, relief and National defense. Willkie's strong acceptance of the policies of conscription and British aid, narrowed the issues largely to the third term, New Deal methods, effective guidance of the defense program and foreign policy, concentration of power in the executive and public spending.

Willkie argues that the Democratic way of life will be jeopardized by a third-term mandate, questions the "good faith" of the President's peace pledge, and claims he alone can unify business, labor and agriculture in a productive "triumvirate" to provide more jobs and prosperity.

Doubtful factors beclouding the outcome are led by the war issue and which way it will cut. Both candidates have declared against war involvement, but "war party" charges by Willkie, dramatized by the draft, have generally cut into Roosevelt strength, none knows how deeply.

Unprecedented registrations, and the big "silent" vote, have been interpreted both ways as a New Deal "protest" and hidden Roosevelt strength. Today's votes alone can resolve that one, and such other unplumbed factors as:

Labor's split on the candidates, racial and religious by-play, defections of conservative Democrats, class division charges and counter charges, and how the colored vote will go.

Clark Says Willkie Outdoes Roosevelt

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 4 (AP).—Senator Bennett Champ Clark said tonight "I warn the multitude of Americans who share my opposition to getting us into war that they have nothing to hope for from Wendell Willkie."

CLARK

"It is well known that I opposed much of President Roosevelt's foreign policy on the ground that in my view it involved steps calculated to get us into other people's quarrels," Missouri's senior Senator said in a prepared address concluding a two-weeks speaking tour of the State in behalf of the Democratic ticket.

"If I believed that we would be less likely to be lured into war with Mr. Willkie as President than Mr. Roosevelt as President, I would vote for Mr. Willkie, Such, however, is very far from being the case, Mr. Willkie out-Roosevelts Mr. Roosevelt all along the way . . .

"Willkie has swallowed all of Roosevelt's foreign policy and complained because it did not go farther . . .

"But, little as I like a third term for any man, I infinitely prefer it to a first term for a man bearing the label of Morgan and Company and the great industrial and financial tycoons of Wall Street—many of whom are actively and avowedly in favor of immediate armed intervention of the European war."

Wendy, Louise, Willkie Arrive on Election Eve

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Election eve notes:

Triplets—two girls and a boy—were born tonight to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cuttita.

They were immediately named Wendy, Louise and Willkie.

McNary Cautions on 'Subtle Changes,' Dangerous Trends in Government

Running Mate Speaks From Oregon on Same Program With Willkie

By the Associated Press

Salem, Oreg., Nov. 4.—Senator Charles L. McNary, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, tonight cautioned the people against "subtle changes" in government, "against disunity, factional strife, confused national aims and policies that lead toward national bankruptcy and enfeeblement of the citizen's self-reliance."

"These," he said in a speech prepared for a Nation-wide broadcast, along with other factors, "contributed to the downfall of free states beyond the seas."

McNary spoke on the program in which Presidential Nominee Wendell Willkie spoke from New York.

"I do not find personal devils in politics," the Senator said. "What I find is fallible human beings, associated in parties and committed to certain governmental policies: Some affirmative and beneficial, others negative and harmful. In this campaign, we have pursued the affirmative course. The New Deal, which assumed power when our forces had been demoralized by a world economic crisis, organized a retreat.

Hits New Deal on "Retreat"

"The fault I charge now is that the New Deal continued to retreat from our traditions, taking deeper and deeper refuge in paternalism and statism. Tomorrow we must decide whether this retreat shall go on. We must guard against a rout in the next four years; a rout, in which might be lost our personal liberties, our substance and our power to make future decisions.

"The time has come to advance.

"The call to advance has been sounded with notable clarity and candor. Wendell Willkie, with unbelievable energy, courage and sincerity, has carried the call into every corner of the land. I have marvelled at his indomitable spirit, his rugged insistence on proclaiming the faith within him. His leadership has proved an inspiration to me, as I, too, sought to summon our country to faith in our future and our capacity for growth. I have contended against the fearful doctrine that self-government and free enterprise have run their course; that we must rely increasingly upon the Government for instruction, guidance and support."

Poverty Amid Riches

He said that in recrossing the continent "I was struck again by the dire econtrast between the riches brought forth by our primary producers—of farm, mine and forest—and the poverty of their reward. In the America which we are about to recreate, we cannot afford to ignore that contradiction. We must include the raw materials producer within our economy; share with him the fruits of our vast, protected market.

"We see the signs of a coming industrial boom based on defense needs. We must distribute the benefits of that boom. The Nation cannot exist—to paraphrase Abraham Lincoln—half prosperous, half depressed. I believe we must, and shall, allot the American market to the American producer, as we do to the American industrialist. We must, further, equate the price the farmer receives with the price he pays for what he purchases from those of us who live in the cities. I am certain that no American begrudges a fair deal to the farmer.

"The spirited determination with which we embarked last June upon the crusade for a greater, freer America has been maintained. It has, indeed, grown in fervor these last few weeks. I witnessed evidences of that fervor all the way across the continent.

Urges Vote "Harvest"

"But faith without works avails little.

"Therefore, I call upon you who have shared in this crusade to manifest your faith by works tomorrow. Work, first, to get out the vote. Elections have been won by superior fidelity on the part of those committed to the better cause. Many well-intentioned persons neglect to vote unless reminded, or even transported to the polls. See that they get there.

"A second task remains. Using the language of the farm, with which I am conversant by lifelong habit; first, harvest every vote; and then see that your yield is accurately and fairly counted. In cities where ruthless and un-American political machines seek to pervert the will of the voters, guard the count of ballots. Do not relax your vigilance anywhere. We must not be robbed of our choice by indifference, carelessness, lack of diligence or will.

"Tomorrow, God willing, America again marches forward."

Arlington, Fairfax Volunteers to Fill First Draft Quota

Selective Service officials in Arlington and Fairfax counties said yesterday they expected vilunteers to fill their quotas of three men for the first call on November 28.

Fairfax County, whose quota is only one, has four volunteers. Arlington County with a quota of two, has two volunteers.

New High Reported In Use of Copper

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—Domestic users of copper probably took between 105,000 and 110,000 tons of the red metal in October, trade circles estimated today. If the official figures, to be announced soon, confirmed this report, it would be a record high consumption for American users.

Shipments to domestic users in September totaled 90,485 tons, the best previous month for which figures are available.

All through October, metal circles said, shipments to fabricators were governed largely by the physical ability to turn out copper in the specified shapes.

Seeking to Bet on Roosevelt, Man Wins Republican Lecture

"FEARLESS WALTER SULLIVAN"—Meet Walter Sullivan, of 1325 Thirteenth street northwest, who likes "The Champ" and went yesterday to Republican headquarters here looking for a wager

When a man's got a notion that Roosevelt will win and a few dimes to put behind his opinion there are a wide variety of places where he can get attention. And some odd places, too.

One odd place would be the Republican Absentee Voters' Bureau, Fifteenth and H Streets Northwest, where there is plenty of conversation but little time to talk about Roosevelt.

Walter Sullivan, 1325 Thirteenth Street Northwest, with the Roosevelt notion and "a small amount" to back it, went to the G. O. P. bureau yesterday and inquired how the betting was.

He was efficiently asked if he wished to cast an absentee vote for Willkie. He replied he would like to place a small amount on Roosevelt. He got no bet. Instead, he got a lecture on the error of his political views, as those views were regarded by the busy Republicans.

Very Close Vote in Illinois, New York Forecast by Polls

Photo Finish Forseen in Empire State; Times and Tribune in Chicago Get Different but Almost Equal Results

By the United Press

Newspaper polls taken in New York State, the Middle West and the Far West yesterday indicated extremely close balloting in New York and Illinois, whose combined 76 electoral votes may decide the Presidential election.

The New York Daily News predicted a photo finish in New York State, where its 54,991 straw ballots gave a percentage of 50.068 for President Roosevelt and 45.932 for Wendell Willkie.

The Chicago Times and the Chicago Tribune obtained different results in their Illinois polls, the Times giving Roosevelt 52.34 per cent and Willkie 48.66 per cent of a total of 34,507 straw balolts. The Times had not completed its recanvass of Chicago wards, where it reported an increasing trend to Roosevelt. Tribune finals, with 128,055 straws counted, gave 49.2 per cent to Roosevelt, 50.8 to Willkie.

Other States polled by the Chicago Tribune gave:

Electoral Votes.	Straws.	Percentages. F.D.R.	W.W.
14 Indiana	23,038	45.7	54.3
11 Iowa	20,025	45.7	54.3
19 Michigan	26,830	49.4	50.6
12 Wisconsin	22,037	46.6	53.4

The Columbus Dispatch poll in Ohio gave Roosevelt 56,032, Willkie 65,045. The Roosevelt total included 38,546 regular Democrats and 2,013 Republicans. The Willkie total included 37,411 regular Republicans and 13,899 Democratic switches. The Dispatch poll obtained 99,685 votes by direct canvass of 592 cities and villages, plus 20,298 rural votes by mail, and 1,094 relief votes by mail.

Two Salt Lake City newspapers, the Tribune and the Telegram, undertook separate polls of Utah and agreed that Roosevelt probably would win the State.

The President held a small lead over Willkie in the Los Angeles Examiner straw poll, which was taken in theaters, churches, on street corners, and in hotels and other public places, giving the President 3,432 votes to Willkie's 3,071.

Both Parties Hope To Rule House

matter how sweeping his victory may be, he is practically certain to have a Democratic Senate.

If President Roosevelt is reelected, it appears to most unbiased observers that the existing Democratic majority may nevertheless be substantially reduced, possibly to such a low point that the Administration may lose what control of the House it has managed to retain during the past year.

Of the 435 House seats, 432 are at stake today—because Maine filled her three with Republicans in September.

In the present Congress, there are six vacancies, leaving a total of 429—filled by 258 Democrats, 167 Republicans, 2 Progressives, 1 Farmer-Laborite, and 1 American Laborite.

In the last predictions, the Democrats hopefully declared they would win up to 15 new seats, while the Republicans optimistically said they were looking forward to gaining from 52 to 80. They picked up 81 seats in the Congressional election of two years ago.

No Senate Turnover

The Senate could not experience a turnover this year. Now holding only 25 seats (including that of a Farmer-Laborite who is running this year as a Republican), the G. O. P. would have to win 24 new ones out of the 35 to be filled today. But since 9 of them are already held by Republicans and the Farmer-Laborite, and three are held by Southern Democrats who have little or no opposition, the Republicans could make a net gain of 23 at most—which would not be enough to give them a clear majority.

"Very little net change" in the House membership was the prediction of Representative Drewry, of Virginia, chairman of the House Democratic Campaign Committee. The Democrats, he said, would hold an "absolute safe majority."

Chairman Martin, of the Republican National Committee, said on the other hand that his party would pick up from 60 to 75 new seats and other Republicans claimed up to 80.

The G. O. P. needs only 51 more seats for an absolute majority in the House; but a smaller increase than that could give them the whip hand. Anti-New Deal Democrats have on more than one domestic issue in the past, cast their lot—or at least their ballots—with the Republicans.

G. O. P. Sees 7 Per Cent Gain

A 7 per cent gain in Republican strength—which has been indicated in some bye-elections—would mean an increase of 71 G. O. P. seats in the House. But, of course, the Republicans today have to contend with a ticket headed by President Roosevelt.

Among the States where Republicans hoped to win new House seats are California, Illinois, Maryland, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

The Democrats hope for gains in Pennsylvania, New England and the Ohio Valley. Sixty-five House seats are uncontested—58 Democratic and 6 Republican.

Although only one-third of the Senate membership (32 seats) is voted on every two years, four vacancies raise this year's total to 36, minus one Republican seat from Maine already filled.

35 Senators Up

Of the 35 Senators who will be chosen today, the Democrats are sure of winning the uncontested seats of Senators Andrews, of Florida and Bilbo, of Mississippi; Republican Senator Johnson, of California, and Democratic Senator Byrd, of Virginia, are certain to be returned—as both have only minority party opposition. Senator Byrd is opposed by a Communist and a Socialist.

Senator Green, of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial campaign committee, predicted a gain of one or two Democrats, while his Republican counterpart, Senator Townsend, of Delaware, said the G. O. P. would win six or seven new seats. The Republicans were banking particularly on Minnesota, Nebraska, Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

Navy Acquires Liner, Deals for Three More

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—As the Navy formally took title today to the Exochorda, 9,359-ton American Export liner, it was reported that negotiations were under way for purchase of the Exochorda's three sister ships, the Excambion, Excalibur and Exeter.

The three are now in the New York-Lisbon service.

The four liners, known as "the four aces," were built in 1930 and 1931 at Camden, N. J., at a total cost of $10,000,000.

Pryor Denies Leaflet Attack On Flynn

Repudiates Pamphlets Saying Catholics Favored For Government Jobs

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 4.—Samuel F. Pryor, eastern chairman of the Republican National Committee, today repudiated a pamphlet which, he said accuses Edward J. Flynn, National Democratic chairman, of favoring Catholics for Government jobs.

"The incredibly malignant depths to which a desperate political machine will resort is shown by the issue of this fraudulent pamphlet entitled 'Religious Intolerance Exposed,'" said Pryor. "This utterly malicious thing . . . was not issued by the Republican Party, or by anyone in any way connected with it—directly or indirectly."

He said the matter had been turned over the the "district attorney for investigation." The pamphlet, he said, apparently was intended for distribbution in the Bronx, of which Flynn is county Democratic leader.

Flynn had said earlier today that "forged" typewritten poscards stating that Dorothy Thompson, columnist, had switched her support from President Roosevelt to Wendell L. Willkie, were being sent to voters.

Flynn said the cards stated: "I have changed my mind and appeal to you to vote for Willkie for President." (Signed) Dorothy Thompson."

"This is another last-minute attempt to mislead the voters," said Flynn.

Anti-Roosevelt Circulars Released

Boston, Nov. 4 (AP).—The release of 40 sacks of mail, containing approximately 50,000 unsigned circulars attacking President Roosevelt, was ordered today by postal authorities in Washington after the literature had been withheld from distribution for several hours.

Chief Postal Inspector John J. Breslin said the circulars raised a question of whether religion was a factor in the ending of a long and close association of the President and former Postmaster General James A. Farley, and that delivery of the mail was delayed pending an investigation to determine if it should be barred as scurrilous and defamatory.

Breslin said the pamphlets were posted in New York. Breslin said 3,000,000 pieces of campaign literature were handled in the greater Boston area during the week-end.

Silver Spring Health Group Plans Meeting

Representatives of 13 civic organizations in the Silver Spring, Md., area which contribute to the Public Health Lay Committee of Silver Spring, will attend a special meeting of the group tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the Liquor Control Board Building, East-West Highway.

Mrs. Frank Neumann, chairman, has called the session so that various organizations may hear the accomplishments of the committee which is maintained solely by public support.

The 1941 budget for the Montgomery County Public Health Lay Council is expecting to be discussed by Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, at the meeting.

Mrs. Wiley to Speak At Takoma Park

Surety Official DeniesPolitical Fund Charges

Didn't Solicit Agents For Willkie, Wright Tells Gillette Probers

A Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. official yesterday told the Senate Committee on Campaign Expenses that there was "absolutely no truth" in charges that he had collected funds for the Willkie campaign at a meeting of insurance agents.

In a telegram to the committee, G. Hoyle Wright, the Metropolitan official denied allegations purportedly made by Sol A. Rosenblatt, counsel for the Democratic National Committee, that Wright had raised money and had told the agents they would have no business unless the present Administration were defeated.

Flatly denying the charge, Wright said that the meeting, held in Newark, N. J., was "to enthuse our agents and to call their attention to the fact that the best months of the year for the sale of business was October, November and December.

Meanwhile the committee, headed by Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, revealed that it had received a complaint from James A. Tumulty, jr., independent candidate for Senator from New Jersey, that his brother had been suspended from a Hudson County position because he attended hearings of the committee in Newark recently.

Tumulty alleged that his brother, John, deputy clerk in the Hudson County Board of Taxation for 17 years, had been suspended for "insubordination."

"John was in attendance at the hearing held by your subcommittee in Newark, having been excused by his superior to so attend," charged Tumulty. "It is commonly known that an employe of one of the courts of Jersey City—a 'stooge' of the local political machine—kept a notebook record of all attendance on each day that your subcommittee sat."

"The suspension of my brother John," Tumulty said, "is but another instance of the political oppression which weighs so heavily upon us, the citizens of Jersey City and Hudson County, and, indeed, of all of New Jersey, for 365 days in each and every year."

R. J. Thomas, president of the United Auto Workers of America (C. I. O.), urged the committee yesterday to investigate "activities of Mr. Willkie and his backers with regard to promises made and money spent in promoting his candidacy." Thomas alleged that Harold E. Talbott, "representing himself as coming from Willkie," intimated that he could become Secretary of Labor "if I declared for Willkie."

Senator Gillette said the committee would be ready to receive an affidavit "and any other matter bearing on the subject."

order.

Postmaster General Walker and Secretary Perkins, of the Labor Department, will vote in New York City in person. Secretary of War Stimson will vote at his home in Huntington, Long Island, and Secretary Knox, of Navy, left yesterday afternoon to vote in Chicago.

The others used absentee ballots, according to their aides. Several of the aides, independently, were inclined to use one stock phrase in answering queries about how their bosses would vote:

"That's something only he (the boss) or God could tell you."

Some agencies told their employes they could take sufficient time for voting without suggesting a limit. In offices where two-hour and half-day limits were suggested, officials pointed out that employes who remained overtime would probably not be scolded for going over the deadline by a few minutes.

Navy officials said yesterday that the new wage schedules for civilian employes in navy yards and other field establishments will become effective November 18.

The department announced that a report of the Navy Wage Board recommending adjustment of the schedules will be made public Thursday.

While Secretary Knox and other Navy officials have declined to discuss the wage changes, the American Federation of Labor has reported that the expected increase will be about $5,000,000 annually for the 100,000 workers in naval establishments.

The new schedule will not apply to white collar workers employed in the field service, who are covered by the Civil Service Pay Classification Act.

White House Staff as Silent As the Mice on Election Eve

'Twas the night before election and all through the White House not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse.

In fact, it was so quiet last evening at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, the mansion that all the shooting has been about recently, that the Independent Mice for Willkie Club and the Progressive Mice for Roosevelt League left off nibbling back copies of the Gallup Poll reports and scampered downtown for a little excitement.

The President was in Hyde Park, Mrs. Roosevelt was away. There were no house guests.

Early Takes Holiday

Stephen Early, the President's press secretary, his right knee showing no signs of that famous encounter in New York City, dropped in at his office during the morning, but left before noon to relax on the golf course, while the voters made up their minds.

Capt. Herbert L. Marcey, chief of the White House police, reported no incidents during the day except that some passersby sporting political buttons gazed more wistfully than usual at the portico of the Executive Mansion.

The house itself, freshly painted for whoever is to occupy it after January 3, showed no signs of the battle of words that has raged to decide who will be its tenant until 1945.

Col. Edmund W. Starling, chief of the White House Secret Service detail, who has furnished protection to a succession of Presidents, kept silent about his estimate of the election's outcome.

They "Protect" 'Em

"You elect 'em, I protect 'em," seemed to be his dictum.

James Sloan, Secret Service officer at the White House, spent part of the day wondering who his new boss would be and appeared to agree with Col. Starling's sentiments.

Rudolph Forster, chief White House clerk for many years, who wouldn't touch matters political with a 10-foot pole, took most of the day off, perhaps to look over 10-foot timbers.

A news correspondent, awaking from a deep sleep on the White House press room couch, produced the day's brainstorm.

He suggested a poll of the White House squirrels, to be conducted by setting out two piles of peanuts on the lawn marked with the names of W. W. and F. D. R. The squirrels would adjudge the winner of the squirrel poll by their attraction to their favored pile.

That, as the sage remarked, is democracy.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

ELECTION EVE BROADCAST—Showing the strain of a strenuous campaign, Wendell L. Willkie (right), is shown in New York as he made the first of three election eve broadcasts in which he addressed the women of America with a promise "not to send your husbands and sons and brothers to death on a European battlefield." At left is Oren Root, jr., chairman of the Associated Willkie Clubs.

The Last Words

New Deal, G.O.P. Use Big Guns Of Talent in Final Radio Duel

Dorothy Thompson, Stage, Screen Stars Go on Air With Flynn

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 4.—In a two-hour Nation-wide radio roundup on election eve, Democrats highlighted by President Roosevelt and including statesmen, writers and showfolk tonight made their final bid for the Chief Executive's reelection at America's polls tomorrow.

The President addressed his final words to a Nation living in "the sunlight and star light of peace" and said the people's right to choose their own governmental officers constituted "the most powerful safeguard of our democracy."

"After the ballots are counted," he added, "the United States of America will still be united."

Broadcast Spans Country

Radio wires strung from Hyde Park, N. Y.—where the President spoke—down to Washington, via New York City, and across through Chicago to Hollywood, picked up the voices of such notables as Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Henry A. Wallace, Alexander Woollcott, Walter Huston and Joan Bennett.

Other speakers were secretary of State Hull, Mayor LaGuardia, Marshall Field, Dorothy Thompson, Senator Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, and Carl Sandburg, author.

The tapping feet of Bill (Bojangles) Robinson, colored dancer, enlivened the program, as did the music of Benny Goodman and Count Basie. Irving Berlin led a Carnegie Hall audience in New York in singing his composition, "God Bless America," and Marian Anderson, colored singer, lent her operatic voice to "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

More entertainment and brief comments came from Hollywood, where Huston, Thomas Mitchell, Miss Bennett, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Melvyn Douglas, Gertrude Niesen and other movie performers joined in the program.

Byrnes Defends Third Term

At the N. B. C. studios here, Senator Byrnes declared that "it is one of the basic principles of American politics that the American people shall never be debarred from calling on their most able leader in time of crisis."

Dwelling chiefly on a defense of the third term issue, Byrnes asserted:

"This principle was established when the founding fathers refused to limit the eligibility of the President to reelection, because, as George Washington said, the Nation should not preclude itself from the services of any man who in some great emergency might be most capable of serving the public."

"Victory Meeting"

LaGuardia, master of ceremonies at a Carnegie Hall rally here, declared: "This is not a political meeting. The campaign is over. This is a victory meeting for the reelection of President Roosevelt."

As he left the hall he said, "I'm going downtown on the sidewalks of New York to pick up a few more votes."

Woolcott said that "a vote for Roosevelt is a vote for fundamental decency. We have in the White House a man who, like Winston Churchill, can put into words what is in all our hearts—our faith, our hope and our charity."

Field Calls Business Sound

Speaking from Washington, Wallace asserted he was "convinced that the problem that transcends all others is to obtain peace by adequate preparedness on all fronts" and outlined New Deal measures taken to set up "safeguards to keep the United States at peace."

Field, millionaire publisher and department store owner, said: "Business is more sound than it has been for years. Roosevelt has laid down certain rules. Business can and will prosper under those rules. It would be unthinkable treachery to call off those rules."

Miss Thompson charged that the Republicans had "on their side the Stalinists, the Nazi boys and the Fascist boys" and added that "there is no question in my mind but that President Roosevelt intends to preserve democracy in the United States and restore it to the world."

Flynn Cites Experience

Democratic National Chairman Flynn, in an unscheduled speech on the program, said "it's not our purpose to question the patriotism or the motives of those who do not agree with us. Tonight, unreasoning partisanship means less than it ever did before."

Dewey, Lewis and Louis Among Luminaries On G. O. P. Program

New York (Tuesday), Nov. 5 (AP).—The campaign word battle raged on today into election day with Republicans, led by Wendell L. Willkie, having the final say over the national radio networks before voting began.

The Republican Presidential nominee, making his third broadcast within 24 hours, asserted the election "is not the end of our crusade—it is the beginning."

From all parts of the Nation, leading Republican campaigners joined in the hour-long broadcast, which began at midnight and which had as its backdrop a rally in the Ritz Theater under auspices of the Associated Willkie Clubs of America and the citizens' information committee.

Dewey and Taft Speak

Speakers included Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft, both unsuccessful contenders for the Republican nomination; Alfred E. Smith, 1928 Democratic standard bearer; John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O.; Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California; Govs. Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, and Raymond Baldwin, of Connecticut; Joe Louis, the boxer; Bing Crosby, the singer; Mary Pickford, Raymond Moley, former Assistant Secretary of State in the Roosevelt Administration; Gen. Hugh Johnson, the columnist; Kathleen Norris, novelist, and Lewis W. Douglas, former New Deal budget director.

Concluding the broadcast, Willkie said in a prepared talk that he had been "deeply moved by the loyalty of my fellow crusaders, and their faith in the cause for which I have been fighting.

"I want to ask you on this Election Day to remember only one thing: This is not the end of our crusade—this is the beginning. United we stand, divided we fall. Let us be once again a Nation united."

"We Have Fought Hard"

Willkie said earlier in the program that if he were elected "we will start this crusade together as a united nation—to return to the things that our God-fearing fathers held dearest: Hard work, thrift, charity, honesty, and above all, peace through strength."

Declaring that "we have fought fairly for the cause we believe in," the nominee added:

"We are fighting to make sure that in the words of Lincoln, 'this nation under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

In his address, which, like most of the other prepared talks was limited to one minute, former Gov. Smith declared that he had never seen "any candidate at any time who has gone through all kinds of mud-slinging, whispering campaigns and undercover smears and can still keep his temper and good manners like Wendell Willkie has . . .

"Win, lose or draw, Wendell Willkie has set this country an old-fashioned example of clean fighting and decency."

Senator Taft said that weather reports indicated there might be rain and snow in some parts of the country today and urged all to "get out and vote . . . no matter how bad the day is."

Dewey Calls New Deal Failure

Dewey asserted that the New Deal's record "is a record of failure—one tragic failure after another" and asked whether the voters would "break the unwritten law of our country and jeopardize the foundations of our Democratic way?"

Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., of the Republican National Committee, in charge of the radio rally, said that the people "are crying for a new leader—and they will not be denied. The battle of America is almost won."

Statements from other speakers included:

Crosby—"I personally am against the third term and plenty of other people out here (in California) are too . . . Clark Gable, Frank and Ralph Morgan, Otto Kruger, Lionel Barrymore, Edward Arnold, Jimmy Stewart."

Post to Speed Election News To Capital

Searchlight Signals, Scoreboard, Radio To Announce Results

The whirring presses on the first floor of The Post will be aided by six auxiliary services today in speeding election returns to a waiting Washington.

Radio broadcasts, telephone service, searchlight signals, theater bulletins, a huge scoreboard and a loudspeaker will all be used to channel to the public play-by-play returns as they reach The Post from thousands of correspondents covering the country's every precinct.

As the State-by-State reports rushed over the wires by the three great press associations—Associated Press, United Press and International News Service—are torn from 17 teletype machines in the city room, messengers will race the totals to an antiaircraft searchlight battery across the street from the Post.

Beams to Tell Story

A stationary beam across the White House will mean that Roosevelt is leading. One in the opposite direction will mean Willkie is ahead. If the outcome is determined before midnight, a waving beam will be used.

Beginning at 8 p. m., national returns will be broadcast over Station WJSV with cut-ins from the city room of The Post, carrying comment by two Post reporters: William V. Nessly will analyze the national returns and Joseph Mathias will discuss the trends in neighboring States.

Special Post correspondents in seven neighboring counties of Maryland and Virginia will telephone running accounts of voting there to the city room for radio broadcast and relay to Columbia Broadcasting System and Associated Press election headquarters.

Telephone Queries

An expansion of telephone facilities will make it possible for callers to get immediate service. Eight telephone operators will be on hand with the latest returns after 6 p. m. Two phone numbers will handle incoming calls: National 4200 and National 1885.

A giant illuminated scoreboard in front of The Post building will be kept up to the minute with State-by-State returns. Electoral vote totals will be tabulated at each posting of new results. A loudspeaker in front of The Post will announce the latest developments.

All Loew's theaters in Washington will receive bulletins for announcement from the stages.

The searchlights will be operated from 8 p. m. to midnight by the 260th Coast Artillery of the District National Guard.

DO THIS 30 MINUTES AFTER EATING

TO ALKALIZE EXCESS STOMACH ACIDS FAST

Quick relief from Acid Indigestion, Nausea and Headaches this remarkable Phillips' Way.

No need now to be afraid to enjoy the food you like. If you expect acid indigestion after meals, follow this simple routine.

Take two teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia a half hour after you leave the table. Or, if you're not at home, take two Phillips' Tablets, which have the same neutralizing effect.

This gives you a thorough "alkalization" just at the time excess stomach acids are developing . . . and does the job in a few minutes. No nausea or embarrassing "gas", none of that uncomfortable fullness, or stinging heartburn. You're surprised at how wonderful you feel.

Try this way—especially if you have been using some slower or less effective way to overcome acid stomach. The Phillips' Method may be a revelation and solve your problem.

SIGNS OF ACID INDIGESTION
Heartburn	Sour Stomach
Nausea	"Acid", Headache
No Appetite	"Logginess"
"Gas"	Tired feeling in morning

When you buy ask for and make sure you get the real Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Note the words "genuine Phillips'" on both bottle and tablets box.

Liberty And Unity

The tumult and the shouting dies. The fury of partisan debate is hushed as more than 50,000,000 Americans go to the polls to exercise their rights as free men in a free Nation.

Within a few brief hours the Presidential campaign of 1940 will have passed into history. All that remains is for the votes to be cast and to be counted. We shall know before the sun rises on another day whom the people have chosen to lead them during the next four years.

They will not be easy years; they may not be happy ones. Not since the moment of its founding has the United States faced a more critical international situation than it does today. Over wide areas of the civilized world the spirit of liberty and democracy has been trampled under foot by ruthless dictators who seek, with all the malevolent instruments of subjugation and destruction which they command, to widen the area of their dominance.

Not for a moment can this Nation assume that we shall be spared. Not for a moment can we afford to slow up our preparations for defense. By the same token the passions aroused by the campaign which has just ended must not be perpetuated. That would be the road to ruin.

In Germany, Italy, Russia and Japan liberty has been crushed in the name of unity. But in the eyes of the people of this country no such choice is necessary. Liberty in this land of ours is not the antithesis of unity but its complement. We are united because we are free; we are free because we are united.

During the past weeks the clamor of contradictory voices may have given the unwary the impression that we are a divided people. Nothing is further from the truth. What divides Americans is not differences regarding principles but only differences regarding the ways and means by which these principles are to be preserved and perpetuated. And whoever wins, be it Franklin D. Roosevelt or Wendell L. Willkie, will be the President of all the people.

In the whole armory of democratic practice there is nothing finer or more inspiring than the acceptance by the minority, without rancor or reserve, of the decision expressed by the majority. And never has it been more necessary than it is at present for the people of the United States to close ranks.

The people of this Nation are Americans before they are Republicans or Democrats. They share a common faith and a common destiny. They cannot afford to perpetuate the bitterness which the campaign may have engendered. All the violent wrangling of the past weeks must be put behind us. The American people must march forward unitedly into the stormy and difficult days that lie ahead, giving unstinted devotion to the principles upon which this Nation was founded and which more than ever it symbolizes to the world.

Long ago Melanchton said: "In necessary things, unity; in doubtful things, liberty; in all things, charity." Exemplifying that spirit, the United States will remain a beacon of freedom to sorely distressed mankind—the hope of the world.

Just An Accident

Inquiry into the cause of the airplane disaster at Lovettsville, Va., last August which caused the death of 25 persons has yielded no positive results. The Civil Aeronautics Board had nothing on which to base its findings except the evidence of a few eyewitnesses of the tragedy and the testimony of experts who examined the fragments of the smashed plane. Notwithstanding the handicaps under which the inquiry was conducted, the board concluded that the accident was not due to structural or mechanical failure, fire, rain or sabotage.

It appears, therefore, that the crash was one of those unavoidable, unforeseeable accidents that occur from time to time to travelers by land, sea or in the air. However, the board has not been content to return a verdict of accident from causes unknown which might have been justified under the circumstances. Instead it has speculated about the probable causes of the accident and in so doing has opened the way for a study of new safety devices to guard against possible future disasters under stormy conditions like those encountered by the doomed plane.

Believing it to be probable that pressure waves set up by lightning broke windows, and shocked and maybe blinded the pilots, the board recommends study of such phenomena. It also urges immediate reporting of unusual weather conditions. Thus an accident which apparently could not be prevented may become a starting point for the development of protective devices that will avert future disasters that now must be classified as "acts of God."

The necessity of such an inquiry was tragically underlined, soon after the report on the Lovettsville disaster was issued, by the crash of an airliner near Centerville, Utah, with a loss of ten lives. Thus the record of perfect safety achieved by American civil aviation has again been marred.

Democracy In Action

American Presidential elections have always been great events. For the choice of an Executive of the Nation by means of secret ballots dramatically symbolizes government by the people. As millions go to the polls today, however, few will be oblivious to the extraordinary significance of this 1940 election.

Commentators have frequently observed that today's balloting will be watched with keen interest in all parts of the world. That fact cannot be explained simply by the eagerness of two continents at war to know what will be the attitude of the United States toward those conflicts. Everyone who has followed the campaigns of President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie understands that their foreign policies differ only in minor details.

Both candidates have pledged themselves to build up our defenses with all possible speed. Both are eager to extend greater help to Great Britain in her struggle against annihilation by the totalitarian powers. The British have no reason to fear that a change of administration in Washington would be disadvantageous to their cause. Germany, Italy and Japan know that the hostility of the American people toward their aggressive wars would be no less intense under Mr. Willkie than under Mr. Roosevelt.

It is a happy circumstance that the United States is thus presenting a united front to the world so far as the major principles of our foreign policy are concerned. But that fact should minimize interest abroad in our great political contest. How shall we explain the world-wide interest in an American election involving chiefly domestic issues?

To be sure the novelty of such a contest in this era of war, dictatorship and puppet governments gives today's balloting unusual prominence. But something much deeper than casual human interest in rare happenings underlies this watchful waiting for the American electorate to speak. Actually the world will scrutinize our political drama of today in search of evidence that democracy is degenerating or regaining its virility.

Friends of representative government everywhere will take new hope from the mere fact that our elective system continues to function vigorously. In the midst of a world crisis issues of the most momentous character have been freely and extensively debated from the public platform. An able, energetic and influential opponent has challenged the policies of the Administration in all parts of the country, except the Far South. In recent weeks the President has responded to this challenge with an earnest appeal for a vote of confidence on the basis of his record.

Aside from the activities of the two major candidates, hundreds of men and women seeking election to Congress, thousands of party workers and millions of citizens have thoughtfully discussed the grave issues confronting the Nation. Farmers, factory hands, little business men, industrialists, professional men, housewives and students have been made to realize that the future of this great free country rests in their hands. Today their collective judgment as to what our national policies should be will be recorded through the ballot box.

Here is an inspiring demonstration of democracy in action. It is especially pleasing in this confused and revolutionary age to see the rank and file of any large nation registering its will. Yet democracy consists of something more than the mechanics of voting. France went to the polls, and later descended into chaos. Today's election is likely to stand out prominently in the history of free government only if it affords evidence that the American people are ready to face the hard realties of our day.

Democracy the world over has been soft. It has refused to face facts, even when their ugly meaning has become dangerously obvious. Frequently it has been more concerned with the maintenance of certain standards and luxuries than with preservation of its own existence. To what extent is American democracy awake to this peril? How fully have we learned the lesson that work and sacrifice for the common good are essential to our national safety and to freedom within our own boundaries?

It is inevitable that the election returns and the conduct of the Government after the election should be scanned for answers to these questions. Perhaps the answers will not be immediately apparent regardless of which candidate wins. But one thing is certain: The festival of debate in which the American people have participated has brought us much closer to a common understanding of the colossal forces that are shaping the national destiny.

No Lightning Rhythm

"The Italian advance," says an official Italian news agency report, "failed to acquire lightning rhythm because of bad weather prevailing for several days and because of bad roads . . . swampy strips interrupted here and there by dynamite mines exploded by the Greek rear guard."

After eight days of fighting this is the first frank admission by the Italians that their drive on little Greece has not gone according to plan. Undoubtedly Mussolini expected to carry out a successful blitzkrieg, in the German manner, against a foe inferior to Italy in numbers of fighting men and equipment.

This inferiority is certain to put Greece at a disadvantage in the long run, unless in the meantime the Greeks receive large reinforcements from the outside. In the meantime, however, they have managed to demonstrate such a high degree of fighting skill as not only to stall the Italian drive but also to carry out successful counterattacks in some areas of the fighting zone. That is why Mussolini's press finds it necessary to attribute Italy's lack of success thus far to the weather and the roads, factors which should have been anticipated.

The war in Greece is still in its preliminary stage. Italy has great reserves of manpower which she can, if necessary, throw into the scales. And behind Italy is Germany, with the most powerful army of modern times. Under the circumstances the ultimate outlook for the Greeks is hardly promising. All the more credit to them, therefore, for the doughty resistance they have put up! The spirit of the men of Thermopylae still burns brightly in Greece as it did many centuries ago.

Squaw Rule

Black Hawk and Sitting Bull are turning in their graves. From Virginia to the Plains, the braves of the old confederations are mourning in a ghostly sough of wind through the forests. Only Powhatan rests easy, for he understood before he died the encroachments of civilization upon masculine prerogatives.

It was a man's world that Columbus and his predecessors discovered in this hemisphere. The Indian of that day did not have to ask his wife when he wanted to go hunting. Nor did he have to skin the buck when he brought it home—he merely threw it at her feet. She cooked the meals, tanned hides and tilled the soil. She built the wigwam and, when they moved out of it, she plodded behind with the household goods, while her husband rode unencumbered. Whoever saw a picture of a squaw on a horse?

Now all that is in the past. The Red Man's woman has deserted the cooking pot for the council fire. In some communities, the Office of Indian Affairs reports, Indian women hold more elective positions than do the men.

Only Powhatan, of all the old chiefs, had a taste of what was to come. His daughter interfered with the execution of tribal justice and John Smith. Now the revolution is general. The Indian, like the white man, goes home to a dinner of cold potatoes because his wife is out campaigning.

The best protection against the chilling winds of life is a heavy cloak of stupidity.

Revision Of Hymnals

From the Des Moines Register

The Protestant Episcopal Church will probably include in the next revision of its hymnal one of the Negro spirituals, "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord!" This, of course, is a departure from rigid, conservative standards.

But a hymn is intended to serve as a means of worship, an expression of devotion, an uplifting of the soul in aspiration and petition, and all these emotions suffuse the Negro spirituals. The chants and hymns of centuries ago are separated from these Negro songs by a wide interval of time, but both fulfill a common intent.

All the Protestant churches revise their hymnals from time to time, reflecting the changes in sentiment and emphasis of successive generations and constant betterment of the music to which hymns are set.

Revision is no easy task. A commission of churchmen and laymen has been at work on the Episcopal book for three years. Completion of the work may require two or three years more.

In nothing is the essential unity of Protestantism better illustrated than in the hymnals used by various denominations. The Episcopal hymnal naturally contains a predominant number of hymns written by members of that communion, but it also includes songs by Martin Luther and Oliver Wendell Holmes; James Montgomery, the Moravian; George Duffield, eminent Presbyterian; Philip Schaff, the scholarly historian of the American Reformed Church; and the Wesleys, founders of Methodism. Cardinal Newman's "Lead Kindly Light" is there, to

"Later Than You Think"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial, "It Is Later Than You Think," you state ". . . every minute is priceless in the race for proper defense of this Nation and help for Great Britain." In the spirit of that statement, I should like to add a supplement to the views expressed in your editorial.

Military strategists have made it quite clear that the loss of the British navy would leave us at the mercy of the war dogs. The leaders of both sides in this Presidential contest have urged all aid to Great Britain consistent with nonbelligerency. Aid to Britain has not been an issue in this campaign—that is, not until the last few days.

What has happened since is alarming. We begin to observe the unfolding of a contemptible conspiracy to stab the last European democracy in the back for the sole purpose of deriving a partisan advantage in the Presidential campaign. The war-mongering accusations now being hurled at the President by certain Willkie partisans is an attempt to terrorize the electorate and win the election at any cost.

Mr. Roosevelt's "intervention" in Europe actually consisted of small crumbs of comfort for men and women dying for what we consider to be a guiding principle of Government. Rather than discredit by cunning innuendo such aid as has been extended, it would be far more fitting and immeasurably more honest for the opposition to propose methods of maximizing our aid to Britain without actual involvement in the war.

It really is later than we think.

'Informed Well'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Senator William Lindsay, a Gold Democrat during the Bryan campaign for free silver and a recognized authority on constitutional law, was asked by resolution of his State (Kentucky) Legislature to resign, what happened? He replied to Kentucky that he was in the United States Senate to represent the true interests of his country and of his State and not the passing vagaries of a Legislature and would not resign.

How often do we really get the informed will of the people? A Presidential election is worth all it costs in time and money and turmoil. It does lead to the people becoming informed on the issues. But the extent to which the informed will of the people expresses itself in the ballot is still at times an unknown quantity—in the case of many, private interests, such as those of officeholders and dole-recipients, may prevail over consideration for the public welfare.

Mr. Willkie's most recent mistake is in quoting, for partisan purposes, severe criticisms of the Roosevelt Administration made several years ago by Mr. Winston Churchill who is now leading England's desperate fight against world disaster. Is this an honest way to encourage the Administration to help England, the dire necessity of which help Mr. Willkie fully recognizes?

Compulsory Service

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now, that compulsory registration has been made the law of the United States, and those men within the age scope of that law have registered their names, what next? These men, selected from our ranks to shoulder the burden of defense and war, by the yes, and rules, and implements of death, dictated and commanded by those majority leaders in key positions must, gamble their lives for what? Does it not seem unjust to dictate to and enslave these men for a task, for which those sponsoring are unfit and unwilling to perform?

Some comments are found about the consideration of deferred men, and the moratorium of debts. How far will the moratorium reach and what will the effects be? For the year, who pays the pay-off payments on the home, the property taxes, depreciation of property, property insurance premium, life insurance premium, utilities for use at home, and living expenses for those at home? There are undoubtedly other obligations, which will appear, and unless they are met the loss of property might result.

Unless the United States makes good all loss of incomes to those individuals to be called into service, it seems that much business and industry will suffer. With all this failure and decrease in business, many small business enterprises would be caught in the claws of the dragon of failure; yet all this time, the national debt of the United States will grow larger and larger from the increasing cost of a national defense program, for which no surplus money was set aside in the past.

What then, with an ever increasing public debt and lessening earning power, can the harvest be? Eventually, logically thinking, the decreased ability to pay would soon place the Nation beyond its ability to redeem its financial obligations. It is not sound business practice to invest money in any business operating at a constant loss, and neither would we have faith in a national monetary system, which failed to make good its promises. The debt snowball would have gathered too much increase while rolling along through the years, and a momentum beyond human power to stop, before it met with destruction.

Historical Precedent

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Immediately following the nomination of Mr. Wendell Willkie, the Republican Party publicity department concentrated its attention on the so-called third-term issue.

If their attention is called to the fact that as recently as 1912, no less an outstanding Republican and great President as Theodore Roosevelt sought a third term, the answer is that Theodore Roosevelt did not serve two full terms, having served his first term following the death of the martyred President McKinley. If the late Chief Justice and former President, William Howard Taft is quoted on his endorsement for a third term for the late President Calvin Coolidge, the selfsame answer is given: Mr. Coolidge did not serve two full terms.

But what answer can the Republicans make in the instance of the important Republican President, the great general of the Civil War, Ulysses S. Grant? General Grant served two full terms and came only within a few votes of obtaining the Republican nomination for a third term.

But for the perseverance of the then opponents of Gen. Grant who kept the vote up for 30 ballots, Gen. Grant would have been nominated on the Republican ticket.

Defines Meaning Of Democrat

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have grown very tired of late of picking up my newspaper and reading that some other Republican or ex-Democrat has used the name of Thomas Jefferson and Jeffersonian Democracy in an attempt to draw Democrats into the Willkie column. Using the name of one of the greatest liberals that ever lived to serve the ends of conservatism may be described as telling the truth to make people believe a lie.

A liberal is one who can see the need for and take steps to bring about change. He is one who strives always a little nearer to perfection. Now, whether a man is a conservative or a liberal depends entirely upon the time in which he lives, upon his attitude toward the set of circumstances existing during his time. You can not take what a man said and apply it to a situation 150 years later without giving an untrue picture of what that man was and what he believed. That is simply quoting out of context.

Thomas Jefferson was not one to sit and issue dicta on what the Democratic Party should always believe in. He had a job to do, namely, to ameliorate as best he could the inequalities of wealth, political power and social position existing at that time. And his principles were advanced solely as weapons in his attack on those inequalities.

There were men in that day such as Alexander Hamilton who wished the Constitution to allow the President to hold office for life. They were the men of wealth and position who expected to benefit by such an entrenchment of the then existing order; hence Jefferson's assertion that two terms were sufficient for the President to serve.

The Hamiltonians were anxious to make the Government as centralized and strong as possible because in that way the old regime could be assured of a stable foundation to its power; hence Jefferson's assertion that "that Government is best which governs least." In those days the industrial revolution had not yet come to America; this country was essentially a Nation of farmers. But the farmers were suffering from the laws enacted by the merchant class, then the ruling element in America. Out of this came Jefferson's belief that this Nation would be happiest and that democracy would work best if the country were composed of and if the political power reposed in small land-owning farmers.

I wish to emphasize that all these so-called cardinal principles of Jeffersonian Democracy were set forth by Jefferson as part of his struggle for the economic, political and social realignment that he believed necessary and justified. For promoting these ideas, for establishing religious freedom in Virginia, for abolishing the laws of entail and primogeniture, for writing the Declaration of Independence, for supporting the Revolution, for founding the Democratic Party, and for all his championing of the underprivileged, Jefferson was condemned by "the wise and the good" of his day as a radical and traitor to his class and country.

If he were alive today he would be condemned for daring to take action against the dictators, for leading the country toward state socialism, for being a New Dealer, for being a traitor to Jeffersonian Democracy, no doubt.

Transportation In Old Georgetown

WHAT IS TERMED rapid transit was, of course, unknown in Georgetown in 1880 and 1890. But what the lines of transportation lacked in speed they made up for in variety of character. Roughly speaking, there were four ways of getting out of town in those days—by stage, by horse-drawn street cars, by ferry boat or by canal boat.

Twice daily the lumbering vehicle known as the "Tenallytown stage" left the southern end of High Street (now Wisconsin Avenue) and bumped itself clumsily up the long hill past the Catholic cemetery, over cobblestones, beyond the fire-engine house until it struck the soft dirt road that finally terminated in the Maryland town that gave the stage its name.

Early morning and midafternoon the driver of the coach snapped his whip as a signal for the sleepy pair of horses to start their trek, and as the journey to the point just beyond the District Line consumed a little over an hour each way, one couldn't expect more than two trips to be made daily.

The conveyance was a vanlike carrier, crude and comfortless, without beauty and without allure. If passengers were small, they had no difficulty in climbing the three steps at the end of the stage, and then, seated on one of the length-running uncushioned benches, they swung their feet in rhythm with the horses' pace as they left Georgetown behind.

There were two lines of cars in those days, known as the "upper" and "lower." The one on Bridge (now M) Street was a cable car, while the upper one, running on West (now P) Street was a horse-drawn affair.

If summer evenings dragged a bit in that period, the thoughtful head of a family often suggested a street car ride to Lincoln Park on the "upper" line. The cars were open at that season, and the trip, which consumed most of an evening, was considered a pleasant diversion. The cable-cars, operated by an underground propelling chain, required great powers of balance on the part of the passenger, for as one entered at the rear, and as the car started, he was jerked violently forward in the direction of the boxed-in seat of the motorman, sometimes landing on the gentleman's shoulders.

In winter both lines of cars, lacking any heating arrangement, were insulated from the cold by thick layers of straw on the floor, which at least prevented chilblains among the passengers. But it also led to the necessity for lady travelers, on alighting, of standing still a few minutes to pick, or have picked, straws from the hem of their skirts before proceeding on their way.

A walk down to Water Street brought one to the landing of the ferry boats. One ride was offered for 5 cents. The trip landed the passengers across the Potomac on Analostan Island, and took only a few minutes. The island in those days was a somewhat crude athletic field furnished with bleachers facing a quarter-mile track, broad-jump pits and pole-vault runway.

Western High School, then in the Curtis Building, on O Street, as well as Central High School, held their spring and fall meets on this field, and proud parents, brothers and sisters filled up the ferry boat time after time, in order to witness these exciting games.

Between Georgetown and Cumberland a few canal boats plied their leisurely way, lines of transportation at this time being more picturesque than sanitary. Their raison d'etre was to bring coal from the western Maryland mountains to the Capital. The trip being a tedious one that took several days, the Captain's family all went along with Pa.

It was fun for Georgetown youngsters to see a boat that frequently had the family wash strung out on lines across the decks, while Pa sat smoking on the fo'c's'le, with Ma and the children hanging over the side watching the antics of a small Negro boy who was trying to encourage a pair of mules which pulled the craft.

This, I say, was the regulation use and setting of the canal boats. But occasionally one of the Georgetown churches would hire a canal boat on which to give its Sunday School an all-day outing, with a midday picnic at Cabin John's Bridge, and a return trip in the cool of the evening. When this happened the Captain and his family, together with their wash, were shunted off somehow, into the background, and the vessel cleaned up enough to satisfy the requirements. The sanitary arrangements, however, were not exactly impeccable, and so this form of entertainment was later abandoned.

The Tenallytown stage leading toward the north, ferry boats to the south, horsecars to the east and canal boats to the west; there were many ways of getting out of Georgetown. But if one went, how glad one always was to return!

Fair Enough

Brazen Fakery

THE DESPERATE and brazen fakery of the New Deal in attempting, at the last hour, to disown a long record of collaboration with the Muscovite conspirators against this Nation is reminiscent of Adolf Hitler's equally abrupt ripening of love for the bloody-handed brigand whom he had described a thousand times as the scum of the earth. From the President down to his obedient lackey, by name Robert Jackson, with the notable exception of Harold Ickes, the Administration has taken well-timed political licks at old comrades, nor hesitated to use the Department of Justice for this sordid party purpose.

Almost at the same time that President Roosevelt was discovering evidence of mutual interest on the part of the Republicans and the Communists' New York paper Mr. Jackson made up his mind that the wife of Earl Browder must be deported to Russia for reasons which have long been known. The order could have been issued long ago or it could have been deferred until after election, but with obvious purpose Mr. Jackson timed his action so as to prepare a background for the leader's speech in Brooklyn.

MR. ICKES hasn't yet renounced his old Communist luncheon hosts of the Lawyers Guild and Newspaper Guild, but he is a frugal man who would not repudiate without a grim spiritual struggle two organizations which had treated him to the conventional fried chicken, buckshot peas and sliced pineapple mayonnaise. Mrs. Roosevelt, however, made her political move some time ago when, to her comrades in the Newspaper Guild, in which she is a princess of privilege, neither eligible for membership nor bound by the painful duty to strike and picket, she delivered a soft rebuke.

After all this time, after loading labor relations with stooges and fellow travelers and trading many favors with Browder's bitter anti-American group, the leader suddenly realized that, in the new temper of the Nation, they had become a liability. Thus the attempt to identify Browder with Wendell Willkie, of all men, and the drastic and personally brutal ruling against a woman of no known political importance whose husband once boasted that in a happier day, "when these gentlemen thought they could use the support of the Communists, we became almost respectable."

"Not quite respectable," Browder said. "Almost. They knew us then. They knew almost everything about us."

THE LEADER and the subleaders of the New Deal had every opportunity to know not almost everything but all about the Communists, and it need not be doubted that they did. Mrs. Roosevelt took her knitting bag to their youth congresses. Gave them political aid and comfort before the Dies Committee and, further to discredit this agency of the United States Congress in the performance of a hard and troublesome duty, selected a number of the youth to be her guests at the White House.

Although the Newspaper Guild was crawling with Communists, Mrs. Roosevelt chose to resign from the D. A. R. in protest against a policy which was denied and never proved, but to remain a member of the guild and, moreover, to remain silent on the malicious and systematic harassment of American newspaper people by the Kremlin's men.

The WPA in New York was infested with them, to the constant distress of deserving Americans, and the Communists were encouraged to propagate their political infection across the whole land on screen and stage at the expense of the American people, again with Mrs. Roosevelt's warm personal and political consideration.

THERE IS USUALLY a little time lag between such changes of party line and the comprehension of their meaning by the public. With election so close it may be impossible to detect in time the true purpose of their sudden repudiation, which may be only a temporary parting by mutual consent, to be followed by reunion later.

In the same hall in which President Roosevelt denounced the "unholy alliance" of radicals and reactionaries there also appeared his ardent supporter, Mr. Generoso Pope, the governor general of Mussolini's New York colony, heavy with honors from the hand that held the dagger, who now urged a third term for his American leader, to vigorous applause.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

On The Strength Of Democracy

WHEN THE RETURNS are in, just about half the people, those who voted for the loser, will have to ask themselves how seriously they believe the campaign orators who told them that democracy was lost if their opponents won the election. Much will depend on how the losers answer this question. If they believe seriously that Mr. Willkie is the head and front of an unholy alliance of reactionaries and revolutionists or that Mr. Roosevelt is the center of an effort to set up a dictatorship and establish national socialism, then the loser cannot accept the result of this election as Americans have always, with the dreadful exception only of the election of 1860, accepted the results of all their elections.

But as a matter of fact the nation will accept the result because accepting the result is the deep habit of this, the oldest and most solidly established democracy on earth. The nation will accept the result because the people know in their hearts that the rhetorical threats and the rhetorical promises which they have just been hearing belong to the routine of campaigning in the month of October before election, and that for every grain of truth these political words contain there are ten grains of buncombe. Were it not for this habitual commonsense, which rests upon three centuries of experience on this soil with lawful and responsible government, elections here would not be elections; they would be, as in so many other lands where democracy is not deeply rooted in habit, the prelude to civil war. This commonsense will now prevail. Though the flaming charges of the past ten days would, if they were seriously believed, leave the nation hopelessly divided and, therefore, paralyzed, the event will show, I believe, a great popular rally to the President elect and no popular amiability to the losers who sulk or for winners who remember their grudges.

THE CHARGE that one party would destroy and the boast that the other party alone can save democracy rests upon a misunderstanding of democracy. For it is not political parties that save democracy but, on the contrary, it is a democratic system which saves the nation from the excesses of the political parties. This, if I may say so, is what my journalistic neighbors, Mr. Mark Sullivan and Miss Dorothy Thompson, seem temporarily to have overlooked.

For both of them, it seems to me, have become falsely impressed by analogies between undesirable tendencies here where democracy is alive and horrifying accomplished facts abroad where democracy has been killed. They forget that the precise function of a living democracy is to prevent undesirable tendencies from becoming horrifying accomplished facts. They seem to think that the desirable tendencies can kill democracy whereas, in fact, it is only when democracy has already been killed that the undesirable tendencies become uncontrollable.

MR. SULLIVAN'S method of reasoning is to point out similarities between aspects of the New Deal and aspects of the totalitarian systems, and then to argue that the similarities will become greater and greater until at last the two systems are identical. But Mr. Sullivan has, I submit, misread the history of our times, having failed to see that as long as democracy remains in operation, there will be effective resistance to the tendencies which he so rightly deplores. No democracy has ever voted itself into a totalitarian system; all totalitarian revolutions have first had to destroy democracy and none has ever dared to, restore democracy, no matter how popular it pretended to be.

The role of democracy is well exemplified by the episode of President Roosevelt's attempt to pack the Supreme Court— a case which Mr. Sullivan frequently cites, and correctly, to illustrate a most undesirable tendency towards unrestrained power within the New Deal. But what is important about that episode is that it was an episode, that the attempt to pack the Court failed because the opposition had a free press in which to rouse the people to the danger and a free Congress to reject the proposal. It was the living democracy of the American people which checked the tendency to unrestrained power, and it checked the tendency because the sovereign power remained in the democracy. That is why despotism can begin only if democracy has first been suppressed by a conspiracy or a coup d'etat.

MISS THOMPSON'S method of reasoning is the same as Mr. Sullivan's. She sees here evidences of the same ideological tendencies which existed in Germany and elsewhere before the rise of the dictators, and she does a great service to the nation in exposing and denouncing them. But I think she errs, and that she creates an atmosphere of unwholesome tension and debilitating nervous anxiety when she seems to think that a living democracy is destroyed by these tendencies, when she forgets that the essential function of a democratic system is to resist and destroy these tendencies. If there were any doubt that a democracy has within itself the power to resist and destroy them, then democracy is as dead as the dictators say it is. But democracy is not dead and it cannot even be killed finally, as the unrelenting but always inconclusive terrorism of the dictators proves day by day.

DOROTHY THOMPSON
Her "method of reasoning is the same as Mr. Sullivan's"

THE HISTORY of the past twenty-five years proves conclusively, I submit, that no democracy has ever been converted to accepting totalitarianism. No democracy has ever submitted to totalitarianism until it was suppressed by force. Russia, the first of the totalitarians, was never a democracy, of course, but even in Russia the lawful government, such as it was, did not give way to dictatorship until the country had suffered a catastrophic defeat in the World War and a coup d'etat in the big cities. Italy, the second of them, was nominally a victor but in fact a defeated nation in the World War, and it was not until a coup d'etat had deprived Italians of their liberties that the descent into totalitarianism began. Germany, the third of them, was betrayed and captured by a conspiracy which instituted totalitarianism when it had suppressed the civil liberties and representative government. The France of the Vichy government is the fourth of them—perhaps—and it was as a result of defeat and conquest that the French democracy was suppressed, and then only did we begin to hear of a totalitarian France. But who can doubt that if France could get rid of her conquerer, France would get rid of her would-be dictators?

Thus, it seems to me, the lesson is clear. Defend democracy against its external enemies so that it cannot be defeated or intimidated, maintain the authority of lawful government at home against all conspiracies and subversive elements, and within this armor of a strong defense and a strong law the democracy will work and will deal with all the tendencies and ideologies that present themselves. Cling fast to this simple truth and it will not be necessary to cry out that the wolf is at the door whenever a puppy barks.

Regardless Of The Vote

By Mark Sullivan

The War Goes On

THROUGHOUT this campaign, there has been one thing which the outcome would not materially change. This thing was not an issue—it was a condition. It was like the weather, or a great fire. Because it was not an issue, and by its nature could not be, the election could not settle it, nor even conclusively affect it. This thing would face us on the morning after election the same as during months before. For a single morning it might be swamped by the election returns. But, almost by the time of the afternoon papers, it would resume its place in the headlines—and resume its proportions as a thing we must face.

About the war—that is, about America's relation to the war—the two candidates did not materially differ. Both favored help to Britain. But agreed, substantially, about Japan and the Far Eastern area of the world-wide struggle. Both agreed that America should—as the frequent phrase was—"stay out of the war."

Mr. Roosevelt, in his phrasing of this position, was more subtle than Mr. Willkie. One of Mr. Roosevelt's early statements of his position was a masterpiece of that art which has been called "creating an impression without making a commitment." It was in his address to Congress last January. Mr. Roosevelt's words were:

"I can understand the feelings of those who warn the Nation that they will never again consent to the sending of American youth to fight on the soil of Europe. But, as I remember, nobody asked them to consent—for nobody expects such an undertaking. The overwhelming majority of our fellow citizens do not abandon in the slightest their hope and expectation that the United States will not become involved in military participation in the war."

Hearing that passage, hearing it the way Mr. Roosevelt spoke it, most of the public supposed that Mr. Roosevelt had committed himself to having no part in this war—committed himself absolutely, permanently, and completely.

BUT REREAD that passage, carefully. Mr. Roosevelt does not make any direct declaration of policy, no unequivocal commitment of himself. He does not talk directly about what he thinks. He talks about what others think—"those who," and "the overwhelming majority of our fellow citizens." He goes no farther than to convey the impression that he approves what some others think. And even in this indirect form, Mr. Roosevelt carefully limits what he says is the American "hope and expectation." The hope is not put, as many did put it, that America will not become involved in the war. The American hope, as Mr. Roosevelt describes it, is merely, and specifically that "the United States will not become involved in military participation in the war." What Mr. Roosevelt says America does not want to do is limited to "the sending of American youth to fight on the soil of Europe."

Mr. Roosevelt could live up fully to everything implied in those words—yet do everything short of actually sending an army to Europe. He could use the Navy, he could use an air force. He could do anything and everything short of one thing—short of sending an army to fight in Europe. That was the one definite implication which would appease American feeling. The one most disagreeable memory our people had of the Great War was our boys being sent to fight in Europe. Make them feel sure this would not be done, and they would not put their minds on much else.

MR. WILLKIE'S POSITION was much the same as Mr. Roosevelt's. Never send our boys to fight on the soil of Europe was the limitation he put on himself. Mr. Willkie did not manage it as subtly as Mr. Roosevelt. Neither in this nor in any other matter was Mr. Willkie subtle in his use of words. He was, on the contrary, awkward, to a degree that in some important respects confused the public and worked to his disadvantage. Though he seemed exact in his process of thought, he seemed fumbling in his use of the tools by which thought is expressed. When one sought contrast between the candidates one found it to some extent in Mr. Roosevelt's sophistication and subtlety, Mr. Willkie's simplicity, even awkwardness.

Mr. Roosevelt's management of the war, as a feature of the campaign, was, as politics, masterly. He used the war as his main justification for running for a third term. Then he walked with fine adroitness the tight-rope between the two schools of thought in his electorate. He so managed as to make the war work greatly in his favor.

Throughout the campaign, on the part of the candidates, and in Congress and elsewhere, the distinction was between sending an army to Europe, which we would not do—and all the other things, which we might do. Everyone who discussed the war—and was at once conscientious and at the same time careful—preserved that distinction. Precise choice of words was necessary. It would not do to say we would never send soldiers "abroad," because we might have to send them to the West Indies or South America, or Asiatic waters.

However, all this has little significance now, except as a disquisition on precision in the use of words. With the campaign ended, whoever is President, the war will be there. What we do about it will be determined by future conditions. In large part our course will not be our own choice, it will be forced upon us.

The East Indies And Japan

Attitude of U. S. Believed Decisive In Last Resort

By Arnold Vas Dias

LOADING COFFEE IN JAVA
Suspension of the profitable export business with Europe, writes Arnold Vas Dias, makes trade with Japan necessary to the Dutch islands

WITH THE TENSION in the Pacific increasing, the Netherlands East Indies are very much in the news. Some talk as if a Japanese attack on these islands is imminent.

Of course, if the war should finish by the Axis powers dictating their will to the rest of the world, Japan would certainly try to get her share. The Indies might then have a hard time to maintain their independence. But, seeing the marvelous resistance of the British and the temper of the people of America, who show themselves very much disinclined to give way to threats, it does not seem certain that Hitler and his brothers in aggression will be allowed to get the spoils they hope for. Japan, therefore, has to count with the realities of the situation in the Pacific as it presents itself today.

These realities are shaped, in the first place, by the outcome of the Battle of Britain.

The knowledge, which any would-be aggressor can possess, that the Netherlands East Indies are resolved and—what is more—are able to defend themselves against attack, is also a factor of the first importance. The Indies are relatively in a state of preparedness such that an attack on the islands, in order to provide any possible measure of success, would have to be undertaken by a major force. Can Japan, in its present position, afford to dispatch such a force so far from its bases on its risky errand? For the moment it seems doubtful.

THERE IS ALSO Australia, which cannot permit itself to look on if the Indies are threatened. The islands of the Indian archipelago shelter the Australian continent like a huge umbrella. Australia cannot but view the southern Pacific as a whole. Any change in these regions affects her vital interests.

But in the last resort it is the attitude which the United States is going to take against possible acts of further aggression in the Pacific, which will have a decisive influence on Japan's future action. There is no need to labor the point. The Administration's leaders have stated repeatedly that the United States cannot remain indifferent to actions upsetting the status quo in the Pacific. It is the measure, in which this standpoint is made convincingly clear to others, which will determine Japan's policy in the end.

For the moment the greater danger seems not to lie in warlike actions, but in the unchecked continuation of the process of nibbling and infiltration, which has already brought Japan into Indo-China, from whence, no doubt, further piecemeal advances are contemplated, if and when the opportunities present themselves. These are subtle ways of aggression, and it is not always easy to say at what stage the status quo has been disturbed.

As regards the Netherlands East Indies, this nibbling policy may take the shape of an attempt to force them into economic concessions which, under certain circumstances, they might find it difficult to refuse. In this connection it is only reasonable to make a clear distinction between Japanese aspirations towards domination of the Pacific and the general desire of the Japanese to create what one might call a closer Pacific economy. The first can under no condition be admitted by free peoples; the last seems to many Pacific nations a natural development, not necessarily directed against their interests. Japan's aspirations towards the development of mutual trade and economic intercourse are shared by them.

THERE IS NO reason for the assumption that the Netherlands East Indies have thrown in their lot with the British Empire. Of course, the German invasion of Holland, undertaken without the least provocation on the part of the Dutch, made them Britain's ally in the war against Nazi aggression. They intend to remain fighting on her side till the end, for well do they know that only by keeping up resistance, shall they regain their liberty. But in becoming Britain's ally they have not given up their politically independent position, nor—it may be added—have they been asked to do so.

It may perhaps be useful to clarify the status of the Indies. One fateful night in May of this year Queen Wilhelmina left Holland and came to London. She had shared the sufferings of her people, for whom she was the embodyment of their liberties. Now she was without a country, as the country was without its freedom. But in fact, she took freedom with her! If she, and the members of the Dutch government who followed her in exile, had fallen in the hands of the invader, then—indeed—confusion would have reigned. Now there was no ambiguity. Free Holland survived, and the legally constituted authority of the kingdom of the Netherlands, which comprises all wideflung Dutch territories in Asia and America, could continue to function unhampered. So the Indies are still masters of their destiny. One has only to compare this position with the unhappy one of some other territories to understand its importance.

THE WHOLE resources of the Dutch empire overseas are being flung into the struggle against Germany, and to sustain England's war effort. They are very important. The Indies are counted amongst the principal producers of rubber and tin. The finest bauxite in the world, from which aluminum is made, is found in these islands. Nickel exploration has also been undertaken with success. All these products are at the disposal of Britain.

The Netherlands East Indies guilder has joined the sterling block and that again has made fuller economic cooperation with Great Britain and the British dominions easier. But this does not justify the conclusion that the Netherland's East Indies form in practice an economic unit with the British group of nations.

There are two main reasons why the British commonwealth tries to keep as much as possible trade within itself. To safeguard the currency and to employ their full productive capacity for furthering the output of their war industries. These reasons do not apply to the Netherlands East Indies. The guilder is safe, thanks to a considerable export balance, which even during the lean years after 1937 ranged between 40 and 60 per cent and over. This position even has been strengthened by the impossibility of making obligatory payments, like interest and pensions, to the motherland.

AS REGARDS exports, the invasion of Holland caused trade relations of the Netherlands East Indies to be cut off with European countries. This involved practically one-third of the exports. New channels of trade must, therefore, be found and even if exports to Britain and its dominions are increased, as they are also to the United States (the creation of the United States war reserves even meant an increase of the production percentages for tin and rubber), it will still not be an easy matter to regain in other markets what has been lost elsewhere.

Moreover, the real production of the Indies has, as a consequence of many restrictions, remained far below capacity. It is quite improbable that the Indies would not be able to meet any demand. As a matter of fact the maximum possible export will be determined more by the available shipping space than by production capacity. To limit, therefore, the export to countries with which friendly trade relations are being maintained would neither be desirable for currency purposes, nor be necessary in the interest of the allied war effort.

Under the present conditions extension of exports is an economic necessity. There is no reason at all for the Japanese to fear, as some of them pretend to do, that the Indies will cut off all their exports to Japan, and there is no need for the Japanese to ask for any safeguards in this connection.

If there exists real confidence in Japan's intentions, a solution of all pending economic problems between both countries can be reached without difficulty.

Many conflicting reports have circulated during the last few days about the conversations which have been taking place at Batavia with Japanese delegates concerning new agreements for the delivery of oil to Japan. Representatives of American and Dutch oil interests were present at these talks. They have not yet been concluded, although it seems likely that a short-term arrangement will soon be reached. There is, however, no question of alleged British moves to monopolize the entire Netherlands Indies production of high octane gasoline. It is true that this production has been sold in its entirely, but the relevant contracts were signed months ago; it was a commercial transaction from which political pressure was entirely absent.

AS FOR THE policy the Indies are following, one may assume that they will keep as long as at all possible to the principles which have always guided them, namely, looking themselves after their own defense, not asking for or accepting beforehand any promise of help, and refraining from any move which might be construed as a provocation by any would-be attacker. However, one remembers that this same policy was adhered to by the Dutch in Holland to the last. Therefore, they are keeping their powder dry. Their attitude is a reasonable one, which can be understood and respected by everyone inspired by decent motives. But let there be no mistake about what the Indies will do if their independence were at stake. They will fight, like the Dutch fought in Holland, even against heavy odds, because they believe that against aggression there can, for a free people, be only one reply: Resistance to the end.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Lighter Vein

The draft army is to have no catch-as-catch-can entertainment this time. Recreation, diversion and good clean fun are announced as a definite part of the Army training plan, with hundreds of hostesses and junior hotesses bustling about the camps to see about getting up a dance, a bingo party, a bridge carnival or what have you.

The calls of "Squads right!" and "'Tention!" will be mingled with "May I have this dance?" and "Aw, let's play some more!"

Uncle Sam's policy this time will be based on the theory that an Army camp should in no way resemble a concentration camp, and that the more amusement the boys have the better.

Everybody likes to have fun, and the urge doesn't disappear just because a boy has Army shoes on.

In the last war the entertainment was left largely to outside agencies, and the job was done, as a whole, very well, but now the Army takes over, and if there are any squawks about the entertainment personnel they must go to Uncle Sam and not to the Y. M. C. A.

The hostesses must be no younger than 30 and no older than 50, but their junior assistants may get under the wire as young as 25, which assures a reasonable amount of glamour and oomph.

The whole plan promises a feminine touch to camp life, giving it here and there a combined flavor of home and theater, with certain aspects of a week-end in the country.

Time was when the soldier boys used to sing sadly of the girl they left behind, but the girl they left behind may spend the next war singing of the boy who met a hostess.

The training camps of 1940-1941 are going to look like something directed by Billy Rose, the late Tex Rickard and whoever arranges the Rose Bowl games. There will be athletic fields, vast recreation halls, swimming pools, moving picture houses and even guest cottages and self-service restaurants for visitors.

And why not? Make the boys and the visitors as comfortable as possible. (Personally we like a training camp near the Gulf Stream, with southern exposure. And a golf course located between the morning bugle call and the daily maneuvers.—Ed. note.)

New Route Opened To Waynesboro Over Mountains

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The State highway department said the new and shorter line for Route 250 over Afton Mountain between Charlottesville and Waynesboro was opened for traffic this afternoon.

The new portion of the road, about two miles on the east side of the Blue Ridge, is designed to eliminate turns and sharp curves on the older road rising to the pass.

The highway department said the job cost $166,029, including the cost of building an underpass at the road's junction with the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad. The railroad bridge was assembled to one side and pushed into position.

Church Unit to Meet In Upperville

Special Dispatch to The Post

Lessburg, Va., Nov. 4.—The 173rd semi-annual meeting of the Valley Convocation will be held at the Trinity Church, Upperville, on Wednesday and Thursday. The Rev. C. J. Sheffield Ryley is rector of the church.

The principal speaker will be Bishop F. D. Goodwin, who will give a report on the general convention at the supper meeting on Wednesday evening.

The Rev. R. B. Nelson, of Winchester, is dean of the convocation; the Rev. Friemont Hinkel is treasurer, and the Rev. Paul H. Shultz, of Hamilton, is secretary.

Veterans Urge Reelection Of Roosevelt

American World War veterans of English, German, Italian and Greek descent shook hands last night and urged the reelection of President Roosevelt.

The occasion: a veterans meeting of the Roosevelt-Radcliffe Club of Prince Georges County at Colmar Manor, the American Legion hall at Peace Cross.

Speakers were Assimakis Jioris, delegate of the Greek-American War Veterans; Charles Cordosi, of the Italian-American War Veterans; Alfred Schweser, of the German-American War Veterans, and John Riggles, of the British-American War Veterans.

Schweser, who served five years in the German army before coming to the United States, said that German-Americans felt sorry for the plight of the people in their homeland, but were completely loyal to the United States.

Smith Challenges Staples' Ruling On Split Tickets

A recent ruling by Attorney General Abraham P. Staples, of Virginia, to the effect that persons who split their votes between Wendell Willkie and Democratic Congressional candidates may participate in future Democratic primaries was challenged yesterday by Representative Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria.

In a statement published in the Alexandria Gazette, Representative Smith declared: "The party plan is clear and implicit on the point that persons presenting themselves to vote in primaries may be put under oath that they not only voted for all nominees of the party in the previous general election, but that they intend to vote for all nominees in the election for which the primary is held."

Puts Politics Aside In Election Eve Talk to Nation

By the Associated Press

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Following is the prepared text of President Roosevelt's Election Eve radio address to the Nation:

Once more I am in the quiet of my home in Hyde Park on the eve of election day. I wish to speak to you not of partisan politics but of the Nation, the United States of America, to which we all owe such deep and inborn allegiance.

As I sit here tonight with my own family, I think of all the other American families—millions of families all through the land—sitting in their own homes. They have eaten their supper in peace, they will be able to sleep in their homes tonight in peace. Tomorrow they will be free to go out to live their own ordinary lives in peace—free to say and do what they wish, free to worship as they please. Tomorrow of all days they will be free to choose their own leaders who, when that choice has been made, become in turn only the instruments to carry out the will of all of the people.

And I cannot help but think of the families in other lands—millions of families—living in homes like our own. On some of these homes, bombs of destruction may be dropping even as I speak to you.

Across the seas life has gone underground. I think I speak the minds of all of you when I say that we thank God that we live in the sunlight and starlight of peace—that we are not in war and that we propose and expect to continue to live our lives in peace—under the peaceful light of heaven.

All Are Equal as Voters

In this town, as in every community in our Nation, friends and neighbors will gather together around the polling place.

They will discuss the state of the Nation, the weather and the prospect for their favorite football team. They will discuss this present political campaign. Some will wear buttons proclaiming their allegiance to one candidate or another. And there will be a few warm arguments.

But when you and I step into the voting booth, we can proudly say: "I am an American, and this vote I am casting is the exercise of my highest privilege and my most solemn duty to my country."

We vote as free men, impelled only by the urging of our own wisdom and our own conscience.

In our polling places are no storm troopers or secret police to look over our shoulders as we mark our ballots.

My own personal participation in affairs goes back as far as the year 1910, when I first became a candidate for the State Senate from this district on the Hudson River.

In the 30 years which followed, I have taken an active part in nearly every political campaign—local, State, and national. My interest has been that of a candidate for office; a public official, and a private citizen.

In every political campaign, the question on which we all finally pass judgment through the ballot box is simply this: "Whom do I think is the candidate best qualified to act as President, or Governor or Senator, or mayor, or supervisor, or county commissioner during the next term?"

It is that right, the right to determine for themselves who should be their own officers of government, that provides for the people the most powerful safeguard of our democracy. The right to place men in office, at definite, fixed dates of election for a specific term, is the right which will keep a free people always free.

The Wiser Way of Life

Dictators have forgotten—or perhaps they never knew—the basis upon which democratic government is founded: That the opinion of all the people, freely formed and freely expressed, without fear or coercion, is wiser than the opinion of any one man or any small group of men.

We have more faith in the collective opinion of all Americans than in the individual opinion of any one American.

Your will is a part of the great will of America. Your voice is a part of the great voice of America. And when you and I stand in line tomorrow for our turn at the polls, we are voting equals.

In the past 20 years the number of those who exercise the right to vote in national elections has been almost doubled. There is every indication that the number of votes cast tomorrow will be by far the greatest in our history.

That is the proof—if proof be needed—of the vitality of our democracy.

But our obligation to our country does not end with the casting of our votes.

Every one of us has a continuing responsibility for the government which we choose.

Democracy is not just a word, to be shouted at political rallies and then put back into the dictionary after election day.

The service of democracy must be something much more than mere lip service.

It is a living thing—a human thing—compounded of brains and muscles and heart and soul. The service of democracy is the birthright of every citizen, the white and the colored; the Protestant, the Catholic, the Jew, the sons and daughters of every country in the world, who make up the people of this land. Democracy is every man and woman who loves freedom and serves the cause of freedom.

Remain United After Vote

Last Saturday night I said that freedom of speech is of no use to the man who has nothing to say—that freedom of worship is of no use the man who has lost his God. And tonight I should like to add that a free election is of no use to the man who is too indifferent to vote.

The American people and the cause of democracy owe a great deal to the very many people who have worked in an honorable way on each side in this campaign. I know that after tomorrow they will all continue to cooperate in the service of democracy, to think about it, to talk about it, and to work for it.

Tomorrow you will decide for yourselves how the legislative and executive branches of the Government of your country are to be run during their next terms and by whom.

After the ballots are counted, the real rulers of this country will have had their say, as they have had it every two years or every four years during our whole National existence.

After the ballots are counted, the United States of America will still be united.

Discussion among us should and will continue, for we are free citizens of a free nation. But there can be no arguments about the essential fact that in our desire to remain at peace by defending our democracy, we are one nation and one people.

We people of America know that man cannot live by bread alone.

We know that we have a reservoir of religious strength which can withstand attacks from abroad and corruption from within.

We people of America will always cherish and preserve that strength. We will always cling to our religion, our devotion to God—the faith which gives us comfort and the strength to face evil.

On this Election Eve we all have in our hearts and minds a prayer for the dignity and integrity and peace of our country.

Concludes With Prayer

Therefore, in this hour before midnight, I believe that you will find it fitting that I read to you an old prayer which asks the guidance of God for our Nation:

"Almighty God, who hast given us this good land for our heritage, we humbly beseech Thee that we may always prove ourselves a people mindful of Thy favor and glad to do Thy will. Bless our land with honorable industry, sound learning, and pure manners. Save us from violence, discord and confusion; from pride and arrogancy, and from every evil way. Defend our liberties, and fashion into one united people the multitudes brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues. Endow with the spirit of wisdom those to whom in Thy name we entrust the authority of government, that there may be justice and peace at home, and that, through obedience to The law, we may show forth Thy praise among the nations of the earth.

"In the time of prosperity, fill our hearts with thankfulness, and in the day of trouble, suffer not our trust in Thee to fail. Amen."

ENTHUSIASTS THROW HIM FLOWERS—President Roosevelt, making an election eve tour of Hudson Valley towns near his Hyde Park, N. Y., home, waves aloft a bouquet of flowers thrown to him by supporters in Kingston, where they jammed around his open car. Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau is seated at right. The President will await election returns at Hyde Park, where he will vote today on the morrow. It is rather to tell yo uof a little of the past and a little of the future.

It is just 30 years ago that I first campaigned in our county—when I was running for State Senator and old Dick Connell, of the News Press, was running for Congress. In those days we did have a Democratic paper in Dutchess County, and Dick Connell ran for Congress so often that he finally got elected. He always said that his success was due to the fact that in previous unsuccessful campaigns he stopped at every schoolhouse he passed and made a little speech on democracy and the American flag to the pupils. He claimed that enough school children grew up over a period of years to know him, to remember the incident, and to vote for him.

He won in that year of 1910 against the father of your present Congressman (Representative Hamilton Fish, Republican).

Approves Competition

In those days this Hudson River section of ours was closer politically between the two major parties than it has been in recent years. Speaking not in a partisan way but as one who, you know, has been always interested locally in civic betterment, I am inclined to think that close competition between the two parties in these river counties was a very good thing. Each party was striving to outdo the other, not in promises alone, but in the actualities of good government.

On those days, 30 years ago, I am inclined as an observer to believe that county and local government in Dutchess and the other counties was stimulated by the closeness of the races that were made.

The same thing was true in those days in regard to State and even national politics. We were not committed to any set way of voting. We used to have an occasional Democrat in the Congress or in the State Senate or in the Assembly and once in a blue moon this good old County of Dutchess used to go Democratic.

Thankful for Peace

And that leads me to emphasize, not in a party sense but in an American sense, the need that all of us have to think day and night in terms of our own historic form of government. It is true, as we all know, that in many other parts of the world serious and sometimes successful attacks have been made on it. New forms of government, based on the theory of might rather than the theory of right, have waged wars against innocent peoples.

But in the long run I believe, for example, that the Germanic and Italian peoples, with their proud heritage of freedom, will, return, with the rest of the world, to self-government based on free elections.

Events abroad seem far away to us. But time and distance have been greatly shortened so that we must always remember that peace in our land may depend on our thoroughly recognized ability to defend ourselves.

And you and I are thankful tonight that we have peace throughout the length and breadth of this land. And what is more, the people, by their strength, intend to keep this country at peace.

To you, the men and women of my own home county, I speak for the last time here on Market Street on the eve of an election. All my life I have been, yes, all my life I shall be, devoted to the welfare and interests of Dutchess County.

Sing Sing Convicts Will Hear Returns

Sing Sing Prison, Nov. 4.—Inmates of Sing Sing Prison learned today that as a special privilege they will be permitted to hear election returns over the radio tomorrow night until 10:30 p. m. The radio is usually shut off at 10 p. m.

Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange; James J. Hines, former Tammany leader of the Eleventh Assembly District, and other prisoners who have followed the political campaign with interest will have to wait until Wednesday morning to see which way the trend finally swung, if the election is close.

Woman Arrives To Head New York Panama Consulate

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—A pretty young woman from Panama, Josefita Arias, 36, came to New York today as the only one of her sex to serve in this city as consulate-general of a foreign country.

Dark-eyed and vivacious, Miss Arias is a sister of President Arnulfo Arias, of Panama. She arrived on the Grace liner Santa Elena and prepared to take immediate charge of the consulate where she previously had served for four years as chancellor.

Also arriving was Antonio Santamarina, Argentine senator who was making his first trip to this country.

One of his first requests was to learn where he could find the nearest political rally in New York, explaining that he wanted to see such a typically American institution as a party mass meeting.

Complete Text Of Willkie's Final Speech

People of America:

Tonight, on the eve of one of the most important elections in our history, I wish to talk with you—just very briefly—about this campaign.

During the last several weeks our cause has moved irresistably toward victory. Millions upon millions of citizens, who have heard the arguments of both sides, have joined our side. They have joined us because they see that we alone can assure the principles of democracy, create opportunity and preserve freedom.

The news coming to us tonight is that, even now, the surge of that tide continues with accelerated power. News of our victory comes pouring in. It comes by telephone, by telegraph and by letter. It tells us that the people are determined that tomorrow they will make democracy endure in our land.

As you all know, I have been travelling through America for the past seven weeks. I have seen millions of you who are listening tonight. I think it is safe to say that no man ever saw so many Americans in so short a time or ever spoke to so many.

And first of all, tonight, I want to thank you—everyone of you.

Expresses Thanks to All

I want to thank those of you who have worked so hard in this cause. I should like to shake every one of you by the hand and look every one of you in the eye. Between us there is a great, invisible bond—the bond that binds free men together—faith in our principles, faith in the law, faith in the Constitution of the United States.

I want to thank all of you who came down to the railroad depots to listen so attentively, and to give to us your encouragement. I want to thank all of you who lined the streets of your great cities, to cheer our cause as we passed by.

I owe you a great debt, people of America. You have shown me what democracy really is. Many of us understand democracy as we read it in books or in the laws of the land. But you have enabled me to visualize it. I can see democracy. I can see it now as men and women—all of you in every part of the United States. I understand it better than I ever did before.

It is only through free discussion of our problems that solutions can be found. Any other method will lead eventually to the solution of a so-called superman—and that is not the method of democracy.

That is the reason I asked for direct debate, just as the third term candidate had done eight years ago. Although that suggestion, made for your benefit, was ignored by the third term candidate, we—you and I—found the way to meet on common ground to discuss our common problems, and the future of our freedom.

Throughout our crusade, Americans came to see and hear me, not because of me as an individual, but because they felt anxious. They felt they had been bereft of dependable leadership. They came in search of a new leadership, a new horizon which will open up before them tomorrow.

Greatest Danger From Within

I believe that there is only one danger that democracy needs to fear. This is not a danger from without but a danger from within. When we who possess freedom are strong within ourselves, we need fear no aggressor. We have proved time after time that our system of free enterprise and human rights can outdo any other system. We can build stronger industries, healthier human beings, and—if necessary to defend ourselves—mightier armies.

It is only when democracy weakens from within that dictators and other aggressors begin to look successful. Of course, when our industries are idle or sluggish, it is easy for Hitler or some other dictator to outstrip us in the production of airplanes or almost anything else. When millions of our people are unemployed we cannot hope to be as healthy or as vigorous as we would be if everybody were at work. Everybody in America must have a real job with real pay. Once more I say to you, only the production can be strong and only the strong can be free.

The greatest danger to democracy is that the citizens themselves, who have the final authority, may become careless about it. They become used to its benefits and take them for granted. They also take for granted many of our democratic institutions. They forget that such institutions must be constantly guarded. Apathy undermines liberty.

Democracy can't be neglected, fellow Americans. It doesn't just take care of itself. You must take care of it.

For instance, tomorrow, it is your sacred duty to vote. I say this, irrespective of which side you are on. Democracy lives in your vote, and can live only so long as you vote. Don't leave it up to the other fellow.

This duty is so sacred that you must not allow little obstacles to prevent you from performing it.

Don't let bad weather, for instance, stand between you and the chance to make democracy live. The issue may depend upon whether or not you are willing to take a trip through the rain or snow to the polling place.

Yes, democracy can be weakened by carelessness. It can also be weakened by false arguments. I do not mean that such arguments are intended to mislead you. The persons who make them may be entirely sincere. But you must be constantly on your guard against arguments that seek to persuade you that a democratic tradition should be sacrificed for the sake of something else.

For instance, the argument that you should thrust aside the tradition against a third term, on the grounds that we are faced with an international crisis—that argument is a false and dangerous one. To thrust aside that tradition is to assume that only one man has the ability to take us through recurring emergencies. That means that democracy must surrender in the face of any trouble. It means that whenever our Government says it sees an emergency, we must forego our democratic institutions until the Government is pleased to return them to us.

Beginning of Dictatorship

Let us remember that dictatorship always begins by asking the people to give up some law or tradition for some special reason. The reason given may even seem logical. The motives behind it may be honorable and sincere. But if you give in to such reasons, little by little the structure of democracy is taken away from you without your realizing it.

There is still another way by which democracy may be weakened from within, and that is by disregarding one's conscience. In the United States our voting is absolutely secret. There is no possible way for anyone to find out how you vote. No one knows that, save you and your God.

Voting is a solemn act. Don't vote the way someone tells you to vote. Don't let anyone high pressure you. If democracy is to live in America, you must vote the way you believe. I say this to you, no matter which way you may choose to vote

Remember also, that you can vote any way you please, no matter in what party you are registered. Democrats, for instance, can vote our ticket. Millions upon millions of them are going to do so.

I want to take this opportunity especially to thank those Democrats who are supporting me so actively, and with such a fine understanding of the real principles of democracy. Your own party has been kidnapped by a few men who have accumulated too much personal power. We welcome you to our crusade. We believe in the two-party system. In joining with us to fight the New Deal kidnappers, you are strengthening your own party by preserving your form of government.

Those are some of the reasons why tomorrow is such an important day. When you wake up tomorrow, think of what has been going on in the rest of the world. We have seen the democracies grow weak, so that they could not resist their enemies. Only England has been able to defend herself. And remember how she has defended herself. Faced with her great crisis, she changed her government.

Neville Chamberlain, who was prime minister, had had the most experience in government and foreign affairs. Yet the people of England deliberately chose a new government because they wanted a strong government, a strong England. They knew that efficiency was more important than mere experience.

The time to stop this process of breaking down democracy is in the beginning. That point was passed long ago in this country.

Last Step Has Been Taken

If, to the terrible concentration of power in the hands of the third term candidate and the subversion of the other departments of government, there is to be added continual tenure of office, then the last step in the destruction of our democracy has been taken.

No argument can justify it. No one man, much less one with a record of failure, can reasonably be regarded as the sole instrument of that wisdom which warned us to "put not our trust in princes."

It will always be found that the free exercise of our democratic institutions strengthens us—it does not weaken us. This has always been true. And it is true today.

People of America, I want to close this campaign without bitterness. There has been no bitterness in my heart, and there is none now. There must be none in your hearts, either. There is no place for bitterness or hate in America.

Especially during the last few days, the opposition seeking to obscure the issues, has attacked me with a smear campaign designed to make you question my record and my motives. I have answered everything I thought worthy of an answer.

I know that you will uphold the standards of democracy—the standards of fair play, honest debate and open covenants.

I tell you truthfully that I stand before you tonight without any commitments or deals. I have made no Cabinet offers to anyone. I have no secret understandings. And I have authorized no man to discuss commitments or understandings in my name. Those who have joined our cause have come in on exactly the same basis as all of you—because they believed in it.

America has given birth to many great men, but none greater than George Washington, Robert E. Lee and Abraham Lincoln. These men all had one quality in common—a quality of magnanimity of charity and of tolerance.

Quotes All Three

Lincoln said: "With malice toward none; with charity for all."

Lee said: "I have fought against the people of the North because I believe they were seeking to wrest from the South its dearest rights. But I have never cherished toward them bitter or vindictive feelings, and have never seen the day when I have not prayed for them."

And George Washington said: "Without more charity for the opinions and acts of one another in governmental matters I believe it will be difficult, if not impracticable, to manage the reins of government, or to keep the parts of it together."

Words Are Heard No More

We have not heard words like that in recent years in America. As you look back through the suffering and the struggle of the past seven and a half years, can you recall any Government leader who has risen to say, "with malice toward none?" or anyone who has confessed that he has prayed for the opposition and never cherished toward it "bitter or vindictive feelings?" Or anyone who has asked for "more charity for the opinions and acts of one another in governmental matters?"

No, we have not heard those words. The respect for each other and the magnanimity that must be an essential part of Government, that were indeed a part of the leadership of Washington, Lee and Lincoln, have not been a part of the present Administration.

And people, people of America, it is time that they were. We must respect and bear with one another. Let us learn a lesson from those great men—those men who tower above the rest of us in their courage, their insight, and their leadership. Let us learn from them the true secret of democracy—the secret of human brotherhood. All of us—are brothers; Catholic and Protestant, Jew and Gentile, Negro and white; Irish, Italian, German, Swedish, Polish—all, all—as many origins as there are nations.

We are bound together indissolubly by the living laws of man and the living word of God. These are the bonds of brotherhood, which we must strengthen if we would prevail. In brotherhood—in brotherhood alone—we shall become strong, we shall establish peace, and we shall remain free.

Democratic Candidate 'Goes Republican'

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 4 (AP).—Orville J. Lane, certified on the election ballot as the Democratic candidate for Lake County coroner, bought a three-column advertisement in the Waukegan News-Sun requesting voters to disregard his name and "vote the straight Republican ticket."

Lane, a resident of Lake Forest, published the advertisement in the form of an affidavit and said it was because he thought the "third term dangerous in any case."

Keep Your Own Election Night Score

The chart below will enable Post readers to keep their own record of the trend of the voting while listening to The Post-WISV broadcast of election returns tonight. The number of voting units reporting each total, when compared with the total number of units in a State, will give an idea of the completeness of the count in the reporting State. (266 Electoral votes are needed to win.)

Virginians Hear Final Vote Pleas

Price, Col. Anderson Make the Climactic Talks for Each Side

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4.—The apparent confidence of Democrats and Republicans alike remained unruffled tonight as Virginians made ready to cast their votes tomorrow for candidates for President, Vice President, a United States Senator and the State's nine seas in the House of Representatives.

The intensive campaigning of past weeks continued through election eve with Horace H. Edwards, State chairman; L. Preston Collins, State campaign director, and Gov. Price broadcasting closing appeals for the Democratic cause over a State-wide radio hookup, and Col. Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, broadcasting the Republican finale at Richmond.

Three of the nine Virginia Democratic Congressmen will have no opposition tomorrow, and Senator Harry F. Byrd will face opposition only from Socialist Hilliard Bernstein and a Communist, Mrs. Alice Burke. The unopposed Congressmen are S. Otis Bland, of the First District; Colgate W. Darden, jr., of the Second, and Thomas G. Buch, of the Fifth.

Representative Dave E. Satterfield, jr., of Richmond, also is without major party opposition in the Third District but has Winston Dawson, a Socialist, in the field against him.

Republicans are seeking to oust Democrats in the other four districts, including the "Fighting Ninth" where State Senator Fred C. Parks, Republican and former commander of the Virginia department of the American Legion is opposing Representative John W. Flannagan, jr., of Bristol.

In the Sixth, Representative Clifton A. Woodrum is opposed by Fred W. McWane, of Lynchburg, a Republican, and Lawrence S. Wilkes, Socialist; Representative A. Willis Robertson, of the Seventh, is opposed by former Congressman Jacob A. Garger, Harrisonburg Republican, and Lester Ruffner, Communist, and Representative Howard W. Smith, of the Eighth district is opposed by Col. Henry B. Goodloe, Charlottesville, Republican.

The campaign pyrotechnics have been concentrated in the Presidential contest which the Democrats say will show Virginia Democratic by 140,000 votes out of a total of around 340,000 and which the Republicans predict will find Virginia again breaking away from the "Solid South" to ga into the column for Republican Nominee Wendell Willkie.

The sunrise-to-sunset election laws will mean voters will have from 6:40 a. m. until 5:07 p. m. in Virginia in which to cast their ballots. The weather forecast was increasing cloudiness and somewhat higher temperatures, which augured well for a good voter turnout.

Gov. Price, in his address prepared for the State-wide hookup tonight with Edwards and Collins under the auspices of the State Democratic Committee, declared the question to be decided tomorrow was not whether Roosevelt, or any other man, was "indispensable," but whether "Roosevelt or Willkie would make the better President of the United States during the next four years in the face of the perilous conditions that confront the country."

Ellis Island Orders Student To Leave U. S.

But Officials Here Are Mystified by Action On American U. Youth

Students at American University can't understand why immigration authorities have ordered their 18-year-old schoolmate, Maurice Posada, to leave the country by tomorrow.

Neither can Posada, who comes from Colombia in South America, and wants to obtain his education here.

But this is hardly strange, for even the immigration officials here are mystified.

Posada, who has lived with his family in London for 12 years, left England for the United States August 10, en route to Colombia, accompanied by his mother. His father was in Paris when the French capital fell and had been unable to leave.

Admitted at New York on a 60-day visitor's visa, the youth changed his mind and decided to attend college here rather than in South America. Applying for an extension of his visa, he enrolled at American University.

According to the American University officials, the extension was denied in a letter from the port authorities at Ellis Island. The letter told Posada he must leave the country by tomorrow, but that, once abroad, he could apply for a student's visa and return, if the request was granted.

Yesterday, 250 American University students met at Hurst Hall on the campus to protest the order. They signed a petition to the Immigration and Naturalization Service in the Justice Department urging reconsideration. If all is not well by tomorrow, they say they will picket the building.

At this turn of events immigration officials here expressed surprise. They told The Post yesterday that Posada does not need to leave the country to apply for a student's visa. He can take his case to Deputy Commissioner of Immigration Thomas B. Shoemaker here in Washington.

Meanwhile, as Posada's mother hastened to New York to appeal to Ellis Island authorities, the youth's schoolmates indicated their annoyance by circulating their petition.

"This is a fine situation," one said. "Talk about hemisphere defense! Italy and Germany welcome South American students with open arms, but we kick them out."

Athletes at Catholic U. Aid Inventor's Pedal-Plane Dream

SPINNING THE "HOMODYNE"—David Darrin (right), mechanical engineer and designer of an airplane which he hopes will fly by human power, checks the "homodyne," as Pete Sachon, C. U. football player, spins the flywheel to see how much horsepower he can create

University's Huskiest Gladly Submit To 'Horsepower' Tests on Machine Devised by Engineering Professor

Athletes at Catholic University this session will take part in an experiment which may lead to bettering the record of Icarus, the youth in Greek mythology who attempted to fly under his own power.

At a new-fangled machine, the athletes are turning a fly-wheel to see how much horsepower they can develop. Eagerly watching results of the experiment is David Darrin, 1206 Ninth Street Northwest, mechanical engineer, designer of a plane which, he hopes, can be flown by pedaling—similar to the operation of a bicycle.

The plane is still in theoretical stage, on paper. Next step in the experiment is the attachment of an "exercise bicycle" to the machine which so far has been operated by hand. Tests then will more accurately indicate what to expect of legs in the future plane.

But Darrin yesterday enthusiastically visualized possibilities. He and Ernest A. Valade professor of electrical engineering at the university, stood beside the machine which the latter has built in a laboratory there. He calls it a "homodyne" — human power measuring machine. The mechanism consists of "an electric generator equipped with fly-wheel, carrying a crank-like handle to which power is applied" by a person, Darrin explained.

Not only athletes but students of various heights and weights will be tested, to give as wide scope as possible to the experiment.

In preliminary tests by hand, some of the athletes at the university have developed around 1.8 horsepower momentarily. Yesterday a football player stepped up to do so.

But Darrin said that scattering tests "indicate that athletes can develop up to 2 or 2.5 horsepower for periods of some seconds—say for half a minute; about 1.5 horsepower for perhaps a half hour and about one-half horsepower for several hours."

On these indications he bases hope for the success of his hypothetical plane. He unrolled drawings. According to them, he has visualized a plane with 64 feet wing span, made of magnesium aluminum alloy and weighing between 100 and 120 pounds. He says he can build it himself, if he can get a financial backer.

"In the case of a 120-pound plane, I figure that it would take 2.5 horsepower to get it off the ground, but that it may be possible to cruise for several hours using only one-half horsepower. At top speed I figure that it might go 49 miles an hour," Darrin said.

Darrin explained that horsepower means "the power that a person would develop in lifting 550 pounds at the velocity of 1 foot per second," and does not represent the power of a horse.

He pointed out that flights by human power "have already been accomplished in the United States, Germany and Italy" for short duration and distance.

He has designed his model as a flying boat, but said it could be easily adapted for land if it works in the original form. In appearance it would be similar to a soaring-plane or sail-plane, he said.

Prof. Valade pointed out that the idea of human power flight holds more promise because of new developments in plastic and alloys, making available light, strong materials.

Darrin said he foresees sport use as the first possibility for his idea. If such a plane should stay in air for even a half-hour under human power, it would have sport value, he said.

According to Greek mythology, Icarus fastened on wings with wax, flew too near the sun and fell into the sea when the heat melted them off. Something of the same dream, to emulate the birds, kept a wheel turning in the Catholic University laboratory yesterday.

Traffic Ticket 'Fixes' Reach 105 Total for Week

Traffic ticket "fixing" surged upward last week with 105 adjustments made, the highest in months, according to figures released yesterday by police.

The list included 27 canceled tickets and 78 warnings. Three persons escaped with warnings on the plea of diplomatic immunity: Lieut. M. Dorance, French Embassy; Abdel Rabim Selim, 2301 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and Tamenori Hara, Japanese Embassy. John Stoddard, of Bethesda, Md., was excused for disobeying an official sign when he explained that he was attending a wedding. Harold Hildebrand, 1419 Columbia Road Northwest, was let off with a wraning for parking in a restricted zone when he explained that he had had two teeth extracted and was feeling so poorly he didn't observe the signs.

Red Cross Plans To Spend Millions For Chinese Relief

The American Red Cross has made tentative plans to spend several million dollars for relief of China's war victims. How extensive the program will be, officials said yesterday, is dependent upon the success of two shipments—one to free China and the other to occupied China—now en route.

A huge supply of medicine and cloth, estimated at $350,000, is in transit to free China. It is scheduled to reach Rangoon in December for shipment over the Burma Road.

Also en route to China are 6,000 sacks of rice and 1,400 sacks of cracked wheat. These were shipped from Seattle to Shanghai, where they will be distributed under supervision of American Red Cross representatives to Chinese in those parts of the Japanese dominated area, where famine has developed.

Four Mexican Scholars Feted

The State Department division of cultural affairs and George Washington University were hosts here yesterday to four Mexican intellectuals who are visiting this country on a lecture tour to instruct United States students in the principles of current Mexican social democracy.

The Mexican visitors were Prof. Armando Ostos, former professor of the University of Mexico; Guillermo Ostos, Xavier Avila and Pedro Zaran, all of the same institution.

Although Mexican Embassy officials described the group as not an official government mission, they said Dr. Ostos and his group were working under the aegis of National University.

● Thousands know of the amazing benefits of S.S.S. Tonic to help build rich, red blood...to increase the appetite...to aid digestion

IF you are past middle-life you will want to give particular attention to two important body functions—one, to keep your natural stomach digestive juices flowing . . . two, to keep your blood rich and healthy.

Frequently, as the years advance, the stomach becomes sluggish in pouring out its digestive juices to make use of the food eaten . . . likewise, wear and strain of worry, overwork, colds, and sickness often reduce one's blood strength.

Now you may rebuild your blood strength and restore sluggish stomach digestion, in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection, with the famous S.S.S. Tonic.

S.S.S. acts two ways

In S.S.S. Tonic you go after the trouble in two ways . . . first you increase the appetite and better your stomach digestion—thus making better use of the food you eat—secondly, thin, weak, watery blood is made rich and red again thus giving you a boost in energy.

join the happy thousands

S.S.S. may be just what you need to get you on the right road to health and happiness again . . . it helps build sturdy health . . . that's why so many say it "makes you feel like yourself again."

New Styles Show Back to Normal Trend

Southern Silhouettes, Shown in New York, Are Far From Dull

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

MANY were the surprises of New York's recent Southern wear showings. Most surprising of all was the back-to-normal trend.

MARSHALL ADAMS

So down-to-earth were these advance silhouettes, in fact, that more than one style critic pronounced them "dull."

Actually they are far from dull. They are the most versatile and likeable clothes seen for a number of years, and in this period of unrest and off-balance they seem particularly assuring. They are not sensational or ultra glamorous, unless "being yourself" in a dress that fits and feels gracious and unconspicuous comes in that category.

Varied Styles

Some criticism was made among New York smarties that these midseason showings lacked direction. That is true, but only because American designers like to think individually, not collectively as did the French coutouriers who forced us into hobble skirts or bustles regardless of whether we, by nature, hobbled and had bustles of our own to contend with. The fact that our resort and spring clothes will not not be regimented into One Big Silhouette looks like thoughtful planning, not a lacking of central leadership because American figures, tastes and ways of living are varied and not set to one pattern.

Among the new trends for 1941 watch out for both the full, flared skirt for gay young sport clothes and the slim, tight one for afternoon or formal wear. Most of the bodices are elongated and tight even down to middy blouses over short pleated skirts, made, not of the old-fashioned poplin of our childhood, but of the more streamlining celanese rayon crepe. There are a number of these cute grown-up marine suits or dressees for resort wear, particularly a clever one done by Designer Dorothy Cox. This nautical style in tricolor treatment will probably be big news in spring and summer sportswear, especially since the present cruise collections forecast them almost universally.

Tweed Skirts Again

For the woman of svelte hips, nothing could be more beguiling than the tiered skirt which showed up at more than one collection done either with neat tucks or in rows of fringe for evening. The formal silhouette is very flexible, however, and skirt lines either have soft, unpressed front and rear pleats for animation, or full drifting skirts woth godet inserts aimed at dance floor grace. With many of these full-skirted gowns are worn mantillas or matching fringed head scarves, Spanish roses and lace gloves dyed to match the frock.

The colors set forth in these prophetic Southern wear fashions throw a strong focus on white, either vanilla white sand or oyster white for wool evening cloaks and dinner suits, or brilliant pottery whites for sportswear. The subdued off-white natural burlap is seen in both millinery and dress accessories with intense Potonari blues and purples inspired by New York's Pan American artists' exhibition. The formal daintiness of white or pastel chiffon is enchantingly young, too, when combined with candy cane stripes. These peppermint stripes and great coin dots look like big news in next summer's spectator and beach wear scene. Watch for them!

The Sailor Girl Again!

Destined for a successful career after election returns and holiday festivities are over, is the sailor girl suit. The one above, sketched recently at a New York Southern wear showing, is a McMullen classic of white celanese by American-Designer Dorothy Cox. The middy collar, long torso line and pleated skirt hark back to adolescent fashions, a clever grown-up trick for cruise and spring wear.

Single Exercise Used by Star

A single exercise keeps Miriam Hopkins as slim as a reed and fit as the proverbial fiddle. Up on her toes at 6 each morning, Miriam stretches against the wall as if she meant to climb it, then lies on the floor to raise her feet up and down slowly to the almost impossible count of 100. You will literally feel the pounds drop off with this one. But the century count is what counts.

Walking as if you were late for work, with shoulders back and the stomach muscles tight, is another fine exercise for the hips.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

The Button Brigade

If you are disconsolate about having to take off your Willkie or Roosevelt button after today, cheer up! Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, famous reformer, is going to make it possible for you to wear a button — or buttons — the year around.

Mrs. DeGoofey

"The de-buttoning of the American populace, which will take place tomorrow, presents a serious social problem," declared the intrepid president of the Do Something About It League at her press conference yesterday. "Millions of persons divested of their buttons and feeling that no one is paying them any attention any more, will develop terrific inferiority complexes. Therefore I am putting into effect at once a gigantic button distribution scheme to function until the next Presidential election."

"But don't most Americans, women in particular, already have their chests plastered with club buttons?" asked a club editor.

Billboard Effect In Club Pins

"Yes, but it is done in too subtle a way—and nobody notices it. For instance, take the F. F. V.'s and D. A. R.'s and similar groups. Their buttons are too inconspicuous. Now I am going to get out a large saucer-sized button bearing in bold letters the words BLUE BLOOD, to be worn by all persons who have ancestors.

"Then for members of sororities, lodges, club and similar organizations I am having made a big button inscribed THE RIGHT CROWD. For persons who still take their politics seriously after election I am providing buttons with such inscriptions as RIGHT THINKERS; TRUE AMERICANS; PROPER PATRIOTS.

"What about the socialites who have now gotten the button habit?" asked a What-They-Wore reporter.

The 'Notables' To Be Tagged

"Oh, I am taking care of them in a big way," replied Mrs. DeGoofey. "I am having some platinum and diamond buttons made up with such inscriptions as UPPER CRUSTER; TOP FLIGHTER; NOTABLE. I am also having a lot of buttons inscribed with SILVER FOX SET; MINK SET; POLO SET; HORSEY SET, etc., so that no one belonging in such exclusive circles will be mistaken for anything else even if she happens to leave her mink coat or her jodhpurs at home.

"I also expect to issue some professional buttons inscribed AUTHOR; PAINTER; POET; SOPRANO, also some inscribed MUSIC LOVER; ART PATRON; etc. I shall issue PRIZE WINNER buttons for all women who have been successful in bridge games, advertising contests, radio quizzes, etc.

"But Mrs. DeGoofey," protested a jaded rewrite man, "your buttons will only be attention-getting devices. Now most persons wear buttons in the hope of starting something—at least an argument."

"I have taken care of that, too. There will still be plenty of subjects to argue about even though the election is over. For instance, I will have Jack Benny and Fred Allen buttons for radio fans who may want to fight over their favorite comedians; also Clark Gable and Robert Taylor buttons for movie goers to row about, and Donald Duck and Winnie Winkle buttons for comic strip readers.

"Finally I shall provide real in-between election fun by having buttons with such argument-inciting inscriptions as I DETEST SPINACH; I HATE CROONERS; YES, I'VE HEARD THAT ONE, etc. And for those who are really looking for a fight I will have buttons inscribed I AM SMARTER THAN YOU; I CAN LICK ANYBODY, YOU ARE WRONG; EVERYBODY ELSE IS QUEER.

"What button do you expect to wear, Mrs. DeGoofey?" asked a movie photographer.

Beauty Secrets

By CAROLYN ABBOTT.

Jewels Inspire New Make-Up

COSMETICALLY speaking, a glittering season is in the offing. New make-ups and perfumes have captured the scintillating effect of precious gems. This winter, you'll match your rouge and lipsticks to the sparkle of jewels—real ones if you can—great oblong stones of topaz or sapphire. And if you don't wear real ones—you'll come across with simulated ones—clips to match your bracelet, jewels on your fingers, in your hair.

To dramatize the accent on jewelry this winter, an international beauty expert has just created six new harmonizing make-up shades. Lipstick, rouges and nail polishes have the same highlights as the precious stones they match. These new cosmetics, named for the stones they match, come in these colors "ruby," "sapphire," "topaz," "emerald," "aquamarine" and "amethyst."

Two new perfumes recently introduced were directly inspired by the emphasis on jewelry—real and costume. One widely known perfumer gives the "Jet" fragrance in perfume, toilet water and Eau de Cologne.

Bird Plaques

A suitable gift for either the bird fancier or sportsman, these lovely plaques are each a work of art. Some are of hand carved wood, and others of cast metal, all beautifully painted in natural colors. Prices range from $3.00 to $15.00.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Out of Love With Fiancee, Yet Employed by Her Father, College Senior Working His Way Through School Faces Hard Decision: To Wed or Jilt Her?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a senior at one of the local universities and have been engaged to a very lovely girl for two years. Her father has given me a position with his firm—primarily, I believe, because I am engaged to his daughter. Recently, I have become very fond of another girl, which has caused me to fall completely out of love with my fiancee.

While I believe she is still very much in love with me, she is very considerate and fair-minded, and would probably consent to breaking the engagement, despite the mental anguish it might cause her. On the other hand, her father is of a somewhat vindictive nature and would, I think, discharge me the moment he learned of the broken engagement. Since my college education and subsequent graduation depend on my own earnings, it would be a serious setback to my career to be discharged from this job.

Here is my problem: Should I marry the girl I love, with whom I'm sure I could be very happy, despite the prospect of handicapping myself professionally in so doing? Or shall I discharge my present obligation to marry my fiancee, thereby assuring myself of rapid professional advancement and, possibly, a satisfactory marriage? I feel that every happy marriage must be based upon true love, and that if I were to marry my fiancee, the relationship might be unsuccessful.

This situation should be corrected immediately, as it is rapidly becoming more acute but I am at a loss to know what to do. I sincerely hope you will be able to guide me, and I shall appreciate an early reply. Sincerely, G. W. U.

Admit the Truth, As Favor to Girl

DEAR G. W. U.: Since you are no longer in love with your fiancee; believe yourself at this time to be in love with another girl; and rightly regard mutual love as a basic requirement for successful marriage (as undoubtedly it is, in the springtime of life), it seems to me you should make these things known to her and ask to be released from the engagement—as a favor to her.

In my opinion, it would be a shameful (because a dishonest) thing to marry her under the pretense of loving her, either because you were afraid (for sentimental reasons) to confess the truth; or because marriage to her promised to pave the way to rapid professional advancement.

In talking things over with her, I think you should raise the question as to whether you owe your position in her father's firm, your engagement to her. You might say that you believe you do; and that you think it only fair, therefore, to speak to her father immediately after reaching a meeting of minds with her—so that he can fire you, if he feels that way about it.

However, if you have been earning your salary by faithful, intelligent service while in his employ, he probably will not be so petty minded as to dismiss you for a reason so purely personal. But he should be given the opportunity to do so. You must not dodge that issue. And he will respect you the more, whatever his decision, if you offer your neck bravely to the ax. I imagine he would rather see his daughter jilted by an honest, if muddle-headed, youth, than married to a fickle opportunist.

As for the other girl, don't be in too great haste about getting engaged to (much less marrying) her. As a senior in college, you probably aren't more than 21 years of age, which is young for marriage in any case, but particularly young when one doesn't—as you obviously don't—know how to stand on his own feet in emergency. Neither do you know what turn your fortunes may take in the next year. So, even if you get out of this engagement with hard feelings and the job still secure, steer clear of promissory romantic entanglements until you have graduated and tested your ability to hold a job on merit alone. As you are learning, any job obtained by "pull" and held through favoritism alone has almost no security value for a person of independent mind.

Supposing the girl's father discharges you, take the blow chin-up and go after another job at once. Ask him (or your immediate superior) for a written indorsement of your employe value, and, if necessary, tell another prospective employer the simple truth of why you lost out with this firm.

Don't regard a job upset at this time as a "career setback." Indeed, don't think of the next few years in terms of either "career" or "career frustration." Careers are a long time in the making, my boy; and they unfold in unexpected ways. But remember that chief ingredients in every truly successful career are honesty, courage, self-reliance, patience and the willingness to abandon any set of circumstances that would compel one to behave in a dishonorable fashion.

Movie Star's Method for Keeping Her Figure

Dieting Menus Should Satisfy, Not Irritate

Seek Balance Between Food You Must Have And What You Like

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU don't like your diet you won't stay on it. And if your diet isn't all it should be you will get irritable faster than you will get slim! So the art in planning your slimming fare is to keep the menus satisfying and to strike a happy balance between the foods you must have and those you like.

The main course should be something that stays by you, such as lean meat, eggs or cheese. The high satiety value of these foods will help to keep you from feeling hungry on your low-calorie diet. The menu should also include large servings of the bulky foods, like salads, vegetables and fruits. You can have all the lettuce, spinach, celery, tomatoes, string beans, cabbage and greens you want. In fact, it's a good thing to take larger servings of these foods so that you will get that nice, full feeling. Some of the Hollywood stars start their dinner with a quarter of a head of lettuce so that they won't want to overeat.

It's a comfort to have at least one hot food in a meal. A steaming cup of broth or soup or a hot beverage imparts a definite sense of satisfaction.

Fat Postpones Hunger

The reducing diet is necessarily low in fat, but a little fat, in the form you like best, will postpone the hunger pangs. Plan each meal to include a little butter and a small amount of cream in the beverage.

One way to fool yourself into feeling as if you have had a square meal is to eat slowly and to chew every particle of food thoroughly. You will be surprised how this will trick your appetite into contentment! If you bolt your slimming meals and wash them down with water you are bound to think you haven't really eaten!

Habit is so strong that when you are used to generous meals you can't suddenly cut down drastically without noticing the difference. Some reducers prefer to ease into their slimming by going first on a 1,500-calorie diet, they dropping to 1,400 and then to 1,200 calories a day. By the third or fourth week they find it fairly easy to go on down to 1,000 calories a day. The better you feel the less you mind dieting, so to make sure that you are getting liberal amounts of the vitamins, reinforce the 1,000-calorie daily diet with one vitamin A, B, C, D capsule.

Don't Hold Out

If you get hungry and weak between meals don't try to hold out! It would be better for you to take fruit juice with a little sugar, or to have hot tea with sugar, or a cup of hot bouillon and a cracker. This will prevent that unpleasant, empty feeling which makes you want to give up dieting.

The way to be sure of lasting on a slimming menu is to follow one that keeps you dietetically happy—and doesn't place too much strain on that will power!

Better Lighting May Prove Home Economy Aid

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

It's something of a shock to learn that most of our homes are only about 50 per cent as well lighted as they should be for eyesight protection, as well as for decorative effect. And if your budget groans at the idea of more money for light, just figure how much the family glasses bill is yearly. After all, maybe there might be real economy in splurging a little on more lamps and better lighting.

If you contemplate a light reformation in your home, don't go at it in the dark! In short, don't just hop out and buy more lamps, hit or miss. First, consult your local lighting company and have them test your present lighting meter which will take the guess work out of the matter! They'll tell you just what wattage you should have for each spot, according to what it is used for, reading, sewing, card playing, wood working, taxidermy or whatever your family goes in for! Besides, they'll advise you on general room illumination so that you won't have spotty light or glare.

Big Lamps Advised

Part of this will be accomplished by more lamps, and especially by bigger lamps — higher, wider, handsomer than those dinky little cuties that have been cluttering things up without providing either adequate, properly placed light or much beauty to the scene. And when lamps get bigger, they really begin to be important and impressive decorative features of a room, for light itself is beautiful and should be dramatic.

Among the most stunning new big lamps we've seen were a pair of tall pedestal bases in dull gunmetal finish with gunmetal shades; these lamps, all of 3 feet tall, stood on broad, low-end tables, flanking a modern sofa. Another tall pair of table lamps that we admired had bases of turned posts of walnut, with shades of marbleized book lining paper.

Then, of course, there is that stunning lamp with the base of a big plaster tassel and a big white shade, and the popular favorite of porcelain in a plume design. For everyday use, you can't beat a plain floor lamp with indirect three-way light.

Concealed living and spot lighting will inevitably be the big features of built-in lighting plans. Entirely new types of ceiling and wall fixtures suggest revolutionary changes in built-in wiring.

Debutante Buds Feted at Golden Luncheon

CURRENT debutantes are in a flurry and scurry these days. Last year's "blooms" are entertaining this year's "buds" at luncheons and tea parties. Postdeb Achsah Bowie Dorsey entertained for two of this year's "buds," the Misses Mary Theresa and Marion Norris, at a luncheon recently at the Army and Navy Town Club.

Gold and rust-shaded chrysanthemums made a dramatic centerpiece for the luncheon table and the same golden theme was carried into the fruit cup served. A colorful fruit cup was presented in servers surrounded by golden-colored ice. In fact, the entire menu seemed to have the Midas touch. Here it is:

Luncheon Menu

Hot Consomme
Chicken Salad in Avocado Halves
Potato Chips Tomato Slices Hot Rolls
Marron Glace Demitasse
Gold-Colored Mints Assorted Nuts

Chicken salad is delicious at any time, but when served in avocado halves it has added distinction. To prepare the avocados first wash in cold water, dry but do not peel and then chill. Just before serving (the fruit discolors on standing), cut each avocado in half, remove the seeds and scoop out the pulp. Save pulp to combine with the chicken salad. Make the chicken salad this way:

Chicken Salad

Dice 2 cups cooked chicken and 1 cup of celery. Add diced avocado. Marinate lightly with French dressing. Add salt as desired. When ready to fill the avocado halves combine with 1 cup mayonnaise. Fill halves and garnish with sliced olives and pimiento slices.

New Wool 'Ideas' In Star's Dress

Hollywood, Calif.—An ensemble Barbara Stanwyck wears in "Meet John Doe," is characterized by two spanking new ideas. First, sleeves are important, and second, the outfit is fastened in a most unusual way.

The dress, a gray and chocolate striped wool shirtmaker, shows long sleeves with broad cuffs held with gold links. Then, to magnify these cuffs, the sleeves of the top jacket in chocolate wool are shortened just enough.

And both dress and jacket are fastened at the neckline with gold chains pulled through eyelets of gold.

'Upped' Eyes

Hollywood, Calif.—The most alluring fashion-beauty hint of the week comes from Geraldine Fitzgerald, who secured an upped hair-do with ten little combs studded with deep blue stones, then gave her eyes a harmonizing "upped" appearance by drawing a short slanting line at the very edges of her eyelids.

A Woman's Washington

By Jean Brownell

WASHINGTON needs a non-commercial adoption agency, says Mildred Terrett of Children's Protective Association. "There are always more would-be parents than there are babies for them to adopt. Hence there is pressure on agencies to meet the demand, and some danger that they may begin hunting for babies. Often they do not consider whether either the parents or the baby will benefit by the adoption. The real job of an adoption agency—and an impossible one where profit is involved—is to make every effort to keep the natural mother and her child together, and to provide financial help if possible.

Mildred Terrett

"Only when the mother decides that she cannot make a go of it will the child be placed for adoption. Naturally, careful study is made of the child's heredity and health, and of the security he will have in his new home. Great care is taken to find out the personality and attitude of the adoptive parents—their own childhood experiences, their conduct toward other children with whom they have been in contact, their ideas of discipline. A check is made to determine whether their relatives are equally eager for the child, for no really satisfactory absorption can take place unless the whole family circle welcomes the newcomer."

REALTY NOTE—The owner of an apartment house in Alexandria refuses to accept children or school teachers.

Over at Langston, the Alley Dwelling Authority's housing project in northeast Washington, community spirit is the watchword. The Mothers' Club has raised funds for a radio-phonograph to be used at community dances. Housewives have organized a co-operative buying club, which is now a member of the D. C. Cooperative League. Children and grownups alike take part in ceramics classes, and there's a non-denominational Sunday School operated by the parents. To stimulate interest in community cleanliness, a contest was held last year among Langston children for slogans to be used on outdoor trash cans. Now each can bears some such phrase as "I Eat Trash," and the name of the child who submitted the slogan.

There's an elderly woman around town who likes an occasional drink of straight whiskey, sans chaser. Tired of the raised eyebrows and the chidings from her juniors which inevitably follow each swig, she's taken to sipping her bourbon out of a genteel sherry glass.

Miss Evans to Attend Bachelor's Cotillon

Simmons College Bows to Maryland Tradition So Capital Deb Can Be Present at Baltimore Event December 2

By Hope Ridings Miller

BOSTON BOWS to Dixie tradition, and a Capital deb attending school in the Hub City gets permission to skip classes long enough to drop a curtesy at the Baltimore Bachelors' Cotillion.

That, in a printer's nutshell, is the story. The details are as follows: Long ago arrangements had been made for pretty Mariana Evans, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., to be presented at the ancient and honorable institution that has long been a "must" for debs with topflight old Maryland connections. Mr. Evans and his family, who live at Northcote, near Cockeysville, Md., are Marylanders born and bred.

When Mariana made her bow here at one of the largest and most successful parties on the early summer calendar, practically everybody who knows the Evanses took it as a matter of course that the deb would be among those presented at the Bachelors' Cotillion on December 2.

So far, so good. In the autumn Mariana was off to Boston and entered Simmons College, which accepts only 400 boarding students from all over the United States. All plans were set for her to return home the week-end of November 27 and to stay over until after the cotillion.

But that was before she carefully perused the college book of rules and regulation. When she finally got around that, she found this bit of information, "No student is permitted to be absent immediately before or after a vacation."

Father Sees It Through

Posthaste, she sent the ruling home with this query, "Now what happens to me in regard to the Bachelors' Cotillion? Our Thanksgiving holiday is from November 27 to 31. I must report for classes the very day of the cotillion!"

Mrs. Evans, being a university (George Washington) trustee herself, with this fact well known to the Simmons president, promptly said: "It's obvious I can't ask another college to make an exception in my own daughter's case."

But Mr. Evans, not being a trustee, and being a Marylander with his mind set on having his daughter at the Cotillion, followed no such hands-off policy. He filed a request with the college authorities that his daughter be allowed to come home for the event, and he inclosed a full and frank explanation concerning his reasons for wanting Mariana to make her bow at this traditional affair in his native State.

There was a long wait while college authorities considered the matter from every angle you can imagine. Their reply has just come through with formal permission, graciously given. Mariana is to have special cut-classes privilege in honor of the occasion. She will make her bow at the Baltimore Bachelors' Cotillion and both her mother and father will be present.

To Arrive in Time For Hill Debut

As Simmons College does not observe the new official Thanksgiving date, Mariana will not be home to enjoy any debutante parties between now and November 27; but she will arrive that day in time to assist at Mrs. Hiram Bingham's tea in honor of her daughter, Kitty Hill, and she will attend the dinner afterward. The following night, she will attend Muriel Maddox' dance at the Sulgrave Club.

CHAPTER FROM HISTORY: A squib I wrote recently about the appearance of the first dinner coat in America (at the Tuxedo autumn ball in 1886) brought forth a flood of reminiscences from Washingtonians who recalled the first abbreviated dress coats—then called "tuxedos" by everybody—that appeared around these parts. By checking dates, names and places down to the last detail, I believe I have finally discovered the Who, When and Where connected with the first dinner coat appearing in Washington.

My informer is none other than Laurence V. Benet, whose father, the late Brig. Gen. Stephen Vincent Benet, was Chief of Ordnance here from 1874 to 1891, and made his home at 1717 I Street. Mr. Benet recalls that in the winter of 1887, Antonio Nogueires, son of the Minister of Portugal, created a sensation, when he appeared at the National Theater in a dinner jacket—the first time such a garment had ever been worn in the Nation's Capital.

Beatrice Wright Will Make Bow To Society Dec. 23

Another name goes on the current debutante list today with the announcement that Miss Beatrice Mary Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Will Wright, will make her bow to society at a large luncheon on December 23.

The party will take place at the Chevy Chase Club, and guests will include many debutantes of the season and other friends made by Miss Wright when she attended the Madeira School. She was graduated from there last June and is now a freshman at Vassar College.

Mr. Wright, who is with the State Department's Bureau of Mines, has just returned from an extended trip to Brazil. He and Mrs. Wright, having leased their home in Kenwood for the season, have an apartment at the Warwick.

Virginia Palmer Becomes Bride Of Lieut. Max C. Mather

Hessler Studio.

MRS. MAX CHAPMAN MATHER

Wears Mother's Wedding Gown of Ivory Satin in Ceremony at Tracy Place Home; the Rev. Joseph Moran Officiates

Wearing her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin, Miss Virginia Palmer was married yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock to Lieut. Max Chapman Mather, U. S. N. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Augustine Palmer, of 2432 Tracy Place, and the late Judge Palmer, of Rhode Island and Washington.

The ceremony took place before a wide window in Mrs. Palmer's residence. White carnations and roses were banked beside the improvised altar, which was lighted by white tapers.

The Rev. Joseph Moran officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Edward Mahoney, and had as her only attendant her cousin, Miss Mary Lou Burton, of Norfolk, Va. Her gown was trimmed with rose point lace and with it she wore a long veil attached to a tulle cap decorated with orange blossoms. She carried bride's roses and valley lilies.

Miss Burton chose lipstick red crepe with a matching toque and carried yellow chrysanthemums tipped with red. Lieut. Comdr. Joseph Stefanick was best man.

A small reception for relatives and close friends followed the ceremony. Later the couple left for a honeymoon in Hot Springs, Va., the bride wearing a beige ensemble with brown accessories and a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. Mather attended the Maderia School and the Martha Hanoille College in New York. She was graduated from Trinity College and received her master's degree in social science from Catholic University. She made her formal bow to society in 1936.

Lieut. Mather attended school in Grenoble, France, and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1932. He is at present on duty in the Bureau of Naval Operations at the Navy Department. The couple will live at 2432 Tracy Place.

Clarence Hewes Back After Visit To New Orleans

Clarence Hewes has returned to Washington after a visit with his family in New Orleans and has opened his residence on Massachusetts Avenue for the winter.

Mr. Hewes will be joined next Monday by his niece, Miss Ellen Flowerree, of New Orleans. She spent last winter with him here and was among the most popular of the season's debutantes. Since early summer she has been staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flowerree, at their home in the Louisiana city.

Gen. Holcomb Helped at Tea By Mrs. Potts

Wife of Commandant Is Ill, So Colonel's Wife Acts as Hostess

By Elizabeth Henney

The Marines had the situation well in hand yesterday afternoon, and in spite of the fact that the hostess was ill, another "Marjnette" was on hand to step into the role for her.

Following the last parade of the year at the Marine Barracks, the commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, and Mrs. Holcomb entertained at a 5-to-7 tea. At the last minute Mrs. Holcomb developed an attack of asthma and couldn't attend, but Mrs. John Potts, wife of Col. Potts (who is in command of the Marine Barracks), received as official hostess with Gen. Holcomb and the party went off as scheduled.

Marine Orchestra Provides Rhythm

Arriving guests were greeted by the strains of lilting music floating through the rooms, as the Marine Band Orchestra, freshly back from a summer "on tour," gave of their best from the music room. Gaily red uniformed and with a golden harp as background, they were most picturesque. Their waltzes and swing music were so infectiously rhythmical that most of the guests found themselves unconsciously humming and swaying in time to it.

Receiving in the drawing room with Gen. Holcomb, who was in uniform, Mrs. Potts was gowned in a street length frock of black crepe with a corsage of gardenias. With it she wore a smart pancake hat of mink.

In the conservatory and music room were tables with bowls of the famous marine rum punch, and side tables of all varieties of dainties, while in the dining room the more conservative refreshments, tea and coffee, were served from a bounteously laden table. Centering the dining table was a huge bowl of blended dahlias and autumn leaves, flanked by two massive silver five-branched candelabra holding ivory tapers.

Four Admirals' Wives Preside at Tea Table

Officiating at the tea table during the afternoon were four admirals' wives, Mrs. Royal E. Ingersoll, Mrs. Stanford Hooper, Mrs. Ray Spear and Mrs. Harold Bowen.

At the punch bowls were Mrs. John Tildsley, Mrs. Harold Major, Mrs. Lee Brown, Mrs. Merritt Edson, Mrs. Benjamin Galley, Mrs. Howard Fellows, Mrs. Walter Rogers and Mrs. Leland Swindler, all wives of colonels in the Marine Corps.

Among the hundreds who came in during the dusk-to-dark hours were Mrs. George Barnett, Lady Bradford Leslie, Col. and Mrs. Frank J. Morrow, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Benjamin H. Dorsey, Miss Alice Ingersoll, Robert Webster, Secretary of the South African Legation; Col. and Mrs. William C. Harllee, Rear Admiral and Mrs. R. P. Van Keuren, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Dion Williams, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Benet, Capt. and Mrs. Felix Gygax, Capt. and Mrs. Jack Juhan and many more.

Mary Ellen Corby Will Be Guest At Luncheon

Miss Mary Ellen Corby, who will be married on Thursday to Charles Edward Channing, jr., will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given today by Miss Elizabeth McDowell, of Sharon, Pa. Miss McDowell will be maid of honor. The party will take place at the Shoreham.

One of the bridesmaids, Mrs. Thomas P. Bones, jr., and Mr. Bones, gave a supper last night for the couple. Among the guests were Miss June Thomson, of Philadelphia; Mrs. George Story, of Chicago; Miss Dorothy Johnston, Mrs. Gardner Dove, and Mrs. H. Franklin Kreutzburg, all of this city. They will be bridesmaids at the wedding.

The supper party also included Miss Corby's brother, Karl Corby, who will be best man; her stepbrothers, Calvert and Phillip Bowie, Harry McGinnis, Edward Castle, Bolling Hobbs, Andrew Cox, and William Worthington, of Charlottesville, and Serena Merill, of Baltimore, all of whom will usher.

The prospective bride is the daughter of Mrs. George Calvert Bowie and Mr. Channing is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Channing.

Willa Semple To Give Dinner

Miss Willa Semple will entertain at a dinner at the Arts Club on Thursday evening before the piano recital to be given by Miss Elezabeth Travis, of Boston. Miss Travis has appeared here frequently as soloist with the National Symphony.

Among those invited to the dinner are Dr. Hans Kindler, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Ray C. B. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Saugstad, Mr. and Mrs. J. Alden Emery, Maj. and Mrs. Guy Withers, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Turkel, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Chace, Miss Alice Eversman and Miss Marjorie Davis.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mrs. Cordell Hull entertained informally at tea yesterday afternoon, having as her guests Senora Ana Rose de Martinez Guerrero, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, who recently arrived here from Buenos Aires.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Frank Knox returned yesterday from a week-end cruise to Annapolis on the Secretary's yacht, the Sequoia.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies are vacationing at Hot Springs, Va.

Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean has invitations out for her annual Thanksgiving luncheon at Friendship.

Maj. and Mrs. Rene R. Studler, of London have arrived in Washington and are at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Agnes McCall Parker will entertain at a candlelight tea on Thursday afternoon, when the guest of honor will be Mrs. Theodore Tiller. The latter will talk on current events. This is the second in a series of teas Mrs. Parker will hold on alternate Thursdays during the winter.

Mrs. Mitchell Palmer is on a brief visit to New York and is staying at the Biltmore.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flack will return tomorrow from a visit with the former's aunt at Doylestown, Pa.

Mrs. William L. Ritchie has arrived in New York from Langley Field, Va., and is staying at the St. Regis.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger William Conway, jr., of 2523 Fourteenth Street, are in Mexico City for a brief vacation. They are stopping at the Hotel Reforma.

Mrs. Samuel Kaufman, of Chicago, is here to visit her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Morton Kaufman, at the Park Towers.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gassenheimer are spending a week in New York.

About the Town

ONLY 12 more hours, and the season for election jokes will be over for another four years. So here is a final contribution.

DUDLEY HARMON

The wife of a foreign Ambassador was pouring coffee for the hostess at a large afternoon reception recently.

"What delicious coffee," remarked a guest. "What kind is it?"

"It's Willkie coffee," said the foreign pourer. "What?" "I said it's Willkie coffee," the Ambassadress repeated. "Good heavens," said a loyal Democratic bystander. "Is that man also making coffee now?"

A FRIEND has received an unusually interesting letter from an Englishwoman, which contains information usually crossed out by the censor. Here is part of it:

"A ride in a car is now a luxury, but the other day we went to see for ourselves the extent of the damage in London. First of all we looked at Kensington, Chelsea and the West End. It is amazing how quickly the squads of men mend things—only buildings really gutted like John Lewis in Oxford street and the back end of the Burlington Arcade and round the Monument still show. The city was as cheerful as ever—very few people stopped to gaze at ruined houses here and there.

"THE East End and dockside did me a lot of good. We often stopped to ask the way from groups of people, and got replies such as 'You don't have to worry about what that silly little 'Itler gets up to, to try and annoy the likes of us, Lady, 'cause he can't ever get us down.' 'Wot 'Itler knocks down we can pick up again, can't we, Lidy?' etc.

"Nearly all the windows are gone and boards are nailed over, and every shop vies with its neighbor in Cockney wit, such as 'If you can't get in the door, crawl around the back, business as usual.' 'More floor space for customers, thanks to the Nasties.' It did me a power of good; the spirit is tremendous. They certainly will fight in the streets and on the beaches if they have to."

THE FIRST week was the worst—until we had solved the lack of sleep problem we were all rather snappy and tired. Now we use ear plugs and sleep through most of it. We can now distinguish between shells whistling over the house and the whistle of falling bombs (at first we used to go flat down for shells as well as bombs). We have only lost two chimney pots with shrapnel, so are lucky so far. We sleep in the hall, and have most of our meals there, as the drawing room and dining room have rather large windows. (There's an alarm now, but no gunfire yet, so I won't retire to the hall). As I write, I see the woman from the flat opposite, cutting roses in the garden, with a tin helmet on, of course.

"THE FAR side of Berkeley Square, coming from Piccadilly, is razed to the ground—masses of debris, with lovely couches, tables, etc., all over the place, railed off with a rope. It looks most odd, because in the middle of all this a steel lift shaft is untouched, though the lift is burnt out. About four floors high is the lift shaft, and it looks astounding. Another sad sight was a grand piano hanging by its legs from the ruins of a house just off Belgrave Square.

"Our batsman came back from four weeks sick leave yesterday, with a black band around his arm. I was shocked to hear it was for his sister, aged 20 and just married, who was a shoe shop assistant in Lewisham. When one raid became fierce the management sent her and four other girls into an underground shelter. A bomb exploded in the doorway and killed all the 200 people in the shelter. They dug the last lot out three weeks later, as the remains had been driven so deep into the earth. They could only identify his sister by a piece of her red hair and two finger rings.

"ONLY OURSELVES and two other families in these flats (one man is a general, and he sleeps under the stairs) remain above ground at nights. Perhaps we are fools, but I've suffered so much with sciatica that I'd rather die quickly with a bomb than have more sciatica caused by damp in a shelter.

"The American women have sent absolutely lovely clothing to help the homeless. People here appreciate it enormously. So thank you all very much.

"Damn! Another air raid siren has just gone. I hear planes approaching, so I'll say au revoir."

Actress Feted After Show

An informal backstage party centering around Flora Campbell, who has a leading role in "Glamour Preferred," followed last night's opening of the Brock Pemberton comedy at the National Theater.

Miss Campbell has a number of Washington friends, as she has been here several times as the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Short, jr., who were in last night's audience.

"Come backstage and see Flora after the show's over," was the informal invitation Mrs. Short voiced to a few friends between acts. So when the curtain went down on the final act, a sizable number was on hand to congratulate Miss Campbell and other members of the cast on their successful performance. Incidentally, among those present was Ben Cutler, Miss Campbell's husband, who came down from New York especially for the opening.

Miss Campbell will be guest of Mrs. Short at the luncheon today of the Women's National Press Club. Mrs. Short is known professionally as Beth Campbell, former staff writer for the Associated Press.

Luminaries To Follow Vote Gregariously

Many Have Promised To Appear at Three Election Parties

In offices, clubs, and private homes—anywhere there's a radio—society will gather tonight to listen in groups to the election returns. It's a safe bet that no Social Registerite will be alone this evening; many of them have promised to appear at at least three parties, so many are there on the schedule.

Mr. and Mrs. James Farley and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert—both Mr. Robert and Mr. Farley are former stars of the Democratic National Committee—will get together in New York tonight to listen in. They will dine first at that Republican stronghold, the 29 Club. Mr. Farley has, of course, been plugging for Mr. Roosevelt, but it's rumored that Mrs. Farley wears a Willkie pin.

Houghtelings Plan Large Party

One of the largest parties is being held by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling. Mr. Houghteling came to Washington several years ago to serve as Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization. His wife is the daughter of Frederic A. Delano, uncle of the President, so it's pretty safe to bet for whom the Houghtelings will be rooting.

Edward Gardner will entertain at a small dinner tonight at his home on Belmont Road and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pell have asked some of their friends from the diplomatic corps to come in. George Abell will open up champagne for a group of friends in his apartment on Twentieth Street. Judge and Mrs. Edgar Goodrich and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bruce will have "radio parties" and Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse will be "at home" in Mr. Shouse's office.

Mrs. Owens' Party At Press Club

Members of the press will be in the majority at the dinner Mrs. Junior Owens will give tonight at the National Press Club.

With the election predicted to be the closest in 24 years, everybody is keyed up to a high pitch. They'll all be out on the town, but unlike New York, where elections are celebrated mostly in nightclubs, most of Washington's parties will be in private homes or clubs.

Mrs. Georgette Howard Guest of Mrs. Burgess

Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard was honor guest at a luncheon given by Mrs. William C. Burgess yesterday at the Mount Vernon Club in Baltimore. The party followed Mrs. Howard's lecture.

This morning at the Sulgrave Club Mrs. Howard will include in her presentation of Current Topics a discussion of Anne Lindbergh's book, "Wave of the Future."

Envoy Talks On Thai's Land Claims

Efforts to Regain Part of Area Given To France Not New, Club Section Told

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The Thai government's effort to regain a portion of the territory it has ceded to France over a period of years dates back long before the fall of France in June and is not an effort to take advantage of that country in its distress.

This was the assertion of the Minister of Thailand, Mom Rajawongse Seni Pramoj, yesterday in an address before the International Outlook Section of the Twentieth Century Club at the Y. W. C. A.

"We are concerned by the opilon growing up in this country that our action indicates Thailand is taking the totalitarian side. It makes us wince physically and spiritually. The negotiations are being carried on entirely on our own account with no third party involved," he said.

The Thailand envoy explained that the cession of territory to France in the early twentieth century had long been a sore spot and negotiations for territorial readjustment had frequently been discussed. That which is asked, he said, is only an eighth of the whole amount ceded, and makes the Mekong River the natural boundary line.

He emphasized the friendship of Thailand for the United States and said a treaty with this country in 1833 was the first his country, then known as Siam, had signed with a foreign nation.

Mrs. J. K. McClintock, chairman of the section, presided and presented Mme. Seni Pramoj, wife of the Minister, as a guest of honor. There was also a talk on Japan and the Burma Road, by Mrs. E. G. Nourse, a section member.

Mrs. Morgan Opens Lecture Series

Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, who returned in June from Geneva, Switzerland, where she spent eight years as an observer at the League of Nations, yesterday opened a series of lectures at the Sulgrave Club on "The First Year of the War From a Geneva Outpost."

Mrs. Morgan asserted that, according to her best sources of information, Marshal Petain would never accept an agreement to help Germany against Great Britain. A majority of the French in the occupied and unoccupied areas are friendly to England and believe that in her victory lies their only hope of freedom, said Mrs. Morgan.

She said all observers had been watching for the Hitler peace offensive as operations in the Mediterranean lagged, but that it could only be regarded as a move to gain time for the consolidation of his forces.

In a brief reference to the Far East, she declared that, with Japan dependent on imports from this country, "America has power to hamstring any offensive by Japan by an embargo. It is only a question of whether interests of the United States as a whole are considered or merely those of manufacturers who want to maintain their trade with Japan."

League to Give Party Thursday

Senora de Martinez Guerrero, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, and Miss Mary Winslow will be honor guests at a luncheon on Thursday at the Junior League clubhouse. Hosts will be the board of directors and the arts committee of the league, and afterward Senorita Fernandez Biero, who is a noted painter, will speak on art.

Also guests of honor at the luncheon will be Senora de Guerrero's daughter, Senorita Anna Rosa de Martinez Guerrero; Senorita Biero and Senorita Magdalena Pena Salas. That morning the party will visit the social service department of the Children's Hospital, which is maintained by the Junior League, and its clinics and wards. They will be conducted about by Miss Virginia Flannery, secretary of the league; Miss Cecil L. Jones, chairman of the Children's Hospital committee; Mrs. John Reyburn, chairman of volunteers; Miss Fontaine Flannery, a volunteer worker in recreational work in the wards, and Miss Mary Poole.

Tomorrow morning Senora de Martinez Guerrero will address the provisional members of the league on welfare work in the Argentine.

Rectors Aid to Give Turkey Dinner

The Rectors Aid of St. Alban's Church will sponsor its annual turkey dinner Thursday from 5:30 to 7:30 in Satterlee Hall.

Among those who are assisting Mrs. Jerome Burke, the chairman, are Mrs. Elwood H. Seal, Mrs. W. Spencer Brenizer, Mrs. Paris Brengle, Mrs. Luther Schreiner, Mrs. John Warner and Mrs. Wentworth.

Delphian Meeting

"Orientation for Modern Time" will be discussed by the George Washington Chapter of the Delphian Society tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., under the leadership of Mrs. George Lilly. Mrs. C. B. Heinemann will preside.

Sisterhood Has November Luncheon Meeting

Y.W.C.A. Marks World Week

Sunday will mark the beginning of the World Fellowship Week when members of Young Women's Christian Associations in 53 countries will unite in prayer for their fellow members. Miss Sarah Lyon, of the national board of the Y. W. C. A., in New York, will be in Washington on that day and will speak at 4:30 at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets, on "The Y. W. C. A. in Time of War."

This is the forty-sixth year in which associations have held daily services for one week to strengthen world fellowship. Special prayers will be offered in the United States for the many associations which have "gone into silence," associations in conquered lands with which the World's Council has no direct communication—Norway, Poland, Belgium, Denmark, Holland and Czecho-Slovakia.

The Y. W. C. A. in the United States is the only large association in the world which is carrying on a normal program of activities this year. As associated buildings have been bombed in China, the Y. W. C. A. has moved farther and farther into the interior.

In all belligerent countries, Y. W. C. A. program has been drastically cut or adapted to war needs and much work is for the women employed in war industries, in military camps and centers.

In Washington the swimming pool operates as usual, with 7,551 persons in the pool for the first nine months of 1940, while the swimming pool in the big central building in London is used as an air-raid shelter. Washington continues its program of education, recreation, spiritual guidance and housing. The room registry has helped or referred about 7,000 persons to rooms for the first nine months of 1940. In Paris, Berlin, Tokyo, Shanghai and London, the Y. W. C. A. program is dictated by war needs.

Members of the Washington Y. W. C. A. will subscribe to a special World Fellowship Fund as a thank offering that this association can function normally, its program based on its purpose:

"To build a fellowship of women and girls devoted to the task of realizing in our common life those ideals of personal and social living to which we the committed by our faith as Christians.

"To understand Jesus, to share His love for all people, and to grow in the knowledge and love of God."

Chi Omega Group Meets Tomorrow With Mrs. Weaver

Chi Omega will hold its regular monthly dinner meeting at the home of Mrs. Maurice E. Weaver, 2101 Wisconsin Avenue, at 6:30 tomorrow night.

Lewis Heck, a member of the foreign service in Turkey for a number of years, will speak. Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard, prominent lecturer, will be guest of honor and will introduce him.

Mrs. Louis Malkus is in charge of arrangements for the dinner, assisted by Mrs. Graham Lowdon, Mrs. Walter Donald, Mrs. Dallas Barr, Miss Rachael Bretherton, Miss Inez Ingham, Miss Charlotte Taylor, Miss Margaret Silber, Miss Norma Bose and Mrs. John Bischoff.

Reservations are in charge of the president of the association, Miss Barbara Watson, 3719 Cumberland Street Northwest.

Madame Chairman

By SUZANNNE

THE AMERICAN HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY will have its fall meeting of officers, directors and committee chairmen at the Cosmos Club Saturday, with a luncheon at 1 o'clock.

The society has members throughout the country. Officers who will be here for the meeting include Mrs. Walter Douglas Chauncey, of New York; Mrs. Robert H. Fife, of New York; Mrs. Fairfax Harrison, of Virginia; Mrs. Norman Henry, of Gladwyne, Pa., and Mrs. Arthur Hoyt, of Media, Pa.

Those from Washington and the vicinity who will attend include Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Richard Fay Jackson, Miss Cary Millholland, Mrs. Chester Wells, Mrs. Lloyd Shippen, Col. Henry P. Erwin, B. Y. Morrison, Robert C. Moncure and Dr. V. T. Stoutemyer.

ALUMNI TO MEET—With the Presidential election out of the way, the alumni of Purdue University will meet tomorrow night for dinner at Taft Inn, 1603 K Street, and elect their officers for the year. All graduates and former students have been asked to attend.

THE WOMEN'S CLUB of Highland Springs, Va., an organization of nearly 50 members, is coming to Washington on a sight-seeing trip tomorrow, and will have luncheon at the headquarters of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, 1734 N Street.

The visit will include a trip to the Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument, Smithsonian Institution, the Capitol and, if there is still time, a tour of one of the large stores.

The club regards this excursion as its most important meeting of the year. It was founded in 1902, became a member of the State Federation in 1909 and of the General Federation in 1915.

The officers are Mrs. Holmes C. Turner, president; Mrs. William Binford and Mrs. Waverly Hughes, vice presidents; Mrs. H. C. Duesberry, recording secretary; Mrs. M. O. Burton, treasurer; Mrs. Eddie M. Burnett, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ernest Pennell, junior sponsor, and Mrs. Charles E. Smith, historian.

RECIPROCITY LUNCHEON—The monthly reciprocity luncheon of the P. E. O. Sisterhood will be held tomorrow at Woodward & Lothrop's tea room, with Chapter J as hostess. The president, Miss Jane Mackay Anderson, is in charge of reservations.

P.-T.A. Leaders' Course to Begin

More than 50 representatives of parent-teacher associations in Washington are expected to register in the "Course for Study Group Leaders," opening Thursday at George Washington University.

This course, following closely upon the Fourth Annual Parent-Teacher Institute, sponsored last week by the university and the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, is planned to provide instruction for those in charge of group study in the various parent-teacher organizations throughout the city.

The course is made up of ten two-hour sessions, starting at 10 a. m. on Thursday in the Hall of Government, to be supervised by Mrs. Frances P. Simsarian, a specialist in child guidance who is a candidate for the doctoral degree. Members of the university staff and outside lecturers, each an expert in some phase of child development, will address the class meetings.

Regular university credit is not given for the course, but each member of the class will be awarded a certificate at the end of the course, signifying attendance at these classes for one year.

The course is offered by the School of Education of the university.

Kappa Delta Phi Chapters Hold Dance

Members of the Washington chapters of Kappa Delta Phi Sorority held a dinner and dance at the Admiral Club last night in observance of the fifteenth anniversary of Founders' Day. This sorority is a national social organization and the first Washington chapter was founded by Miss Mary Emery on June 4, 1934. Since that date, three more chapters have been installed in the District.

The Founders' Day committee included Mrs. Ralph E. Savidge and Misses Sidney Ann Adams and Pat Brinton.

Excelsior Literary Club

The Excelsior Literary Club will meet today at Mrs. Robert S. Hall's home, 4105 Twenty-fifth Street North, Arlington. A talk by Mrs. Langly on "Queen May" will be the highlight of the afternoon.

'You Can't Vote Here,' Leaflets Say

Voteless District League To Drape Ballot Boxes In Mourning Today

"You Can't Vote Here—In the Capital of the World's Greatest Democracy."

Leaflets with this title will be distributed by members of the Voteless District League of Women Voters today at what might have been polling places, where they will have ballot boxes draped in mourning. They will be at the National Press Building, Fourteenth and F Streets; at the Star Building, Eleventh Street and Pennsylvania Avenue, and the National Savings Trust, Fifteenth Street and New York Avenue, between 11 a. m. and 2 p. m.

"Today, while millions of American citizens are showing their faith in democracy by voting for their representatives and for the President of the United States, it seems strikingly inconsistent that the residents of the Nation's Capital are denied this right," says the league's leaflet.

It answers the argument that many "Washingtonians vote in the States" with the fact that 300,000 of those of voting age cannot.

It points out that members of Congress are frowned on by constituents of their home States when they spend much time on the Capital's business.

It then urges an amendment to trict the vote in national electhe Constitution giving the Distions.

Mrs. M. O. Lorenz is president of the local branch of the league, which will have a housewarming this afternoon at its headquarters, 1216 Connecticut Avenue.

Pen Women Honor Mrs. F. W. Triepel At Luncheon

A testimonial luncheon in honor of Mrs. Frederick William Triepel, only living founder of the National League of American Pen Women, was given yesterday at the Willard Hotel, headquarters of the national organization.

Among the guests were Mrs. E. Richard Gasch, of this city, president of the national league, and Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell, president of the District branch, of which Mrs. Triepel is a member.

Stephens College Alumnae Hear Conclave Report

The Stephens College Alumnae Club of Washington had its second meeting of the winter season last evening at the home of Miss Louise Marshall, Town House Apartments.

Miss Helen Froelich, president of the club, reported on the national alumnae convention held in Columbia, Mo., October 23 to 27, with presidents of Stephens Clubs throughout the country attending. They participated in an instruction course on club management and studied various branches of the Stephens College curriculum, among them student government, style and grooming, interior decoration, dramatics—having dinner with Maude Adams—radio, speech and consumers' research.

On December 11 the local club will give a dinner honoring Miss Ann Sorncey, of Columbia, national secretary of the Stephens College Alumnae Association.

District's First Two Selectees Are Classified

Volunteering Absorbs First-Call Quotas In All but 4 Districts

Washington's first two selectees to be classified for training, perhaps the first in the United States, were named yesterday by Board 13 as volunteers absorbed all first-call quotas in every district here but four.

So insistent were two registrants in District 13 that they be classified, the board held a special meeting yesterday afternoon, examined their cases and placed both in Class 1-A, first to be called for service. The two men must undergo physical examination, which must wait until the district's medical board is organized, before being definitely accepted, but except for that they are ready.

They are William Henry Medley, 23, and Winfred William Brown, 21, both colored, of 1318 Twelfth Street Northwest. They said they preferred no particular branch of the service, so long as "we're in the Army."

A survey of the city's 25 registration Districts yesterday showed volunteers had been received in all but four in sufficient numbers to more than absorb the 51 trainees to be called this month, provided the volunteers are accepted. These volunteers are men far down the list who asked to be advanced to the first quota.

District Selective Service headquarters announced quotas for the local districts, 32 men to be called November 27 and 19 November 28. It is expected they will be sent first to the reception center at Fort George C. Meade, Md., before being assigned to military units.

Local district quarters and volunteers reported in each district are:

District No. 1: Quota, none November 27, 2 November 28, volunteers, 2; District 2: Quotas, 1 November 27, none November 28, volunteers, 8; District 3: Quotas, none November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, none; District 4: Quotas, 2 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 4; District 5: Quotas, 2 November 27, none November 28, volunteers, 9; District 6: Quotas, 2 November 27, none November 28, volunteers, 1; District 7: Quotas, 2 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 7; District 8: Quotas, 2 November 27, none November 28, volunteers, 6; District 9: Quotas, 2 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 7; District 10: Quotas, 2 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 8; District 11: Quotas, 2 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 6; District 12: Quotas, 2 November 27, none November 28, volunteers, 16; District 13: Quotas, 1 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 8; District 14: Quotas, 1 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 10.

District 15: Quotas, none November 27, 2 November 28, volunteers, 3; District 16: Quotas, 1 November 27, none November 28, volunteers, 2; District 17: Quotas, 1 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, not available; District 18: Quotas, 1 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 6; District 19: Quotas, 2 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 10; District 20: Quotas, 2 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 7; District 21: Quotas, 1 November 27, none November 28, volunteers, none; District 22: Quotas, 1 November 27, none November 28, volunteers, 2; District 23: Quotas, 1 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 4; District 24: Quotas, none November 27, 2 November 28, volunteers, none; District 25: Qotas, 1 November 27, 1 November 28, volunteers, 3.

Questionnaires Mailed

All local boards yesterday completed the task of mailing 50 questionnaires to the first 50 order numbers on their lists. Two boards announced their advisory committees would be on hand this week to assist registrants in filling out their questionnaires.

Board No. 2 said its advisory committee would meet daily from 4 to 6 p. m. at the Murch School, Thirty-sixth and Ellicott Streets, beginning today, to assist registrants.

Board No. 10 said one member of its committee would be available nightly in room 211, Cook Elementary School, Seventeenth and Euclid Streets Northwest, tomorrow through Friday, from 7 to 10 o'clock.

Two Women Hurt As Youths Pelt Potatoes at Bus

Three youths waylaid a Marlboro bus last night and laid down a potato barrage that injured two women.

A dozen potatoes were hurled at the bus in the 100 block of D Street Southeast, shattering several windows, before the driver, Wendell Reno, of Capital Heights, Md., could stop and give chase. The youths fled.

Taken to Providence Hospital in a passing auto, Kay Moore, 48, of Capital Heights, and Mrs. Alling Sallom, 37, of 3721 Suitland Road Southeast, were treated for face cuts inflicted by flying glass.

Three Youths Rob Rent Collector For ADA of $92

Attacked by three colored youths who apparently had spotted him collecting rents, Herman Edwards, of 5008 Nebraska Avenue Northwest, yesterday was robbed of $92.

Edwards, a rent collector for the Alley Dwelling Authority, told police he had been making his rounds when he was seized by the youths as he walked through an alley alongside 1231 Half Street Southwest.

Edwards described his assailants as between 18 and 20 years of age. He said $30 of the money was his own.

Washington Council of Social Agencies Gives Luncheon in Honor of Justice Pine

Senator King Presents Award Certificate To Ex-Prosecutor

Justice David A. Pine, of the District Court, was honored yesterday as the Washington man who last year was "most outstanding in the administration of criminal justice and prevention of juvenile delinquency" at a luncheon of court and civic leaders given by the Council of Social Agencies.

Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, presented a certificate of award on behalf of the corrections committee of the council. He praised Justice Pine as a man of character and integrity who, as District Attorney last year, made "an impressive contribution to the repression of crime here."

Dr. James A. Nolan, director of the Criminal Justice Association, called Pine one of the 'most efficient district attorneys the city has had." He cited his record in reducing the District docket and credited him with destroying a $2,000,000 numbers racket.

David Hart and John J. Wilson, both assistant District Attorneys during Pine's administration, referred to the present justice as "one of the finest and most efficient District Attorneys" for whom either had worked. Wilson called him "a real lawyer, a real administrator, and a real worker."

Saccardi Presides

Vincent Saccardi, chairman of the council committee which made the award, called Pine "one of the most likable men in Washington." Presiding at the luncheon was Saccardi's last official act as chairman of the corrective committee, which he has headed for three years.

Mrs. Pine was presented with a spray of flowers by Mrs. Roger Robb, wife of the former United States District Attorney.

The written tribute presented to Justice Pine commended "his diligent service to the community in vigorously and effectively repressing crime during his incumbency as United States Attorney for the District of Columbia.

"We acknowledge the inspiring leadership and outstanding contribution of Justice Pine as demonstrated by his devotion to duty, his unfaltering courage, his absolute integrity, his understanding of humanity, and his wise and efficient administration of criminal justice," it continued.

In accepting the certificate, Justice Pine asserted that "it is not with the belief that I personally deserve it, but rather with the belief that it comes to me as the representative and trustee for all who joined in that wonderful crusade, to whom I express my sincere gratitude."

He commended as those who have aided in repressing crime in the District, the courthouse newspaper reporters, the Board of Trade, the Federation of Business Men's Associations, the citizens associations and the corrective committee of the Council, as well as the Criminal Justice Association and the District Bar Association.

Also attending the annual presentation, which last year honored Justice Bolitha Laws, were Justin Miller, of the Municipal Court; G. Howland Shaw, head of the State Department's foreign service division; Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, president of the Council of Social Agencies; Mrs. William Kittle, of the Board of Education; Robert Caldwell, of the U. S. district attorney's office, and more than 75 others.

Bride, 17, Killed, Machinist Held

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 4 (AP).—Sullen and short-spoken, Dale Darrow, 23, was returned to Oakland County Jail today while authorities prepared to charge him with murdering his 17-year-old bride, Eileen, an expectant mother.

A searching party of sheriff's deputies found Eileen's body in a shallow grave on a farm near Allegan this morning, and Prosecutor Ervin Andrews of Allegan County, said he would recommend a first-degree murder charge against the young machinist.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of these gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Heightening of Home In Georgetown Fought

Mrs. Atwill's Plans To Be Protested By Citizens' Group

Protests against the addition of another story to the home of Mrs. Lionel Atwill, sister of James H. R. Cromwell, at Thirty-fourth and O Streets Northwest, was registered last night by the Progressive Citizens' Association of Georgetown.

After it was reported at the meeting that permission for such an addition was being sought, the association voted to send a letter to the Zoning Commission. Members were urged to join a delegation to appear in protest at a hearing before the commission at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Heightening of the house would bring it above the limits set in Georgetown, speakers stated. Mrs. Charles Bittinger, of 3403 O Street Northwest, reported sentiment which had come to her attention against the move. Bittinger, an artist, has a studio whose light would be affected by the additional story, it was added.

Sees Opening Wedge

Mrs. Harry LeRoy Jones, president of the association, said after the meeting that "we're against the attempt to add the story because if an exception is made for one person, it may be made for others."

Mrs. Jones was empowered to appoint a committee to investigate a report that a new fire engine house was being contemplated in the neighborhood of Wisconsin Avenue and Reservoir Road which, she pointed out, is a residential district.

The association voted to push a movement for an increase in the appropriation for the Public Library branch in Georgetown, to provide for improvement of a vacant lot back of the building.

"Perennial objections" to refuse burning at Thirty-first and K Streets was registered at the meeting. An incinerator, which lacks a screen, allows half-burned paper and other refuse to escape, it was said.

Forest Hills

The Forest Hills Citizens Association moved last night to find out why the walls of Woodrow Wilson High School have never been painted.

The organization, meeting at Ben Murch School, Thirty-sixth and Ellicott Streets Northwest, agreed to send a letter of inquiry to the Board of Education, pointing out that the glare is causing strain on pupils' eyes. The painting was supposed to have been done three years ago, according to Mrs. Leslie Boudinot Wright, president.

In another resolution the association voted to support the Northwest Citizens Council in its efforts to obtain better bus service for Connecticut Avenue.

The association, it was announced, will sponsor a community Christmas tree and a night of carol singing during the holidays at Forest Hills Garden, Linnean Avenue and Davenport Street Northwest.

Metropolis View

Roosevelt won the Metropolis View Citizens Association straw vote last night by 58 per cent.

Vincent P. Boudren, association president, announced, "As Metropolis View goes, so goes the Nation," in explaining the 14-to-11 vote.

After the vote the group discussed a proposal that the area near Seventh and Franklin Streets Northeast be rezoned to permit construction of an eight-story apartment house on the corner. The association decided to sound the sentiment of residents nearby before taking a position on the question.

Most of the meeting was devoted to amending the constitution and watching Police Capt. Richard Mansfield, of Ninth Precinct, deliver one of his cartoon "Chalk Talks." Philip Wagshall was appointed general counsel of the association.

Takoma Park, D. C.

The Takoma Park, D. C., Citizens Association instructed its police and fire committee last night to work against "indiscriminate" installation of traffic lights in the area.

The committee, headed by D. Stewart Patterson, was told to protest the proposed establishment of lights at Van Buren Street and Blair Road and at Aspen Street and Blair Road, advocated by the Takoma Park (Md.-D. C.) Citizens Association.

The Takoma Park (D. C.) Association joined its fellow organization, however, in seeking a traffic light at Fourth and Cedar Streets.

The association decided to hold its community Christmas celebration at Calvin Coolidge High School this year instead of the playground center at Fourth and Whittier Streets, as fomerly. The meeting was held at the Takoma Park (D. C.) Elementary School, on Piney Branch Road.

Kenilworth

A hearing by the Public Utilities Commission on the feasibility of bringing natural gas into Washington will be asked on the basis of action taken last night by the Kenilworth Citizens Association, meeting at Kenilworth School. Capt. Hugh Groves, of Eleventh Precinct, was guest of honor.

The association voted to ask that recreation centers in the area be opened all day Saturdays and from 3 p. m. to 6 p. m. week-days to give children more opportunity for supervised play. A resolution asking that Forty-fifth Place Northeast be resurfaced was adopted.

It was decided to send a letter commending him on his appointment as corporation counsel to Richmond B. Keech. The association voted to hold a social after each meeting hereafter.

Congress Hts. Progressive

Dr. F. E. Richardson was reelected president of the Progressive Citizens of Congress Heights Association at a meeting last night in Congress Heights School. R. A. Sullivan was elected vice president; Mrs. Edna Sydnor, secretary, and Mrs. Edna Hoag, treasurer.

Members voted to set up a Christmas tree this year at Nicholas Avenue and Portland Street

Takoma Asks Ban On Chicken Coops

A new ordinance "limiting, restricting or abolishing" chicken coops in closely populated areas of Takoma Park, is advocated in a resolution adopted last night at the Takoma Park Community League.

The league, meeting at the Health and Welfare Center, 8 Columbia Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., resolved to ask the town council to pass such an ordinance.

Another resolution asks the council for a cinder path sidewalk along Maple Avenue for children going to and from Takoma Park Elementary School and for a sidewalk on Saratoga Avenue leading to the new junior high school.

Dupont Circle

The Dupont Circle Citizens Association voted yesterday to send a "strong" letter to the District Commissioners urging stricter enforcement of antihorn blowing regulations.

Particular emphasis was placed on violations of the ban on blowing auto horns between midnight and 7 a. m. Harral Mullkien, a member, said he counted 63 violations in an hour one morning.

The association, meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, also discussed proposals for establishment of a playground at Twenty-third and P Streets Northwest, but formal action was deferred until reception of a full report from the streets and playgrounds committee.

Prisoner Accused Of Attacking Policeman in Cell

Pvt. William O'Connor, 45, veteran policeman, was badly hurt last night when he was allegedly struck down by a prisoner in a cell at Seventh Precinct Station. He was treated at Georgetown Hospital for possible fractures of the collarbone and shoulder blade and transferred to Mount Alto Hospital.

O'CONNOR

Pvt. K. M. Trundle, acting station clerk, said he heard scuffling in the cell and soon after O'Connor had gone there to bring out Robert R. Kahne, 32, of 3639 Nichols Avenue Southeast, charged with being drunk, to use a telephone. He went back, he said, and found Kahne standing over O'Connor, who was on the cell floor. Kahne was charged with assault on an officer.

Mount Pleasant Association Serves Capital's 'First Suburb'

Citizens Group Celebrates 30th Anniversary; Unit Helped to Obtain Community Library, Bancroft School and Enlargement

This is the thirty-seventh article in a series about citizens' associations in the District and their efforts to make the community a better place in which to live.

The Mount Pleasant Citizens Association, celebrating its thirtieth anniversary this year, serves "Washington's first suburb," for Mount Pleasant, members say, was doing business under that name when the District of Columbia was formed.

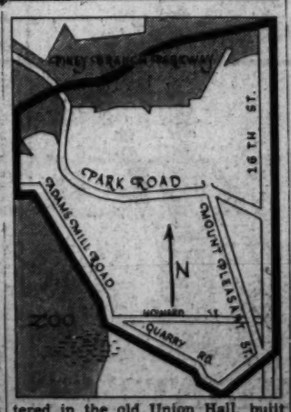
Said to be unique is its collection of historical documents, pictures, clippings, and maps of old Washington, filed in the Mount Pleasant Branch Library. It was started by Mrs. William G. Stuart and completed by M. W. Lewis, who served the association as president for several terms.

Among the association's claims to distinction is the part it played in obtaining the community library, which is one of those given by the Carnegie Foundation. The association was active also in obtaining construction and subsequent enlargement of Bancroft School.

It campaigned for years against pollution of Piney Branch Creek, and the construction of a diversion sewer was started the first of this year. The organization has devoted much of its efforts to promoting the proper placing of building lines and the general zoning of the community.

President of the Mount Pleasant association this year is M. Virginia O'Neill, of 3352 Eighteenth Street Northwest. John De LaMater, of 3330 Seventeenth Street Northwest, is the "permanent" secretary of the citizens. "His records are really historical documents," former President William C. Lee once said. "No one would think of running against him."

His records show that Mount Pleasant community life once centered in the old Union Hall, built in 1874 with funds intended for a church. By 1878, clippings show, there was also a Mount Pleasant Opera House, at which the "Tropical Exotics" gave frequent programs.



Fifteenth Street winds because early Mount Pleasant residents beat it out that way, as a path, and a way to straighten it never has appeared, the secretary added.

Meetings of the Mount Pleasant association are held on the second Saturday of each month in the Mount Pleasant Branch Public Library, Sixteenth and Lamont Streets Northwest. The next meeting will be held this week.

Local C.I.O. Urges Vote For Capital

Council Adopts Resolution Asking National Convention To Back Suffrage

Washington Industrial Union Council, central C. I. O. body here, last night adopted resolutions calling on the national C. I. O. convention to back the move for District suffrage and national representation.

Sidestepping for two weeks adoption of an official attitude toward the question of renominating John L. Lewis as head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations—Lewis has stated he would resign if President Roosevelt were reelected—the council also urged the national convention to consider the following:

A rent control commission and increased appropriation for low cost housing in the District.

Support of the American Youth Act, which would increase training, employment, and educational opportunities for youth between the age of 16 and 25; and closer cooperation between labor and youth, "especially the American Youth Congress."

The convention also was asked to approve a "constructive program for the welfare of all workers affected by the draft," as follows:

That future appointments to selective service boards and other agencies be of a more representative character than at present so that there is a proper number of labor and colored members.

That the appeals procedure assure open hearings, presentation of evidence, and the right of the selectee to be represented by counsel.

That "clear and unmistakable" provision be made for reinstatement in their job of all selectees; and that if reinstatement is not possible, adequate unemployment compensation be paid.

That the military pay be increased so that it will be comparable to pay in industry.

That any loss of earnings by the selectees be fully made up by the employer.

That a committee be appointed to advise selectees of their rights, prevent evictions, and protect benefits.

That civil and not martial law be applied to selectees.

That "all American civil liberties" be maintained in Selective Service camps.

That unions be able to designate leaders who ought to be deferred.

The Industrial Union Council also denounced the District Commissioners for naming no labor representative to the local defense commission.

A move to consider what action the council will take in case Lewis refuses to run for another term as C. I. O. president, was turned over for consideration by the executive council. It was argued that the council will have another meeting to decide the question before the convention votes for its officers.

The C. I. O. unions will meet in Atlantic City November 18-20. The council here is scheduled to meet November 18. The convention election will not be held until the twentieth. Kathryn Lewis, daughter of the C. I. O. chief, is the council's delegate to the convention. She is presently uninstructed.

Welles and Joe Louis Wind Up Hot Maryland Election Drive

Campaign Ends in Blaze of Oratory With Both Sides Predicting Victory; Close Race Seen for Some House Seats

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—Maryland's general election campaign wound up tonight in a blaze of oratory and sharply conflicting claims by Democratic and Republican leaders.

Leading off the "climax" speeches were Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, for the Democrats, and Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis for the Republicans, both speaking in Baltimore.

Throughout the State, Congressional candidates and county leaders delivered broadcast pleas and appeared at final rallies.

W. David Tilgman, jr., Republican State chairman, announced flatly:

"From the reports I have received I am completely confident that we will carry every county for Mr. Willkie, and, with him, our Senatorial and Congressional candidates."

Truman B. Cash, Democratic chairman:

"We'll bring Mr. Roosevelt into Baltimore with a nice majority and carry Baltimore by a big majority."

Congressional Contests

On the ballots tomorrow, voters must decide Presidential, Senatorial and six Congressional contests and vote for or against six constitutional amendments and two acts of the 1939 Legislature.

Best available reports from the counties tonight indicated a hot Congressional fight in the First District, and close contests in the Fourth and Sixth Districts.

Political observers regarded as significant Democratic Chairman Cash's statement that President Roosevelt would poll a "nice" majority in the counties and a "big" majority in Baltimore.

Chief objective of Republican leaders has been a big county vote for Willkie—particularly on the Eastern Shore—on the theory that, given a large enough county majority, Willkie could overcome the conceded Roosevelt margin in Baltimore.

Aside from the Roosevelt-Willkie Presidential race, the Democratic and Republican State tickets lined up this way:

For United States Senate—Senator George L. Radcliffe (Democrat); Harry W. Nice (Republican).

Congressional—First, Representative David J. Ward (Democrat), Robert F. Duer (Republican); Second, Representative William P. Cole (Democrat), Theodore Brown (Republican); Third, Representative Thomas D'Alesandro (Democrat), John Janetzke (Republican); Fourth, John A. Meyer (Democrat), Daniel Ellison (Republican); Fifth, Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (Democrat), John M. Torvestad (Republican).

Sixth: Representative William D. Byron (Democrat); Walter Johnson (Republican).

Amendments Listed

These constitutional amendments appear on the ballot:

Providing for appointment, instead of election, of the clerk of the State Court of Appeals.

Providing for changes in procedure of the Baltimore Peoples Court.

Providing for additional judge in Seventh Circuit.

Increasing the salary of the ... islature from $450 to $750 a ...

Providing for new apportior of Third Circuit judges.

Providing that a Governor may not succeed himself.

Providing that salaries of State judges may be taxed.

The acts of the Legislature up for approval or rejection by the voters are one establishing a fisheries commission to replace the present conservation commission and another revising the setup of the State industrial accident commission.

Election officials throughout the State predicted the vote would be heavy. The Weather Bureau predicted the weather would be cloudy, warm and dry.

115 Physicians Open Seminar At Howard U.

Clinical Problems Subject of 3-Day Postgraduate Parley

More than 115 physicians from many sections of the country went back to school yesterday at the opening session of Howard University's first postgraduate seminar.

The three-day meeting, which will end Wednesday, is sponsored by the District Tuberculosis Association, the Medico-Chirurgical Society, the Social Hygiene Society and the Maryland Tuberculosis Association.

Clinical problems in pulmonary tuberculosis, symptoms of early syphilis, management of a pregnant woman and examination of the child were among the subjects discussed at yesterday's sessions by Dr. W. Roderick Brown, of Pittsburgh, and Dr. T. K. Lawless, Dr. Edward Beasley and Dr. C. Leon Wilson, of Chicago.

Dr. James Hall, professor of medicine at Howard, will preside at today's sessions and at the luncheon meeting in Sojourner Truth Hall, where there will be a round table discussion of community work in the prevention and control of tuberculosis and syphilis.

Speakers will include Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer; Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, managing director of the District Tuberculosis Association; Ray Everett, director of the Social Hygiene Society; William B. Matthews, jr., of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, and Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, head of the District maternal health bureau.

Capital News In Brief

A Chicken Dinner Goes on a Spree

A determined Plymouth Rock hen yesterday disrupted Georgetown traffic, drew cheers from bystanders, and perturbed citizens of the Wisconsin and P Street Northwest area

It all began when a youth in a Georgetown market volunteered to wring the chicken's neck. The hen sought safety on traffic-crowded Wisconsin Avenue.

The youth followed. Traffic stopped. A man joined the chase and the hen ducked under a parked car. Others joined the chase and, after a 10-minute search, captured the potential Sunday dinner.

A bystander suggested that she be pensioned.

Roosevelt Supporter Runs Afoul of Law

Herbert F. McAllister was a puzzled Roosevelt fan last night. He displayed his enthusiasm for the President and promptly ran afoul of the law.

McAllister, 37, of 1407 S Street Northwest, is a cab driver and last night he appeared with a big Roosevelt poster stuck on the rear glass of his cab. At Fourteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue, hack inspectors made him take it off. There's a regulation by the Public Utilities Commission that no sign can be displayed on a public conveyance without the commission's consent.

'Jinx' Disappears With Cash and Gun

A colored man identified only as "Jinx" proved worthy of his name yesterday when Clement E. Atkinson, manager of a barber shop at 193. Ninth Street Northwest, hired him to sweep the floor.

It was 1 a. m. when Jinx started the job, and Atkinson was tired after a long day. The manager settled himself in one of the barber chairs and fell asleep.

When he awoke at 6 a. m. Jinx was gone. So was $65 from Atkinson's trousers pocket and a pistol from a drawer in the shop.

Counterfeit Money Scarce at Two Fairs

Counterfeiters avoided the two World's Fairs this year, for the most part.

The Secret Service here yesterday said it was well pleased that out of the approximately $68,400,000 spent at the New York Fair, only $157 of counterfeit bills and $587.65 of counterfeit coins were found.

At the San Francisco Fair, where visitors spent approximately $8,900,000, the counterfeit money found totaled only $20 in bills and $40.20 in coins.

Barney House Open To Visitors Today

Contracts Let For Ft. Belvoir Cantonment

Va. Army Post Plans $5,784,043 Housing For 10,000 Selectives

The Army yesterday announced the award of a contract for construction of a $5,784,043 cantonment at Fort Belvoir, Va., to house more than 10,500 men to be called under the Selective Service program.

More than 240 buildings will be erected under the order, which was placed with the Charles H. Tompkins Co., of Washington, and Potts & Callahan Contracting Co., of Baltimore. Included in the cost was a subsidiary contract for architectural and engineering services placed with Slaughter, Saville and Blackburn, Inc., of Richmond.

Officials said a "replacement center" or special training camp for selectives assigned to the Army Engineer Corps will be built capable of housing 7,500 white and 3,000 colored troops at the nearby post. In addition an engineer enlisted specialists' school and housing for engineer and quartermaster troops will be constructed.

The terms of the contract calls for the cantonment to be ready by January 15. All buildings will be temporary structures similar in design to those constructed at Army posts during the World War.

Approximately 167 barracks and 52 mess halls are to be built for the replacement center, besides numerous administrative buildings, storehouses, quarters, hospitals, service clubs, etc.

Road Project To Be Pushed, O'Conor Assures

Gov. O'Conor of Maryland last night assured Montgomery County officials that steps to start work on the Old Georgetown Road widening project will be taken immediately.

Operations were held up recently because of a right-of-way dispute at the Bethesda end of the road. Plans call for widening the thoroughfare to Alta Vista.

O'Conor last night wired Thomas E. Hampden, president of the Montgomery County Board of Commissioners, as follows:

"Have conferred with Chairman Whitman of the State roads commission regarding the Old Georgetown Road project. Am assured steps will be taken immediately to start operations."

2 Injured Seriously By Autos

Pedestrians Hurt Crossing Streets; One Felled Near His Home

Two persons were seriously hurt yesterday in Washington traffic accidents.

In critical condition last night was Clarence Chisholm, 46, colored, of 1618 Montello Avenue Northeast, who was struck by an auto as he was crossing West Virginia Avenue Northeast at Corcoran Street. He was taken to Casualty Hospital with a fractured skull. Driver of the auto, according to police, was Marie L. Cerce, 29, of 3109 Channing Street Northeast.

Also felled as he was crossing the street was Edwin Cowell, 75, of 200 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. The accident occurred in front of Cowell's residence. He suffered severe injuries to the head and ribs, and was taken to Casualty Hospital. Police listed the auto operator as Anthony Polifka, 45, of 1719 Q Street Northwest.

Two unusual accidents, which took place Sunday, were reported to police.

In a five car collision, Mildred P. Cecil, 31, of Arlington, suffered face and head injuries and was treated at Emergency Hospital. One of the five autos stopped short in the 4900 block Sixteenth Street Northwest, and the other four came together. The other four drivers were listed as Josephine O. Stewart, 49, of 2013 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest; Betty M. Garcia, 20, of Weirton, W. Va.; Lee Redwood, 51, Leesburg, Va., and Irwin D. Nathanson, 3623 Ordway Street Northwest.

Three persons were hurt in a three-car accident. According to police, an auto driven by Christopher C. Lusby, 18, of Benning, D. C., rammed a parked auto in the 3100 block Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, which in turn struck another parked car. Lusby suffered a fractured left arm; a passenger, May Mitchell, 20, of 1331 D Street Northeast, lost several teeth, and a third occupant of Lusby's auto, William C. Ritchie, of 3101 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, sustained fractured ribs.

Boy, 13, Shouts Good-by to Mother, Ends Life With Gun

Herbert H. Runyon, 13, of Bailey's Crossroads, Va., who didn't like school because he was older and bigger than the other boys in his class, yesterday said goodbye to his mother and then took his life with a 12-gauge shotgun.

Mrs. Lillian Runyon found her son's body in his bedroom when she returned from milking the family cow in a barn a short distance from the house. Apparently the boy placed the muzzle of the gun against his chest and pulled the trigger with his toe, police said. Dr. T. B. McCord, Fairfax County coroner, announced he would issue a certificate of suicide.

Her son shouted goodbye to her several times when she left the house, Mrs. Runyon said.

Members of the family said Herbert, a sixth grade pupil at Bailey's Crossroads School, had wanted to go to work for his father, B. H. Runyon, who deals in building materials.

Art League Formed In Allegany County

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 4.—The Allegany County Art League was formed by a group of 20 exhibitors in the fourth annual Allegany County art exhibition, now on at the Cumberland free public library.

Philip B. The Earle Puts Up Own Ticket of Ace Candidates

Feature Films Announced for Eight Weeks; New Apex Theater Nears Its Inaugural Date; This, That and the Other About the Theater

IT MAY BE FUTILE to mention it on a day when American attention—especially the National Capital's—is concentrated on the quadrennial melee out of which emerges a President of the United States, but, for those who care, there still are eight widely heralded pictures coming to the Earle Theater this month and next. Many of them, perhaps all, have been mentioned here before as vague possibilities for sometime during the current season, but the matter of playing dates now has been filtered down to presumably consecutive weeks that lie in the immediate future.

BELL

The eight cover a wide range of subject matter and enlist the service of ne plus ultra casts. How fully they may live up to their fulsome advance ballyhoo, of course, remains to be seen. At any rate, here they are:

"A Dispatch From Reuters," the story of the development of news transmission, starring Edward G. Robinson, with Edna Best, Eddie Albert and Albert Basserman leading the support; "Moon Over Burma," in which Dorothy Lamour will be seen as a comedienne, with Preston Foster and Robert Preston as chief aids; "The Letter," in which Bette Davis succeeds to the role played with such distinction on the stage by the late Jeanne Eagels and Katharine Cornell; Cecil B. DeMille's Technicolor production of "Northwest Mounted Police," with Gary Cooper, Madeleine Carroll and Paulette Goddard, among numerous others; Miriam Hopkins, as Mrs. Leslie Carter, in "The Lady With Red Hair"; "South of Suez," starring George Brent, with Brenda Marshall; Marjorie Rambeau, in "Tugboat Annie Sails Again," and "Santa Fe Trail," reuniting Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland.

Representing an expenditure of some $250,000, the Apex Theater, in the 4800 block of Massachusetts Avenue, northwest, is scheduled to open about the middle of this month, with a distinguished audience of diplomats, civic officials and citizen association leaders in attendance at the inaugural. Designed to serve the Spring Valley, Observatory Circle and Bethesda communities, the new house is constructed of sandstone and marble, with unique lighting effects borrowed from the World's Fair school of architecture. It is owned and will be operated by the Apex Amusement Corporation, Charles F. Olive, managing director. One of the theater's innovations will be a duplication of the Atlas' sound proof, glass-fronted nursery and playroom, where mothers may enjoy the show while their children romp and play without disturbing other patrons. A large, free parking lot will be landscaped in Hollywood style—whatever that is.

It is quite a bill that is being assembled for tomorrow night's performance at the J. C. C., Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest, for the benefit of the local Bundles for Britain organization. Sir Wilmott Lewis, noted correspondent of the London Times, will top the list of speakers. The theatrical portion of the program will be headlined by Sibyl Bwan, that indefatigable British-benefitter, starring on the stage this week at the Capitol. The Milt Herth Trio, from the Earle, and other important acts will be featured. The entire proceeds will go for bundles.

Plans for the 1941 One-Act Play Tournament of the District of Columbia, will be discussed on Friday afternoon of this week, November 8, at 5 o'clock, in the Recreation Office, 1740 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. All amateur acting groups in the District are urged to send representatives to this meeting with officials of the Community Center and Playgrounds Department to lay tentative plans for the annual competition and the selection of an executive committee to take the business of the tournament in hand.

The subscription season at the University Theater of Catholic University will open tomorrow night with Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," the opening attraction of the series. It will run through Sunday and will be followed by Edith Mirick's "Storm," in December; Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors," in January; Walter Kerr's arrangement of "God's Stage," in February; the musical biography of Joe Cook, in April, and Leo Brady's "Calidore," in May—all under the supervision of the production staff, comprised of the Rev. Gilbert V. Hartke, executive director; Walter Kerr, director of dramatics; Dr. Josephine Callan, director of interpretation, and Ralph Brown, technical director and designer.

"Dispatch From Reuters," already previewed by a starch-and-ermine, invitational audience, will be eyed by the guys and gals of the drayma desks tomorrow at 1.

Personal-Aside-to-Warners-Bird-Fanciers-Club Note

Never mind another live pigeon for me—I've had my lesson!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Nov. 4.

Henry McRae, our serial king, gave Gary Cooper his first test. He "shot" him on a horse, mounting, dismounting, racing. No acting was required in those days. Sent reel back East to sales force who wrote back, "Why bother with lanky punks like that? He hasn't got a thing." But the real story of how Gary got his first picture is this: He was standing outside the window, dressed as a cowboy, talking to Sam Goldwyn's secretary, when Francis Marion, who helped write "The Winning of Barbara Worth," went through for a conference with Sam. When the conference was at its height, Sam said, "Well, there's a handsome one outside holding up your office—or at least he was when I came through." "Well, get him." They did, and he played "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

HOPPER

Gary's second was "Children of Divorce," with Clara Bow, the hottest star in Hollywood. I can tell you plenty about that one—I was in it.

Socialite Esme O'Brien, who tried desperately for a screen career, is now a receptionist at N. B. C. in Rockefeller Center, New York . . . Millionaires wait for movies these days. The big Chicago cosmetician, Alfred Busiel, and Mona Maris were all set for a quick trip back to Chicago to tie the knot. But along came a role in "Trial and Error," and Alfred waits while Mona works.

Charles Coburn, after a siege of kindly old "Helpful Harry" parts, turns up in "The Lady Eve" as a rascally vagabond and card shark. "There's no part," says Charlie, "on stage or screen as lovable as a gentle grafter." He's known Director Preston Sturges ever since the latter was in knee pants. Says, "I wish I could take credit for having started Preston in the theater, but I can't. In fact, from knee pants I never met him again until I came to Hollywood in 1938."

Eddie Horton's party for his mother's eighty-first birthday was quite an event. At least 100 of their friends turned up. And did she look stunning in her red Schiaparelli dress—and said, "Was I lucky to get it! Now that "Schappi's" over here doing a lecture tour and her shop closed, I probably will never have another opportunity"

RKO is going in for a nice contest to find the favorite No. 1 white-collar girl in 20 different cities, then will charter a plane and have Christopher Morley escort them to Hollywood, where Ginger Rogers will be their hostess for the opening of "Kitty Foyle."

There Are Seven of Them in All

MARLENE DIETRICH,
star of the new Universal production of "Seven Sinners," supplanted by Walter Wanger's "The Long Voyage Home" as the attraction following "Too Many Girls" on the screen at RKO-Keith's. This cut was made before the bookings were changed, but, naturally, cannot now be used!

'Glamour Preferred' Tweaks Hollywood's Zany Civilization

By Nelson B. Bell

"GLAMOUR PREFERRED." Brock Pemberton presents the new comedy in three acts, by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements. Directed by Antoinette Perry; setting by John Root. At the National Theater.

A Policeman ..... William Byrns

A little tinkering with the first act, to accelerate its action and sharpen the identification of the prime movers in a hilarious dissection of Hollywood home life, and Producer Brock Pemberton will have another laughing hit on his hands to add to his already long list of comedy successes.

"Glamour Preferred," presented in the National Theater last night for the first time on a metropolitan stage, is a riotous, rollicking and sometimes rowdy incursion into the San Fernando Valley ranch house of Kerry and Lynn Eldridge, reigning romantic screen star, who captures a coveted "Oscar" before the evening is over, and his retired comedy-queen wife, whose glory lies in the past. Here, in the course of a tumultuous 24 hours, assembles Kerry's blond costar from next door, her husband-director, their producer, a venomous gossip columnist—genus male—the script writer, whose work nobody will read; a press agent, the feminine Purity Leaguer from the East; two "silver fish" exterminators; Lady Bonita Towyn, a slightly smudged former screen actress; Sir Hubert Towyn, whom she snared fresh out of the jungle, where he hadn't seen a white woman for years on end; a maid, also graduated from the films, and numerous others who contribute to a bizarre and crackpot civilization.

Social Shenanigans

Bonnie Towyn seeks rehabilitation before the cameras, with Kerry the instrument of her resurrection; Sir Hubert, quietly aware of his wife's social lapses, is not averse to a couple of Mexican divorces and an elopement with Lynn, and the producer and his satellites exercise all of the purse-string prerogatives of adding to the pandemonium and general confusion.

Precisely how all this works out—after that laggard first act—could only be recited by a machinegun, rat-a-tatting in high. Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements, the authors and old Hollywood hands, both, have contrived a roistering comedy that refuses to call a spade a shovel and, once under way, declines to remain static. It gathers momentum from a standing start and piles up laughs to an explosive third-act curtain.

In fashioning their invigorating charade, Miss Ryerson and Mr. Clements have aimed less at a blanket satire of the motion picture industry—as was done by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart in the memorable "Once in a Lifetime"—than at a penetrating frolic at the expense of a specific group of screen people with celluloid racing through their veins and Klieg lights shining from their eyes. If anyone thinks he can identify any one of the characters in real life, it must be only because the authors' composites have run to a fixed pattern established by the "fan" magazines and comic supplements.

As usual, Mr. Pemberton has cast his comedy with rare sagacity and Antoinette Perry has directed its merrier moments with a keen eye to speed and the tricky requirements of swift dialogue and crisp situation. In this latter observation, we skip lightly over that first act, which, of course, will be remedied before "Glamour Preferred" finds its way soon to Broadway. Having been given only a single tune-up performance in Princeton prior to its opening on E Street, the piece last evening was not played with the smoothness that will characterize its later presentations. It bowled over a large and enthusiastic audience, nevertheless.

This was due in largest measure to the deftness of Flora Campbell, Glen Langan and Louis Sorin in the roles of the Eldridges and Bernard C. Goldwater, producer, upon whom the developments pivot. Mr. Langan is the perfect "matinee idol" type and Miss Campbell, a gifted young actress with a touch of Joan Crawford and Norma Shearer about her and a vast charm all her own. Robert Craven draws a perfect Sir Hubert Towyn, several shades above the slightly overdrawn counterfeit Lady Bonita etched by Wyn Cahoon. Helen Harmon, Elsie Mae Gordon, the acid maid; Charles Trexler, Lex Lindsay, Stefan Schnabel, the overstuffed director; Maidel Turner, the reformed reformer, and James O'Rear, the harried writer, chip in nobly in secondary parts to make "Glamour Preferred" something Broadway laugh-lovers should anticipate with keen impatience.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Philadelphia, Nov. 4 (INS).—Franchot Tone and Joan Bennett, who have never made picture together, will get a chance to match sophisticated wits in "A Girl's Best Friend In Wall Street." To me, this Columbia picture based on the Cosmopolitan magazine story by Jane Allen, has the catchiest title of the year. Of course, it's a romantic comedy—all about a smart young woman who wins a fortune and an eligible bachelor on biggest money street in the world.

PARSONS

Joan called me long distance to tell me her reasons for turning down "Topper Returns" for Hal Roach. Their feud over the advertising on "Housekeeper's Daughter" had nothing to do with it. The story just wasn't what she had been led to believe it was in New York. We haven't read the script, so it isn't fair to say that it wasn't good. These things are always a matter of opinion. But in the meantime, the youngest Bennett will be busy with the Wall Street comedy which starts with Richard Wallace directing as soon as Franchot finishes in the new Deanna Durbin picture.

Speaking of Deanna's picture—"Nice Girl"—they're certainly lining up a cast. In addition to our Robert Stack and Franchot Tone, already announced, my favorite vague human being, Robert Benchley, has been added to the line-up as Deanna's father. Benchley should go to town as the bewildered widower with three lovely daughters. There was a time when the witty Benchley liked to play only himself on the screen, but lately he's been stepping out in characterizations such as the journalist (unwillingly on the wagon) in "Foreign Correspondent." Bet he writes some of his own wisecracks into "Nice Girl," too.

Snapshots of Hollywood and Philadelphia collected at random: It's like old home week to be back at the Earle Theater in Philadelphia. Warners are giving us a cocktail party this afternoon. J. J. Bates, jr., is flying out from New York just to hear if Wendy Barrie is interested in changing her name; Ann Miller and Hermes Pan, the dance director, slagging a jitterbug dance to end all jitterbugs at the Palladium; oh, how these youngsters keep growing up. Edith Fellows was with Jimmie Zaner at the La Conga and Edith looking like such a young lady.

Harry Ritz says he and Betty Heath have a minister in mind; the talk of Hollywood is the hat-trimming contest held at the Cocoanut Grove with Spencer Tracy, Herbert Marshall and Eddie Sutherland given three minutes to whip up something with feathers and veils for the ladies. Believe it or not—Spence's model won! Wait until they hear that at Boys Town! Hattie McDaniels, who has been touring in the East for underprivileged Negroes, has returned to Hollywood and checks in at Warners to play Bette Davis' maid in "Far Horizon."

It seems to be on again with Jimmy Stewart and Olivia De Havilland after a long romantic vacation from each other; Julius Evans, who recently resigned as FKO talent scout, has been signed by Jesse Lasky as his personal representative.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Nov. 5.

SAM BEHRMAN, the playwright, went to a hospital for observation. Saturday he received a phone call from John Wharton, attorney for the Playwrights. "My children are in the country," Wharton began, "my wife is working in her office and I didn't feel too well, so I decided not to work today. May I come up and visit you?" . . . "Of course," said Behrman, "come up" . . . The attorney went to the hospital, and finally was ushered, by a private nurse, into the playwright's room. He looked around for a chair—but found none . . . "Oh, nurse," Behrman obligingly instructed, "another bed—and an extra nurse."

LYONS

BEATRICE LILLIE cabled yesterday, informing that her long-delayed trip to America is on again . . . Because some political organizations have purchased radio time for election day, the law officials now are determining whether this is legal—because electioneering is banned within 200 feet of the polling place, and the possession of a radio within that area might constitute a violation . . . LaGuardia, who is 5 feet tall, asked the 6 foot 7 Robert E. Sherwood to campaign with him, but Sherwood couldn't—busy with other campaign work . . . The first musical comedy about conscription was finished last week by Eddie Davis, author of Al Jolson's new show. Davis brought the complete book to Broadway yesterday.

BEFORE OSCAR LEVANT broadcast with Alexander Woollcott last night Alec rehearsed the pauses between the completion of his speech and Levant's follow-up . . . "I want you to count to three after I finish," Woollcott instructed, "and then you do your turn. A three-second pause is dramatic. Just count to yourself, 'one-two-three,' and then start. Understand?" . . . "When I studied with Ouspenskaya," Levant protested, "she told me to count only to two" . . . Woollcott waited three seconds before answering, and then said, "That's because Ouspenskaya knew you couldn't count to three."

LEVANT WENT to Lindy's, after the broadcast. There a young lady presented a dollar bill and asked Oscar to autograph it . . . "Sorry. It's against the law, but I'll autograph a piece of paper for you," said Oscar—who has no illusions about the immortality of fame on Broadway. "Besides, two weeks from now you'll find it'll be cheaper to throw the piece of paper away."

THE HERALD TRIBUNE declined to publish that two-line front page ad which the New York Times printed yesterday morning—the ad reading "F. D. R. Happy reelection day. Walter Winchell—Advt." . . . The World's Fair closed just in time, as far as the Hall of Music is concerned. That place, where "Streets of Paris" was shown has begun to settle and is expected to crumble . . . Vincent Bendix, dining at the Maison Louis, became tired of the dozens of people who approached his table to ask for whom he is voting. Bendix finally penciled a hasty sign on the back of the menu, reading "I'm voting for the winner" . . . Sibelius, the Finnish composer, who will be 75 on December 8, has sent word that he's now writing marching songs for the army.

RITA MARQUITA, the Brazilian singer who just concluded an engagement at El Morocco, went to Sardi's yesterday wearing unusual quartz-like earrings . . . Rita's escort said something which seemed to displease her. Anger flamed in the eyes of the fiery Brazilian. "Ooh, I am so mad I could eat my earrings," she announced—then quickly removed one earring and began to bite and chew it thoroughly . . . "But don't worry," she told her startled escort, and then solved the mystery for him. The earrings were made for her by her mother. They're made of rock candy.

SAM ROSOFF, the builder, revealed this story of the San Miguel Dam in California—a project for which he entered a bid. In his New York office, Rosoff studied the specifications carefully and arrived at the best figure at which he could complete the job and still make a profit. With that figure in his pocket, Sam went to California to enter his bid—and that trip cost him the job. "I went out into the desert and saw how beautiful it all was, so I decided to stay there," Rosoff revealed. "I stayed there a few weeks, and it cost me some money. So I added the total of these expenses to the figure I had estimated, and entered the total as my bid" . . . He lost the job. That extra item of expense had made his bid a trifle higher than that of the builder to whom the contract finally was awarded.

THIS IS THE LAST Max Gordon story of the week: Claire Trevor, the screen actress, saw Gordon on West Forty-fourth Street and wanted to discuss the Spewack play which he is producing. "You're just the man I want to see," said Claire—but Gordon, who never had met her, said he was too busy and started to leave. Claire followed him, asking for a chance. The producer continued on his way, explaining that he had an appointment at his office . . . Claire, almost running to keep pace with him, assured him she could handle the role. Gordon, trapped by a traffic light which halted him, turned to Claire and said: "I'm sorry, miss—but I'm rushing to my office because I have an appointment there with someone who'll read for that role—Claire Trevor."

MRS. CHARLES POLETTI, wife of the Lieutenant Governor, returned to Wall Street to speak, and told her hecklers, "And what about the Willkie-John L. Lewis alliance?" One heckler shouted, "There you go—with the smear campaign" . . . James Cannon, the writer, was asked what he thought of Ernest Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and confessed, "After I read it I went home and beat up my typewriter" . . . Columbia Films offered $125,000 cash for the movie rights to Hemingway's book. Paramount's offer was $100,000, plus 10 cents royalty for every book sold, with a ceiling of $150,000. Hemingway decided to risk the Paramount deal, which proved to be the wiser one, by $25,000.

Grigsby-Grunow Pays Creditors

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP).—Financial affairs of the bankrupt Grigsby-Grunow Co. once one of the nation's top radio manufacturing concerns, were closed out in Federal court today.

Judge John P. arnes authorized the bankruptcy trustee to pay final liquidating dividends of 8.9 per cent to bondholders and 5.7 per cent to general creditors, bringing the total paid in liquidation to 63.9 per cent to bondholders and 40.7 to general creditors.

A. L. Schaliro, attorney for the trustees, said the total paid to both classes of creditors was about $2,500,000. Judge arnes allowed Schapiro $108,000 in attorney's fees. The company had been in bankruptcy since February, 1934.

Japan Uneasy As America Goes to Polls

Tokyo Faces Most Important Crisis of Its Career, Observer Says

By Douglas Robertson.
Copyright by New York Times

Shanghai, Nov. 4.—The United States Presidential election is not only inaugurating a new America, but it also is inaugurating a new Far East, where Japan faces the most important crisis of her career, having become the dictatorial "big brother" to the entire Far East.

The entire Pacific question, from Alaska to Singapore, is bound up into two main issues, both of whose theaters are vastly remote from the Far Eastern Pacific—namely, the American Presidential election and the outcome of the European war.

Japanese politicians, financiers and businessmen are anxiously awaiting the next President's program speech. They have been assured that if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected and chooses to assail Germany and Italy, then the present Japanese government is bound to collapse, and that afterward, there is a strong possibility of abrogating the tripartite pact, with Japan then turning to America and Britain.

However, should President Roosevelt's speech (if reelected) put Germany, Italy and Japan in the same category, Japan feels that war with the United States is her only possible course. In this event the present Japanese government would become much stronger and might be able to push Japan's southward policy, knowing full well that within a year America will become so strong with increased armaments, naval bases and a larger Navy, she would not be able to be challenged successfully.

Japanese politicians and financiers believe they will be able to convince the United States Government, should Willkie become the next President, that peaceful negotiations rather than hostile acts will settle all American-Japanese differences that have been accumulating since July, 1937.

The other phase of the dilemma which is presented to Japan is in the outcome of Britain's battle with the other two members of the Axis pact. Germany promised Japan the complete subjugation of Holland, France and Britain about a month ago, tacitly giving Japan a free hand in French Indo-China, the Dutch Indies, the British Indies possessions, and possibly British Burma.

However, Germany's month for the subjugation of Britain is already well overdue and the Japanese are beginning to wonder whether their "money went on the wrong horse."

Supporting this statement it is definitely known that about 300 Japanese army extremists, superpatriots and hot heads have been withdrawn from south and central China and sent to Tokyo, some facing certain court proceedings.

Ozias Webster Funeral Today; G.A.R. Veteran

Columbia Typographical Union's Oldest Member Dies Here, Aged 95

Final rites will be held today for Ozias S. Webster, 95, who died Sunday at his home, 35 V Street Northeast, following an illness of two years. At the time of his death he was the oldest member of the Columbia Typographical Union, second oldest member of the International Typographical Union, and one of Washington's three veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic.

MR. WEBSTER

Born in New Marlboro, Mass., Mr. Webster served with Pennsylvania troops in the Union Army. He came to Washington in 1882 after printing and editing a newspaper in Wellsboro, Pa., entered the Government Printing Office and served there as proofreader and compositor until his retirement in 1920.

Services will be held at the residence at 3 p. m., with burial in Glenwood Cemetery.

New York Expects Close Race; Registration Is Record High

New York, Nov 4. (AP).—Republicans and Democrats both filed election eve victory claims tonight on New York's 47 electoral ballots, the Nation's largest single bloc, amid mutual accusations of political trickery to swing an expected record State vote.

With "generally fair" weather promised the more than 6,690,000 voters registered, Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts, National Republican chairman, predicted Wendell L. Willkie would "carry New York by over 200,000."

Martin said traditionally Republican upstate areas would send Willkie to the New York City line with a plurality "of 750,000 or up."

Edward J. Flynn, Democratic National chairman, has forecast a New York City plurality of 900,000 and a State-wide margin of "400,000 or 500,000" for President Roosevelt.

Both sides anticipated help from an abnormal registration which, both in New York City and upstate, far surpassed the previous record high of 1936.

New York City's entire police force of approximately 18,000 men was ordered into a 44-hour stretch of duty at 8 p. m. (E.S.T.) tonight to keep preelection order and assure peaceful balloting tomorrow by more than 3,390,000 registered city voters.

Illinois Expects Record

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP).—Four million or more Illinoisans—a record number—are expected to vote in tomorrow's election.

The brisk contest between the supporters of Willkie and Roosevelt for the State's big cluster of 29 electoral votes and the strenuous struggle for control of the State's major offices led to predictions that the total would surpass the all-time high of 3,995,088 set in November, 1936, and might reach the 4,250,000 mark.

The weather, however, could prove a factor in determining the turnout. Occasional showers and much colder conditions were in prospect.

Republican leaders expected to compile a plurality of sufficient size downstate and in the Cook County towns outside of Chicago to assure victory for their State and national tickets.

Democratic chieftains figured that they would roll up a plurality in their party's citadel, Chicago, large enough to carry their State and national candidates to triumph.

Close Vote Seen in Ohio

By International News Service

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 4.—Election eve found both major political parties feverishly pressing their campaigns for the 26 electoral votes of pivotal Ohio.

Most of the private polls gave Willkie the edge, but by ever so slight a margain. Nevertheless a check of Columbus bettors showed odds of 7 to 5 in favor of Roosevelt.

Gayety

After an absence of several seasons, the blonde and lovely Charmaine returns to the Gayety Theater, scene of her earlier triumphs in burlesque.

One of the prettiest stars to play this house, Charmaine has a cycle of musical specialties which must be classed among her best efforts. It was here that the stately and shapely siren first made a sensational bow in show business. From the applause that greeted her every appearance yesterday, we feel sure Charmaine's following hopes her future appearances here will be more frequent.

Headlining in the comedy department are Benny "Wop" Moore and Tiny Fuller, two veteran funsters, who know what their audience likes and work accordingly. Both boys have a wealth of material and offer many amusing skits. Harry Jackson and Dorothy Sevier, the latter burlesque's outstanding "talking woman," prove invaluable assets.

Aside from the beautiful Charmaine, the revue also boasts such artistes as Mickey Dennis, Jessica Rogers and Loretta Moore. Miss Rogers is easy on the eyes and the musical specialties of Miss Moore prove much above par.

One of the outstanding features of the bill is supplied by the Vesper Brothers. As an "added attraction," these lads offer acrobatic numbers that rank with the best seen on any local stage.

The settings and lighting effects are colorful and the wardrobe flashy and fresh. ART JOHN.

Morgan Partners Sued for $336,000

New York, Nov. 2 (AP).—Suit for $336,000 damages and an accounting of interest moneys collected on pooled Mexican bonds was filed yesterday in Federal Court against J. P. Morgan and Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., and 28 others, as members of the International Committee of Bankers on Mexico.

It was alleged that the defendant committee received customs collections from Mexico which, under the agreement, were to be used to pay interest on the bonds, and that such payments were made in three years since 1914.

The plaintiff, James A. Donohue of Massachusetts, is the holder of $204,282 face value of the bonds.

Debits and Credits 'Twixt Retailer and Consumer

The consumer, who buys the retailer's goods is his only customer. All consumers are customers. All customers are consumers. They have the right to expect truthful advertising, confidence-building sales methods, good value, and fair treatment generally. These are the debts which every retailer owes every customer.

In return, the retailer is entitled to consumer patronage, consumer good will, and the mutual understanding which naturally develops. These are courtesy debts which the consumer owes to business.

In short, the consumer may rightfully expect every consideration, reasonably necessary to his or her protection and which will not, without sound reason, raise the costs of distribution. To raise those costs directly affects the consumer, for it is he or she who pays them.

And to the retailer is due a reasonable profit and a growing clientele in return for risks incurred and capital invested. Consumers should accord him the fair treatment they expect of him.

In short, it's a two-way relationship which involves friendly debits and credits, give and take, live-and-let-live in the spirit of American democracy.

Election Day Ghosts Walk in Washington

VOTES FOR WILLKIE—ABSENTEE VOTERS AT REPUBLICAN HEADQUARTERS

CAN'T GET INDIANA OFF HER MIND—Helen Bland, who leaves no doubt about the way she's voting, marks ballot to send to her home in Indiana

Voteless D. C. Busy On Election Eve

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

Voteless Washington, America's No. 1 political ghost town on election days, yesterday began nevertheless to build up the best possible case of Election Day jitters.

Capital residents bustled about the Democratic and Republican headquarters yesterday, although they didn't talk too loud, because of the Hatch law.

Even the poets, possessed with ardor but no votes, bloomed on election eve and, having skinned their shins on the climb up Parnassus were deprived of fame. They dared not sign their names to their opuses.

The last of several who brought ballads, sonnets or couplets to The Post yesterday asked, as did the others, for anonymity.

"I work for the Government," he said. He submitted the following:

"Hear Americans! Rally!
"All hope is not flown!
"Wendell Willkie's our candidate, single and true,
"Who will uphold our rights, save our land and save you!"

Voteless and anonymous in his song, this bard left, saying he would watch the election's returns carefully. But not in the excitement of Election Day as they know it from Spokane to Bangor, in the cities where precinct workers ring the doorbells, in the small towns, where the merchants close their stores to go out and vote, in the States where citizens get so excited there are laws closing the liquor stores and drinkeries.

Here, everything will be open today—the banks, the big Government bureaus, the liquor stores, and the Government has provided for its workers living in nearby Maryland and Virginia. Although there is no regulation permitting such employes to leave work and vote, individual departments may and intend to give such permission.

First off, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen ruled that District employes will be excused to vote, and that such time off won't deducted from annual leave. Most Congressmen took off more time in connection with the election yesterday. There were brief sessions, but only five Senators and a dozen Representatives were at their desks.

There was a last-minute flurry of absentee voting. An official at one headquarters, who asked anonymity too, because he has an official connection here, said he had worked at the absentee headquarters for 24 years "and never saw the like of this." Nearest approach, he remembered, was the embittered Hoover-Smith election of 1928. Republicans figured the absentee vote would be 35 per cent greater than that year.

These absentee voters are the people who, though working here and mostly for the Government, have managed to cling to their State rights. Those from Kansas, Colorado and Rhode Island can cast absentee ballots on Election Day. That will give to Washington its only real Election Day flavor.

Residents who came here from nearby cities and towns will go home to vote. This is gathered from railroad and bus station reports of fairly heavy traffic and an expected heavier business today.

At the White House, the President was away, and there was the tension of expectation. In the bureaus of Government, many officials were nervous. On the Hill, Representative John H. Tolan, Democrat, of California, expressed thought that all the statesmen should have stayed here in these times, letting their friends back home attend to their business. Representative Joe Hendricks, of Florida, reminded that his State is Democratic and sure. Other Southern Representatives, sure of the Solid South, have gone North to campaign for the party, he reminded. Also remaining on the Hill was Representative Harry Lane Englebright, Republican, of California, who had received the nomination of Republicans, Democrats, Progressives and Townsendites. Therefore there's no election day spirit even on the Hill.

ELIZABETH READY, absentee voter, seals her vote to send it to Cambridge, Mass.

Minnesota Threatens Cornell's Ranking

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The football game we'd even pay to see is that November 17 number at Griffith Stadium involving the Washington Redskins and Chicago's big, bold, bad Bears. That one, chums, is beginning to excite us.

POVICH

It is the Bears' maiden visit to Washington, incidentally, despite the fact that Washington has been in the league for four seasons. And until you've seen the Bears play, you haven't quite seen professional football in its most virile manner. The Bears are very rough and very tough, and while they don't eat their young, they are the closest thing to carnivorous that there is in the league.

It is supposed to be axiomatic in football that the team which makes a habit of bullying the opposition is neglecting some of the finer science of the game, but the Bears seem to do very well notwithstanding. They've only been licked once this season, they've rolled up 44 points against the great big Green Bay Packers, and they beat the daylights out of the Giants.

The gentleman who owns and operates the Bears is a Mr. George Halas, who has insisted that the Bears play the virile football he used to play himself. In that respect, he wants his football teams in his own image. Mr. Halas used to be a rugged citizen in football get-up and is a firm disciple of the belief that a good big man is a better football player than a good little man. He also thinks that beef and brawn have not been entirely overshadowed by nimble thinking.

So he has surrounded himself and the rest of his coaching staff with a bunch of behemoths who can gallop despite their weight. His running guard, for instance, is Mr. George Musso, who weighs 260 pounds and pulls out of the line as an interferer with a speed that is amazing. One of his tackles is Joe Stydahar, the most violent physical specimen who has ever been graduated from the West Virginia hills. One of his ends is Mr. Dick Plasman, a Southern gentleman, who two years ago made a beautiful tackle of the Redskins' Sammy Baugh—beautiful to those who appreciate the fine art of bringing a ball carrier to earth with a fist in the face.

Withal, however, the Bears play potent football, not neglecting the fundamental ideas of taking the ball down field. They are a bit weak on forward-pass defense as is every club that relies chiefly on power, but they are a spectacular team to watch. The old T formation in which the ball carrier gets the ball on an indirect pass from the quarterback who takes it from center has never died with the Bears despite the fact it is considered outmoded. Halas has stuck to that play and, being power minded, he has his reasons.

The chief joy we used to get in watching the Bears was in watching Bronko Nagurski operate through that big Bear line or sweep around end behind blockers. We still think Nagurski is the only football player who never needed interference. His powerful legs and body and high knee-action were as good as a couple of blockers running in advance. The Bronk simply refused to be annoyed by anybody directly in his path. It was the would-be tackler's own misfortune.

Nagurski has forsaken the Bears for the wrestling circuit, but Mr. Halas is not without a couple of big bad men in his backfield. He has, of that type, Ray Nolting and Ray Maniaci. Young Mr. Maniaci, late of Fordham, is playing in the best tradition of the Bears. He has appointed himself, seemingly, as the tough guy of the team and he is very difficult to handle. He likes the whole idea of playing football with the Bears and playing it very, very roughly.

We're not telling the Redskins anything, incidentally. They know all about the Bears. They last encountered the Bears in 1938 at Chicago. Mr. Halas' team at the time was carrying an old grudge. They didn't like the Redskins because the Redskins had licked 'em for the league title the season before. So they went out and licked the Redskins something like 33-7. No team ever took a more horrible physical beating than did the Redskins that day. Riley Smith was hors de combat the first time he was tackled. At the finish, the Redskins had black eyes, blue bodies and a collective limp. The Bears escaped with skinned knuckles.

So the Redskins have an old score to settle on November 17. We don't mean that they'll lay to with fists. They will be entirely appeased if the scoreboard reads in their favor at the end. But we'd say there is a very good chance that the Redskins will not be the same docile opposition of the Bears that they were in 1938.

Because the Redskins have come up with some tough guys themselves in the last two seasons. Two or three years ago, Vic Carroll and Ernie Pinckert were the only two Redskins who could be catalogued as headstrong guys not above answering mayhem with mayhem. The Redskins as a group have blossomed as a tough sort of outfit. They sort of rubbed it into the well-beaten and tired Pittsburgh players in the last half the other day. This is the first Redskin team that is equipped to meet the Bears on any terms. Honest, it ought to be a pip.

New York, Nov. 4.—What interests you today?

TENNIS?—The next big news in this gentle division of sports will be that Alice Marble has turned pro. So has Mary Hardwick, the pretty English girl who came over here with the Wightman Cup team of 1939. They will begin a professional tour of the country in January with Don Budge and Bill Tilden.

CONSIDINE

She hasn't the record of Helen Moody or Suzanne Lenglen, but we think Marble is the greatest girl player the game ever saw. She hits the ball a lot harder than Lenglen did, and can volley, serve and smash a lot better than Mme. Helen Wills Moody Roark. She's balanced a lot better mentally and physically than Suzanne was. Her blistering shots would have made Helen run, too, where Helen's great forte was making the other girl run, for she herself was a mudder.

Mary Hardwick is the best of that crop of pretty English girls who have been more or less stranded in this country. At Forest Hills in September they had one good pair of hose among them, and had learned to sew through necessity. The money Miss Hardwick gets out of the pro tour may get them all home. We don't know yet how much dough will be involved in the compound fracture of Alice's amateur standing. Budge made close to $100,000 in his first year.

GOLF?—With a minimum of fanfare, the biggest golf tournament in history was held last summer. It was staged in a single afternoon, on July 27 to be exact. The promoters, a well-known life insurance company, still aren't quite certain how many contestants took part in this tourney, which was open to all the good, bad and indifferent players in the country. Many thousands who entered, and apparently embarked on their round of 18 holes, didn't turn in scores. Some 7,315 persons actually did turn in scores. Policed only by the honor system, they played 610 courses in 27 States. The insurance company's rules permitted the players to apply their own handicaps. This resulted in some interesting scores. The low net award for men, among 922 prizes, including an ironing board and a kitchen stove, was 57. Highest score for high gross among the men was a gaudy 168 for 18 holes. Best score shot from scratch was 66, and the best women's score was 75.

Actually 72,000 persons took tournament cards out on the courses with them that day. The tournament committee was headed by the able Ed Dudley. It will be repeated next year and will be closely followed by the P. G. A., the U. S. G. A. and the big manufacturing houses to see how many competitively minded golfers there are in the country.

BASEBALL?—The situation at Cleveland is roughly this: The board of directors would like to hire Bucky Harris, but Alva Bradley would not give John McGraw a three-year contract, such as Bucky is sensible enough to want. Bradley wants nothing to stand in his way of being able to fire quickly any Cleveland manager who is "sufficiently" booed. Rogers Hornsby is a hot applicant for the job, and will take it on a one-year contract basis. Bradley likes him but Cyril Slapnicka thinks the club might get in trouble with Landis if it made a move toward Hornsby, who is on Landis' sour list. The compromise candidate is Luke Sewell, around whom the Cleveland insurrectionists gathered last season. Luke would take the job on a month-to-month basis.

Whoever gets the job, and brings order to the roster, will be hailed as a wonder man next October. For the Indians, if pulling in one direction, will win that pennant in a breeze. The Tigers, best of the lot this year, will collapse from the dry-rot imposed on them by the league's no-trading-by-pennant winners ruling. They're older than a bicycle built for two.

Gophers Take Second Place; Hoyas Ninth

Michigan Is Third In Week's Poll; Big Red Tops List With Total of 1,560 Points

By Bill Boni,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 4.—Mid-Western elevens still are breathing on Cornell's neck in the 1940 football ranking race, but this week it is Minnesota's Gophers who have displaced the Irish of Notre Dame as closest pursuers of the all-conquering Ithacans.

The fifth of the weekly Associated Press ranking polls, with 178 football experts throughout the country participating, finds Cornell to top, as it has been since the start of the season. The Big Red, three games away from its second successive season without defeat, was placed first on 119 ballots and second on 24, for 1,560 points.

But the way Minnesota has worked its way through an awesome schedule—winning close ones, perhaps, but winning every one—put the Gophers in second place, only 140 points away. The Bernie Bierman Powerhouse, runner-up in first place votes with 18, was ranked second by 72 of the experts as it piled up 1,420 points.

Gophers at Crossroads

Just as last week, when they came through by the margin of an extra point over Northwestern, the Gophers stand the best chance of improving their position and the greatest risk of being knocked down this coming week-end. They will meet a Michigan team that, like Northwestern, also comes up to this contest undefeated and untied, with the added advantage of a week's rest. 8he Wolverines, as a week ago, are given third place.

Two other decisive games next Saturday will involve members of the "first ten." Texas A. and M., up from fifth place to fourth, will take its string of 17 straight victories into action against Southern Methodist, undefeated, titd only by Pitt, and ranked fourteenth.

Meanwhile, Stanford, No. 6 in the rankings, will play once-beaten Washington, No. 11, in the game that should send one or the other on to the Coast Conference title and nomination for the Rose Bowl.

Irish Drops to Seventh

While Minnesota was being boosted from fourth to second this week, Notre Dame skidded down the ladder from runner-up to seventh, back of Tennessee and Stanford. The Irish looks anything but great in barely beating Army but may climb again if they can bounce back to keep their slate clean against a Navy team which out-statisticked but neglected to outscore Penn last Saturday.

For the rest of the leaders, Saturday's assignments look less arduous. The word from Ithaca is that Cornell may try to better Penn's 50-7 score aginst Yale; Tennessee can take a virtual vacation against Southwestern; Boston U. hardly is in a class with Boston College; Georgetown shouldn't have any trouble getting by Maryland to make it 23 without a loss, and Northwestern, only first-tenner which has been beaten, should get back on the winning track against Illinois.

This, incidentally, is quite a season for streaks. In addition to Georgetown's 23-game string, Cornell has come through 17 games with only one tie; Texas A. and M. has won 17 in a row, and Tennessee, not counting post-season games, has won 28 in succession since losing by 13-7 to Vanderbilt in 1937.

How Teams Rank

The standing (point figured on 10-9-8-7-6, etc., basis, first-place votes in parentheses):

1. Cornell (119)	1,560
2. Minnesota (18)	1,420
3. Michigan (11)	1,258
4. Texas A. and M. (14)	1,185
5. Tennessee (11)	929
6. Stanford (3)	906
7. Notre Dame	769
8. Boston College (2)	527
9. Georgetown	347
10. Northwestern	316

SECOND TEN—11, Washington, 87; tie for 12—Nebraska and Duke, 84 each; 14—Southern Methodist, 58; 15—Penn, 23; 16—Penn State, 17; 17—Fordham, 16; 18—Lafayette, 10; tie for 19—Santa Clara and Mississippi State, 9 each.

ALSO RAN—Clemson, 8; Alabama, 5; Texas Tech, 4; Tulane, 3; Ohio State, Mississippi, Utah and St. Mary's (Calif.), 2 each; Navy and Michigan State, 1 each.

Capt. Piepul Of Irish to Miss Game With Navy

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 4.—Coach Elmer Layden of the University of Notre Dame football squad said today that he would use Bernie Crimmins as first-string fullback in practice for next Saturday's Navy game at Baltimore in place of Capt. Milt Piepul.

Piepul aggravated an old side injury as the Irish beat Army, 7 to 0, in New York last Saturday. Trainer Eugene (Scrapiron) Young said Piepul might not be able to play against the Middies.

Layden, giving his players a vacation from practice, showed them movies of the Army game and said they'd have to do better than that if they hoped to beat Navy.

Montana Plans Minor Baseball League

Butte, Mont., Nov. 4 (AP).—After a lapse of 22 years, Montana will return to organized baseball in 1941 with a Copper League.

Butte, Missoula, Great Falls and Billings have been granted authorization for franchises. A combination Helena-East Helena entry is considered definitely in prospect, with Anaconda among other cities which will be invited to round out the six-club organization.

Two Redskin Stars Return For Dodgers

Ed Justice, Edwards To Play Against Brooklyn This Week

The Redskins' hope for an undefeated, untied season were boosted another notch yesterday as it was announced that Ed Justice, veteran wingback, and Capt. Turk Edwards, 270 pounds of pile-driving tackle, will return to harness in time for the game against the Dodgers in Brooklyn Sunday and that the Skins' trio of other casualties will be ready to go against the Chicago Bears here November 17.

Andy Farkas, 1939 leading scorer who has been out all season recovering from a knee operation; Wilbur Moore, sophomore wingback recuperating from a separation of the cartilege from his lower right ribs, and Sandy Sanford, rookie end whose knee was injured October 20 in Philadelphia, all are expected to be ready to face the Bears in Griffith Stadium's "preview" of the playoff for the 1940 National Football League championship.

To Play Short Time

Justice suffered a separated clavicle in the Pittsburgh game October 6 but will see a small amount of service in the Brooklyn game. Edwards, suffering a pulled muscle in his right leg, is a more doubtful starter but should be ready to play also, Dr. Robert E. Moran, club physician, said.

Justice is probably the fastest man on the Redskin squad in football clothes and is one of the best pass receivers. In a recent race the length

Defense Work Results In Grid Cancellation

Apprentice School, of Newport News, Calls Off American University Game As Students Start 9-Hour Work Day

By Jack Munhall

Obscure little Newport News Apprentice School, trainer of shipyard workers, yesterday was projected into the national sports spotlight as the first college football team affected seriously by the national defense program.

Students at the Apprentice School which supplies most of the employes for the Newport News Shipping & Dry Dock Co., where many United States war ships now are under construction, yesterday began a nine-hour class day. Because such a program will leave no time for football practice, Coach Frank M. Dobson immediately canceled the school's final football game scheduled here with American University November 21.

Apprentice School, however, will play one more game before its gridders are turned loose to concentrate their efforts in helping the Nation's frenzied defense preparations. Dobson, former University of Maryland head coach, said last night that Apprentice School will fulfil its engagement with Roanoke College Friday night at Newport News.

Cassell Notified

Dobson, reached by telephone at Newport News, said that he had notified Stafford H. Cassell, director of athletics for American University, of the necessity of cancelling the game.

"The action was agreeable to Cassell," said Dobson, "and we decided to play our next year's game at Newport News November 7.

"I told Cassell that under the new class schedule our football players will be in school from 7 a. m. until 5 p. m. and that it would be impossible for us to continue practice. Before today the players were free at 4 p. m. and practice could be started about 4:30.

Meantime local college elevens, not affected by the international crisis, prepared for week-end tests. Biggest news of the day here was the indication that Maryland students have not despaired of their team's chances of beating Georgetown at College Park Saturday.

Dirty Work Afoot

Georgetown students awoke yesterday morning to find that unwanted visitors had called during the night and painted in bold letters 'Maryland-Maryland U." across the fence in front of the Hilltop campus. Retaliation for this vile deed is expected to result in another whitewash job on the famed terrapin

Joe McCarthy To Manage Yankees in 1941

New York, Nov. 5.—Manager Joe McCarthy, whose three-year contract with the New York Yankees expires this year, has reached an agreement with the club for next season, President Ed Barrow announced tonight upon returning from a two-week vacation in South Carolina.

"I talked with Joe in Buffalo over the 'phone this morning," Barrow reported, "and we reached a verbal agreement. I don't expect to see him until the December baseball meetings in Chicago. He will sign a contract later."

McCarthy purportedly received $35,000 a year under the old agreement and it is believed that the new contract will be renewed for more than one year at similar figure.

300 Honor Heinie Miller At Testimonial

Marine Reserve Corps Colonel Given Big Farewell at Willard

By Al Hailey

Heinie Miller told the "boys" good-by last night at the Willard Hotel and prepared to shove off day after tomorrow with his Fifth Battalion Marine Corps Reserves for Quantico, Va., and an extended period of active duty in the service of his country.

The "boys" consisted of some 300 persons who came early and stayed late to heap heartfelt acclaim upon Heinie as departing secretary of the District Boxing Commission, official of the National Boxing Association, boxing coach, editor of the U. S. Coast Guard Magazine, former sailor, fighter and newspaperman and, lastly, as a 100 per cent American citizen.

Their comments ran the gamut and, in a nutshell, conveyed the idea that Heinie's a "great guy."

Early Thursday morning, Heinie will put on the cloak of his military identity and become Col. Harvey L. Miller, Fifth Battalion, U. S. M. C., in command of some 400 young men from all walks of life in the District who're going into active duty with him at the Quantico Marine station.

Hazen Attends

District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, who was at the testimonial dinner against his doctor's orders, was unable to speak. In his stead, Toastmaster Claude W. Owen, chairman of the boxing commission, presented Col. Miller with a ship's clock as a token of his friends'

National Guards 'Adopt' Louisiana College Gridders

By the Associated Press

Pineville, La., Nov. 4.—National Guardsmen of the Thirty-second Division from Michigan and Wisconsin have "adopted" the Louisiana College Wildcat football team here.

Fourteen of the college's little squad of 26 are members of the Louisiana Guard and soon will be in khaki, and one player, Sophomore Back Bruce Waldo, lives in Concord, Mich.

A thousand of the Midwestern guardsmen, in training at nearby Camp Beauregard, turned out for LAuisiana College's game with Mississippi-Southern College Saturday night, and furnished a drum major and cheer leaders.

With their moral support the Louisianans won, 7-0.

Texas Aggies Ranked At Top by Williamson

Cornell and Michigan Placed Second, Third in Weekly Ratings; Best Selection Was Gophers to Defeat Northwestern

By Paul B. Williamson.

Texas A. & M., undefeated in 17 straight games in the fast Southwestern Conference, has replaced Cornell as the Williamson System's No. 1 college eleven of the Nation.

Coach Homer Norton's team earned the top ranking by whitewashing Arkansas' surprising Porkers, 17-0. Arkansas may be an in-and-out team but during its "ins" it knocked off Baylor and Ole Miss, two powerful teams in any circuit.

The leading ten teams of the country include eight that are undefeated and untied—Texas Aggies, Cornell, Michigan, Tennessee, Minnesota, Notre Dame, Stanford and Boston College. Duke and Northwestern, the other two pacesetters, have lost one game each—but to one of the undefeated and untied squads. Duke was blanked, 13-0, by Tennessee, and Northwestern was nosed out, 13-12, by Minnesota.

Selections Explained

The "gossip" columnists of the sports pages have been in a dither because the Williamson System sometimes lowers the rating of a particular team when it wins and raises the same team's rating when it loses. Let these columnists be reminded that there are 750 college football teams in the United States. While the team a columnist may be bothered about is having its ups and downs, let that columnist realize that there are other teams also going in and out.

The Williamson System is the only rater which takes these things into consideration, and in the past eight years has been 97 per cent consistent in placing no team above its conqueror. There are instances when a team is rated above its victor. When that occurs it is invariably a situation like this: Team A beats Team B but is rated under Team B because Team B has beaten two or three teams that had defeated Team A.

But back to the results of last week's games:

The system picked the winner in the leading game of the week, Minnesota over Northwestern. It was close, 13-12, but we picked it a close one, with the Golden Gophers getting the nod. Cornell, the system's No. 2 team, had little trouble turning back Columbia, 27-0.

Michigan Rated Third

At No. 3 is that great Michigan team with its Tommy Harmon, and a marvelous blocking back in Forest Evershevski. Michigan was idle last week, but rose in the ratings according to the method outlined to "gossip" columnists.

In the leading circuits, the Wil-

New Contract For One Year Ends Rumors

Signing Marks 7th Consecutive Year Here for Veteran Pilot, 12th in All

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Stanley (Bucky) Harris will manage the Washington Baseball Club in 1941, President Clark Griffith announced yesterday, terminating persistent reports that Harris would transfer to Cleveland as manager.

In his Griffith Stadium office yesterday, the Nats' owner signed Harris to a new one-year contract which marks Harris' seventh consecutive year of his second term as the Washington manager.

"I had always hoped that Harris would be back with the Washington club for next season and I am proud to announce it," said Griffith.

Grinning broadly as he left Mr. Griffith's office after the contract-signing ceremonies, Harris was obviously pleased. He made the sweetness and light of the occasion unanimous by saying:

Wanted to Stay

"I never did want to leave Washington. I tried it once and learned that I could be happier here. Mr. Griffith has been the ideal boss and I hope my association with him will continue for many more years."

Mr. Griffith refused to divulge the salary terms of Harris' new contract, but it was indicated that the Nats' manager had been given an increase in pay. All of Harris' contracts since he resumed management of the Washington club since 1931 have been on a one-year basis.

Beyond confirming the report that he had talked by telephone with Alva Bradley, owner of the mangerless Cleveland club, Harris would not discuss his negotiations with the Cleveland team. "Mr. Bradley asked me if I would accept the Cleveland job, and I told him I would be obliged to think it over. I decided later that I would perfer to stay in Washington."

Next-Oldest Leader

Now the oldest manager in the American League in point of consecutive service with the exception of Connie Mack, Harris next season will be embarking on his twelfth campaign as the manager of a Washington club.

He found early fame as a manager when as "the boy wonder" he led Washington to its first American League pennant in 1924 and later to a world's series victory over the Giants. In 1924 he repeated his pennant-triumph with his own play at second base being an important factor.

At the end of the 1928 season, after five consecutive years as the manager of a first-division Washington club, Harris transferred to Detroit as manager of the Tigers. In 1934 he was hired by Tom Yawkey to manage the Boston Red Sox which Yawkey had recently purchased and put that team in the first division after more than a decade of second-division occupation.

Bucky Rehired

When Joe Cronin was sold to Boston by Mr. Griffith at the end of the 1934 season, Harris was rehired to manage the Nats and then began what is now his second term.

The reengagement of Harris is regarded as a compliment to him in the face of the Nats' seventh-place finish of last season, the lowest which a Harris-club has finished since he won his first managerial job 17 years ago.

"I've always considered Harris a fine manager and I never have believed that he didn't get out of his material all that was in it," said Griffith yesterday. "There has never been any second-guessing on my part. My chief hope is that during the winter we will be able to strengthen some of our weak spots, notably the batting line-up. Lack of punch was our chief weakness last season.

"During the past few weeks I have been discussing with Bucky certain trades that we might be able to make and players we might be able to develop from our farm system, and I am confident that we will start the 1941 season with a team that will be much stronger. In our pitchers we have a good nucleus for a first-division club."

Michigan-Gopher Game Saturday Presents Power vs Power

Brown Jug Series Finds Teams Even

Victors Will Take Big Jump Toward Big Ten and National Football Crowns

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Michigan and Minnesota will strike a rare balance in power next Saturday—with victory certain to give the scales a big tip toward the winner's Western Conference and national title hopes.

Their battle at Minneapolis, bringing together two major untied and undefeated elevens, shapes up as the day's No. 1 duel. Each team has won five straight games, including victories over tough intersectional opponents. Moreover, Michigan is ready to throw power against power after years of matching its "punt, pass and prayer" system against the sheer drive of the Minnesota avalanche.

Not that Michigan's finesse didn't pay off for the Wolverines. The record of this old series, which has seen the teams fighting for the famed little brown jug since 1903, is studded with instances of Michigan alertness paying victory dividends against the Gopher's superior strength.

One Good Example

In 1926, these teams met at Minneapolis. Minnesota was the heavy favorite and when the game was over, the statistics showed almost 400 yards gained by the Gophers to practically nothing for Michigan. Minnesota's superiority in first downs was about 20 to 0. But the final score was Michigan, 7; Minnesota, 6. Benny Oosterbaan, Michigan end, scooped up a fumble near midfield and ran for a touchdown that meapt victory after a successful try for point.

Of recent years, however, Minnesota power has held a decided edge. Six straight games have gone to the Gophers, making Minnesota the only school ever to whip Michigan six straight times on the gridiron. Minnesota has power again this season, as attested by wins over Washington, Nebraska, Ohio State, Iowa and Northwestern. In George Franck and Bruce Smith, the Gophers have a great running, smashing and passing twosome.

Harmon Is Team

Michigan has Tom Harmon. In five games he's scored 87 points on 12 touchdowns, 12 points after touchdowns and one field goal. But in acknowledging Harmon's greatness, don't overlook Fullback Bob Westfall, one of the best plunging backs in recent Michigan history. In addition, he's a great ball handler on laterals to Harmon, and when he and Forest Evashevski get out in front and block for Thunderbolt Tom—it's a steamrolling threesome.

It looks like a Pier 6 battle royal—and something's going to happen before the afternoon is out.

Big Ten Boss 'Blocks' for Tom Harmon

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Michigan's Tom Harmon got some "blocking" today—by none other than Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western Conference.

About two weeks ago the Michigan star, All-America back in 1939 and currently the No. 1 halfback of this football season, appeared on a national broadcast. Not much was said about it at the time, but rumor started bobbing up today that he had violated a conference rule and might be declared ineligible.

"I heard about the case right after it happened," Maj. Griffith said, "but didn't say anything about it because it didn't appear important. Here are the facts: Harmon merely happened to attend this program, which was of a 'quiz' nature. He answered one question right and won $1, then lost it by failing on a second question.

"Harmon did not show up on invitation and was not advertised as a participant. He did not violate our conference rule, which prohibits our boys from broadcasting on a sponsored program. It surely can't be said he broadcast that night."

Maj. Griffith, who said he "believed" the broadcast originated in Detroit, said the question "has been completely settled to the satisfaction of all conference authorities."

Baltimorean Beats George Zengaras

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Charley Gomer, veteran Baltimore lightweight, won an eight-round decision over George Zengaras of New York in a rough but slow bout at St. Nicholas Palace tonight before 3,500 spectators. Zengaras rallied in the last two rounds but was unable to overcome Gomer's early lead. Each received a cut beside the left eye. Gomer weighs 136, Zengaras, 133½.

A last round rally earned Doug Marsh, 148, Montreal, a six-round decision over Mayon Padlo, 148½, Philadelphia. Referee Jim Crowley made the decision sure when he took the round away from Padlo for butting although Marsh had a clear advantage in the final heat.

Ben Rosenthal, 136, New York, dropped Willkie O'Connor, 134, Hoboken, N. J., three times to win the verdict in a four rounder.

Army's Stand Against Irish Not Surprising to Coach Wood

Soldiers 'Only Played Game We All Know Team Is Capable of;' Other Football Briefs

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov 4.—Fordham's football team was given a rest today before starting work for Saturday's clash with Purdue. Except for Jim Noble, back, who is suffering from a bruised back and a charley horse, the entire squad came out of the North Carolina game in good shape.

West Point.—Coach Bill Wood claimed that Army's fine performance against Notre Dame was "only the game we all know the team is capable of." Nevertheless, he gave the Cadets a light workout as a reward and warned them that Brown will be tough this week. Halfbacks Dick Hennessy and Kearie Berry suffered leg injuries and the former probably will be out for the rest of the season.

3 Violets Hurt

New York—The New York University squad brought three cripples back from the Missouri game. All suffered leg injuries. Vincent Finn probably will be out the rest of the season, but Bill Gaiu and Irving Hyman are expected to play against unbeaten Franklin and Marshall Saturday.

New York—Columbia's squad, which suffered no serious injuries while losing to Cornell, began work on its defense against Wisconsin plays. The linemen were given special drills on how to set themselves for the "Notre Dame" style of attack while the backs concentrated on pass defense.

Jaspers Need Reserves

New York—Manhattan's coach, Herb Kopf, said most of this week's practice would be devoted to offense and to developing reserves to relieve the tired regulars in Saturday's encounter with Marquette. The Jaspers have been battered in losing three straight games, but have suffered no serious injuries.

Syracuse, N. Y.—As a result of the Syracuse team's ineffectual performance against Georgetown, Coach Ossie Solem ordered a stiff workout instead of the usual light Monday drill. All but a few regulars participated in the scrimmage. Dick Banger, senior halfback from Chicago, remained in the infirmary with injuries received Saturday and may not be able to play against undefeated Penn State.

Yale Sees Movies

New Haven, Conn.—The Yale football team, with its toughest assignment of the season, Cornell, coming up, took a complete rest except for a view of the Brown game movies. Quarterback Ray Anderson and Jack Reid, end, will be unable to play this week and Reid, who has a bad knee injury, may be through for the season.

Cambridge, Mass.—A shortage of regulars forced Harvard to limit its first practice for the Penn game to a light workout. Capt. Joe Gardella has a muscle injury while six regulars were detained by examinations.

Hanover, N. H.—Dartmouth opened its preparations for the Princeton game with a long session on pass defense. No injuries were reported from the Sewanee game but Bob O'Brien, tackle, who received a chipped elbow against Harvard, is not expected to play Saturday.

Abe Simon Signed For Roscoe Toles Bout

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Jimmy Johnston announced today he had accepted terms for a ten-round fight in Detroit's Olympia November 22, between his heavyweight, Abe Simon, of New York, and Roscoe Toles, of Detroit.

The fight would be under the promotion of Mike Jacobs, who is also trying to arrange a bout on the same card between Al Nettlow and young Kid McCoy, Detroit welterweights.

Mat Strong Man Returns to Arena 2d Week in Row

Wrestling's original "strong man," Milo Steinborn, informed Promoter Joe Turner yesterday that he is not yet too brittle to toss a few groans at his fellow artists and was promptly booked for a 30-minute session on Thursday's rassle show at the Fourteenth and W Streets arena.

Joe Cox and Lou Plummer will headline the show. Steinborn, who appeared last week for the first time in more than five years, once claimed to be the world's strongest man. Tommy O'Toole and Emil Dusek will also do a tango on the Thursday night show, while Warren Bockwinkle and Eddie Newman will appear in the semifinals.

Western Maryland Bolsters Offense For Washington C.

Westminster, Md., Nov. 4 (AP).—Head Coach Charlie Havens didn't need any diagram today to tell him Western Maryland's gridiron machine needs some scoring punch.

Mapping practice for this week, prior to Saturday's game with Washington College, Havens emphasized efforts to set up the Terrors' offensive power and indications were the first string lineup would be revamped.

Against Dickinson last Saturday, Western Maryland outplayed the Red Devils only to lose in the final quarter. To date, the Terrors have lost two, tied one and won one this season.

Washington College will be Western Maryland's annual homecoming day opponent.

Detroit Eagles' Pro Five Bought by Auto Man

Detroit, Nov. 4 (AP).—James Hughey, automobile agency operator, announced today that he had purchased the franchise of the Detroit Eagles in the National Professional Basketball League.

Hughey said he was negotiating with Dutch Dehnert, member of the New York Celtics for many years, to coach the quintet. Dehnert is to come to Detroit Wednesday for a conference, Hughey said.

Last year the Eagles, in their league debut, made an excellent showing. A corporation operated the team.

C. U.'s Bernstein Opens Wrestling And Boxing Classes

Dave Bernstein, Catholic University's former National Collegiate Athletic Association bantamweight boxing champion, will start regular classes in boxing, wrestling and corrective exercises tonight at the Boys' Club of Washington, Eastern Branch, Charley Reynolds announced yesterday.

Bernstein will conduct classes on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 6:15 to 9:15 p. m. at the club's headquarters, Seventeenth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Southeast.

Four Indiana Players Injured

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 4 (AP).—Four regulars were on the sidelines today as Indiana University's football team began practice for its home game with Michigan State next Saturday.

Trainers said, however, that of the four, hurt as the Hoosiers fell before Ohio State, 21 to 6, only End Archie Harris was not likely to start in next week-end's game. The others were End Eddie Rucinski, Guard Gene White and Fullback Ray Dumke.

Coach A. N. (Bo) McMillin promoted Backs Harry (Tuffy) Brooks and Earl Doloway to the first string on the strength of their performance against Ohio State.

Kansas State Team Preparing For Game at South Carolina

Showing of Gwin, 140-Halfback in Michigan State Game Pleases Coach; Other Reports

By the Associated Press

Manhattan, Kans., Nov. 4.—Kansas State Wildcats hurried through a short workout tonight, the first of three that will be held at home before the team takes to the road en route to South Carolina.

Coach Hobbs Adams and his crew returned from the Michigan State defeat thankful that no injuries were suffered and pleased with the fine showing of Francis Gwin, 140-pound back.

Lawrence, Kans.—Kansas began preparation for Oklahoma today with prospects that Tackle Ross Relph and End Paul Hardman, on the injured list, will be ready.

Varsity regulars engaged in dummy passing and scrimmage against the frosh while the varsity reserves had a stiff workout with the yearlings.

Norman, Okla.—Oklahoma's first team, which absorbed most of the pounding in Saturday's gridiron defeat by Nebraska, took it easy today but the second stringers engaged the freshmen in a long, hard scrimmage.

Coach Tom Stidham used four sophomores — Huel Hamm, Bill Campbell, Tom Rousey, and Jack Steele—in one backfield combination which may see action as a unit in this week's Big Six game with Kansas at Lawrence.

The regulars will don pads tomorrow and work against the yearlings, using Kansas formations.

Tulane Clicks Off 111 Plays to Claim Hustling Record

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Nov. 4.—Tulane officials wondered today if some kind of a record wasn't established here Saturday when the Green Wave and Clemson ran 177 plays from scrimmage in the 60 minutes of playing time. The usual number of plays per game is about 120.

Tulane, 13-0 victor, alone ran 111 plays from scrimmage, including 95 rushing attempts, 7 passes and 9 punts. Local sports writers attributed the unusual number of plays to Tulane's hustle on offense.

Another oddity of the game was that although Tulane's ground attack rolled up 21 first downs and gained 333 net yards, the Wave had to depend upon a forward pass and a pass interception to score.

Arnuard Leads D. C. Schoolboy Scoring Race

Washington-Lee Ace Registers 48 Points; Heiser Runs Second

Russ Arnaud, Washington-Lee High's grimacing halfback, leads all scholastic football scorers in this section by a comfortable margin, it was revealed yesterday with the compilation of individual scoring standings as the season passed the halfway mark.

A total of 48 points, rung up with eight touchdowns, was credited to the dazzling runner who has led his team to victory in four of its six games. Fullback Heiser, of St. Alban's, is in second place with six touchdowns, 36 points, and Georgetown Prep's Bud Eckrich ranks third with four touchdowns and two extra points for 26.

Best of the public high school scorers is Central's Harry Martin, who has crossed the goal line four times in six games, and Eastern's Eddie Teague, with a like total. The latter's points were registered on three trips across the goal and six conversions, giving him a wide margin in extra points.

8 Fort Myer Horsemen Leave Today for U. S. Show in N. Y.

Light Work Marks Final Preparation

Madison Square Event Will Start Thursday; Mexico, Cuba, Chile Entered

By Anne Hagner

After winding up a successful schooling in their own indoor ring yesterday, eight members of Fort Myer's show team will leave Rossyln, Va., at 4 o'clock this afternoon to participate in the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden, New York, which opens Thursday.

As officers and mounts had their last workout all of the prospective travelers appeared in top form. Only a few of them were taken over fences, as the majority was content with light galloping for leg-stretching purposes.

Of those who jumped, Capt. Charles B. McClelland's Smacko, Lieut. Fred Hughes, jr.'s Black Caddy, and Capt. David Wagstaff's Enterprise turned in excellent rounds over the tough course. Capt Wagstaff, only officer on the team to have a double assignment, had a slightly rougher ride on Mount Carmel, but the gelding finally straightened out after several tries at two 4-foot parallel bars and a 4½-foot Toronto bank.

Easy Workouts

Others who went in for easier workouts were the team's head, Maj. George G. Elms, who will be making his first trip to the Garden with the Government's good mare, Clipped Wings, and Maj. A. E. Kastner, rider of another Government-owned horse, Eyes Delight.

A totally unknown quantity to local show folk is Maj. F. de L. Comfort's rapid-moving black jumper, Sampson, whose whizbang style of jumping has delighted spectators at recent Myer schoolings. Sampson is at the moment midway involved in growing a mane, which gives him a perpetually surprised appearance. However, he has been fencing in great shape and should prove popular with Garden audiences, always admirers of the spectacular.

Only member of the team not in the riding hall yesterday was Lieut. Col. and Mrs. C. B. Lyman's Maui Girl, who has appeared in Madison Square so many times that she needs little training for the event.

Travel De Luxe

The Army mounts, making the trip in a de luxe horse Pullman train, are being especially aimed at the intra-American jumping event, for members of United States military teams.

Arlington Hiyy College's two entries, Comanche and Golden Bow, had a bad evening of jumping last week but whipped into best form several nights later, and will receive no more schooling until they arrive in New York. They will leave by van tonight.

Although main local interest naturally centers on the doings of horses from this vicinity, there is much ado in other quarters in connection with the show. The United States Army team, from Fort Riley, Kans., did not know until almost the last moment that they were to be allowed to participate, but they had been nurturing high hopes for weeks and were ready to produce a capable group of horses when favorable orders came through.

Uncle Sam's entries will be three old-timers, King Hi, Dakota and Dinger, and six new horses, Democrat, Reno Ike, Lauista, Autumn Mark, Ethel D., and Unca Jack. Officers who will handle the saddle work are Capt. Royce A. Drake, Capt. Frank S. Henry, Capt. Franklin W. Wing, jr., and Capt. Marshall W. France, well known locally when he was stationed at Fort Myer.

Foreign Teams Enter

International flavor will be furnished by officers representing Mexico, Chile and Cuba. The Chilean team, he added by Maj. Eduardo Yanez, is composed of Capt. Pelayo Izurieta, Capt. Armando Fernandez, and Capt. Armando Albarzua, who is a stranger to Garden competition.

Capt. Camilo Gonzales Chavez is the leader of the Cuban team, which also includes Lieut. Rene Chipi, Lieut. Luis Cantor, Lieut. Gerardo Padron, Lieut. Angel Fajardo, Lieut. Sandalio Perez, and Lieut. Calixto Castell.

Mexico is represented by five army officers: Majs. Armando Villarreal, chief of the team, and R. Palafox, who was a star of the 1938 and 1939 shows; Capt. Joaquin Chagoya, Capt. Humberto Mariles, and Capt. Misael R. Ponce.

Pleasant Is Beaten By George Morelia

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP).—George Morelia, 137, Detroit, punched out an eight-round decision tonight over Chicago's Johnny Pleasant, 132½, in the main bout at Marigold Gardens.

White Sox Catcher Married in Arizona

Wickenburg, Ariz., Nov. 4 (AP).—Buelah Nell Holly, of Peoria, Ariz., and Tom Dick Turner, a member of the Chicago American League Baseball Club, were married last night. Justice of the Peace Robert C. Storns performed the ceremony.

Pro Football Eagles Release Three Players

Philadelphia, Nov. 4 (AP).—Bert Bell, president of the Philadelphia Eagles in the National Professional Football League, announced today the outright release of Johnny Cole, halfback; Bill Hughes, guard, and Milt Trost, tackle.

11 Named for Today's Riggs 'Cap at Pimlico

$10,000 Added Fixture Draws Hash, Foxborough, Burning Star, Get Off, War Plumage, Honey Cloud, Inscoelda and Others

By a Staff Correspondent

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 4.—Election day will also be Riggs Handicap day at this plant of the Maryland Jockey Club. The fifteenth running of the test, first won by the mighty Crussder in 1926, has drawn 11 horses in the over night entries and there should be plenty of action before the end of the mile and three-sixteents event.

The Riggs, with its $10,000 added and probable $11,250 value to the winner, has lined up Hash, Get Off, Foxbrough, Burning Star, War Plumage, Honey Cloud and Inscoelda to clash with some of the lesser lights of the handicap division whose chances will be increased through their lighter imposts.

The Riggs, named in memory of William P. Riggs, whose name will live as long as there is a Maryland Jockey Club, seems to have fulfilled its purpose completely in that it has assembled about all the survivors of a year of intensive handicap competition among the 3-year-olds and their elders.

Hash on Scene

The Greentree Stable's Hash, conqueror of the mighty Challedon in the New England Handicap among other accomplishments good enough to earn him an invitation to the Pimlico Special, checked in this morning from Empire City, where his performance behind Miloland and Foxbrough last Saturday indicated that he will be better suited by tomorrow's footing. His 126-pound assignment has been well earned throughout a busy season. Eddie Arcaro's presence in the saddle should help, while Circle M Ranch's Get Off brought many admirers from New York.

The size of the Riggs field—a probable ten—should suit a colt which has been there or thereabout among the best of the year. He is most responsive to a rider of the George Woolf tyoe—an argument in his favor. The Shandon Stable's Burning Star, third in the Washington Handicap at Laurel, has invariably shown his best efforts for Wayne Wright, who is scheduled to handle him tomorrow.

Foxbrough Improved

Foxbrough, the lanky colt officially recognized as the best 2-year-old of 1938 in England, has shown steady improvement in each of his races during the last two months, and Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons thought so much of his chance to beat Miloland and others that he remained at Empire City last Saturday to saddle him. Foxbrough bowed to Miloland in a photo finish after a race that took nothing from him, judging by his appearance when he stepped from his private van here yesterday. Mr. Fitz is said to be "high" on Foxbrough's Riggs chances. A colt of sharp early speed, he seems particularly well favored by his No. 2 post position, plus the combination of 115 pounds and Jockey Jimmy Stout.

Honey Cloud, winner of the Dixie and Maryland's own in the manner of sentiment and performance, will have his backers under 110. 'Tis said that a horse will at some time or other run back to his best race and Honey Cloud has not only the Dixie but several other performances over Pimlico, his favorite track, to recommend him.

Breaks His Nose Again and Begins To Look Like Dad

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 4.—John McLaughry, fullback for the New York football Giants and son of the Brown coach, broke his nose—for the fifth time—in yesterday's game with the Brooklyn Dodgers. When he came out of the game, the pro "freshman" turned to Coach Steve Owen and said:

"Well from now on I'll look just like my old man."

The Giants hope to have Star-Running Back Tuffy Leemans back in the lineup for next Sunday's battle with the Cleveland Rams, but Brooklyn may be handicapped by the hip injury suffered by Banks McFadden, Dodger freshman who was an All-American for Clemson in 1939. Coach Jock Sutherland said the injury was likely to bother McFadden for some time.

Beach, Rommel Win Pro-Am At Baltimore

Two Shoot 61 to Take Mid-Atlantic Title; Bass and Hook 2d

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—Ralph Beach, professional at Suburban Club, and Ed Rommel, former major league ball player and now umpire, took top honors in the Middle Atlantic pro-am golf tournament today at Clifton Park, with a 61.

Beach also captured first place in the pro-sweepstakes, carding a 67 to wn by two strokes over Al Houghton, of Beaver Dam. Johnny Bass, of Clifton, finished third with 70.

Finishing in second place in the pro-am event was the team of Bass and C. A. Hook, with 63. Tied for third place were Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase pro, and George Zumbrun, and Beach and Lawrence Wisner, with 64s. Beach and Al Laur shared fifth prize with George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood, and Dick Norwood, with 65s each.

Nebraskans Work For Iowa Game

Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 4 (AP).—Not satisfied with their grip on the Big Six title, the Nebraska football team today polished up some new offensive maneuvers for use Saturday against Iowa here, and planned work on the "center around" play which proved effective against Oklahoma and still has all hands mystified.

Only casualty of the Oklahoma fray was Marvin Thompson, end, who will be benched from ten days to two weeks because of a knee injury. The Kahler brothers, Robert and Royal, were named co-captains for the Hawkeye game.

Waldorf Warns Team of Illinois

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 4 (AP).—Lest his Northwestern eleven take light its contest with Illinois Saturday, Coach Lynn Waldorf warned his squad today that Coach Bob Zuppke's eleven "has always been tough for us and our scouts inform us that the Illini is much stronger than the record shows."

The Wildcats should be at peak strength against Illinois with Bill DeCorrevont again leading the attack after taking it easy for three weeks with a sprained ankle. All the players emerged from the Minnesota game in good condition.

Mike Vitale Leads Navy Duckpinners

Dick Lee, Jenkins Are Federal Pin Leaders at Arcadia

High counts were the rule last night at Arcadia in the Navy Department meet with Mike Vitale, Ordnance, the standout with individual highs of 152-395 to pace his quintet to three straight over Aeronautics and a tie with Hydrographic for second position. The Hydrographic lads took team highs with a game of 620 and set of 1739. Bureau of Engineering lost the odd contest to Commandants but retained first place.

FEDERAL MEN'S

The Federal Men's loop last night at Arcadia found Dick Lee, GPO, and Jenkins, Navy Yard, were too good for the others for they captured individual highs for game and set of 166-406, respectively. Lee's 166 game was second high of the season. The HOLC boys rolled two near records, getting 668 and 1841 for game and set.

PETROLEUM

The Petroleum duckpinners rolled at Columbia with Freeburg, York, and Don Grist, Ott's Service Station, taking individual highs with 159-377. The Esso Extra boys again were the best on the drives, taking team game and set with 596-1,756 and staying in front with 21-6.

FARM CREDIT

The Farm Credit loop at Penn Recreation saw Moore, Personel, and Hein, Finance and Accounts, garner individual highs with 142-384 for game and set, respectively. Examination rolled high team game with 603, but Duplicating No. 1, helped by Gill's fine 359 set, got set with 1,691 to take all three from Personnel and stay in first place.

TAKOMA CHURCH

The Catholic No. 1 boys were the big shots in the Takoma Church League last night with Royle taking the individual laurels with his high game and set of 141-395, respectively, to lead his quintet to all the team highs with 579-1628. Catholic No. 1 leads with 16-5 followed by Catholic No. 2 with 14-7. Presbyterian is in third position with 11-10.

SANITARY

The Sanitary grocerymen rolled at Convention Hall with Billy LaBille rolling high individual pinfalls for game and set of 146-394, respectively. Cherub Milk had team game of 621 while Lucerne took the set with 1,737. Ed Hutchinson, Sanico Bakery, had near highs of 140-390.

EXECUTIVE

The Executive Office of the President duckpinners rolled at the Ice Palace with P. Brousseau, Budget No. 1, and Smith, OGR Duplicating, taking highs for game and set of 138 and 368, respectively. The OGR Duplicating five took high team game with 592 while National Resources ran off with the set with 1,641. Press Intelligence won all its games from Budget No. 3 to jump into first position while Budget No. 1 captured the odd game from Budget No. 3 to jump into first position while Budget No. 1 captured the odd game from the league-leading National Defense crew.

ICE PALACE LADIES

Pauline Ford, Doves, crashed out a high game for 118 in the Ice Palace Ladies League as Edna Vest, Racqueters, took the high set count of 317.

MERCHANTS

The Merchants League rolled at Convention Hall with Simpson, Carry Ice Cream, getting 149 for high individual game as C. Smith, Atlas Liquor, garnered set honors with 370. Valley Forge took team high game with a nice 600 as Washington Gas Light had pinfall of 1,695 to take high team set.

Minor Leagues Meet on Dec. 1

Durham, N. C., Nov. 4 (AP).—Veteran baseball men who have been advocating some sweeping changes in the game's legal code are invited to step up to the plate and hit a few when the minor league committee on revision swings into action.

President W. G. Bramham of the National Association has called the first meeting of the committee for December 1 at Atlanta, where the association will open its annual convention December 4. At that time the group will begin its study of the major-minor league agreement and rules and the National Association agreement.

Navy Scouts Report On Notre Dame Style

Officials Expect Middies to Give Good Account of Selves Saturday; No Serious Injuries Outstanding

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 4.—"After what Penn did to Navy Saturday, and the shock delivered to Notre Dame by an inspired Army team, the battle between Navy and Notre Dame should be a whole season of football action squeezed into 60 minutes."

This is the way Navy athletic officials summed up the situation as the Middy gridders settle down to another drive for the game with the Irish in Baltimore Stadium Saturday.

According to Navy scouts who saw Notre Dame against Army, and scouted them in other games this season, Elmer Layden's charges have an average passing attack and rely largely on outside running. Notre Dame goes in for single blocking in an effort to shake one of their speedy backs loose in the open. In this connection scouts paid due respect to the three triple-threat backs who are among the Rambler roster, namely, Saggau, Juzwik and Peipul. Combined or individually, these stars represent tremendous offensive power.

Army Surprised

Saturday Army surprised the Nation with its ability to apply full pressure against Notre Dame throughout 60 minutes, something few teams have ever been able to do. The Cadets played rugged ball all the way, putting inspiration and full speed into every play. Navy uses the two-team substitution system the same as Notre Dame. Both the Ramblers and Midides came out of their battles without injuries and barring practice mishaps this week, should be in their prime for Saturday's clash.

With one exception, every Navy player reported for practice this afternoon. The absentee was Cliff Lenz, big right halfoack, who suffered a leg injury, which, however, is reported as slight, and he will be ready for the Notre Dame engagement. Lenz has been handicapped by minor hurts since early in the season.

Four Regulars Back

Other good news came to the coaching staff today when it was learned that four others of the regular squad, who have been among the casualties, also will be ready for service. These include Johnny Harrell, hard-blocking quarterback, and Phil Burt, his understudy; Willis Maxson, regular right end, and Phil Gutting, a first-string back. Neither of them broke into the game against Penn.

A spot scrimmage session between the two main line teams, sans body contact work, and another scrimmage between third and fourth string combinations, employing Notre Dame formations, featured today's workout. Tomorrow's program calls for a short scrimmage for the regulars.

W. & L. Loses Both Centers By Injuries

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Va., Nov. 4.—Washington and Lee's Generals lost the services of both centers in the West Virginia game Saturday and today gave Steve Hanasik, veteran guard, a try at the pivot post.

Capt. Jack Mangan was hurt on the opening kickoff and Paul Skillman, his sophomore reserve, was injured late in the fourth period.

Richmond at Full Strength for Tarheels

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The University of Richmond's twice-beaten Spiders will be at full strength for the first time this season when North Carolina comes to town Saturday.

Both Lem Fitzgerald and Coxey Bowen, backs who missed the Hampden-Sydney game last week, returned to practice today. Gordon Remine, another injured back, is also back in uniform for the first time in a month.

Virginia Omits Monday Practice

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—The University of Virginia football team omitted its Monday practice session for the first time this season, but Coach Frank Murray lectured the squad on lapses in losing to Virginia Tech at Norfolk Saturday.

Capt. Lee McLaughlin, left tackle, and Harry McClaugherty, blocking back, who have been on the casualty list, are expected to be in good shape for the Commonwealth Day game against Washington and Lee this Saturday.

3 Regulars Miss V. M. I. Practice

Lexington, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Three regulars missed practice at Virginia Military Institute today as the Cadets began work for the trip to Washington U. at St. Louis.

They were Ray Reutt, who is still in the hospital recuperating from an attack of influenza; Bosh Pritchard, star back, who is being treated for a charley horse, and Joe Muha, sophomore back, who is being treated for a chest cold.

Mrs. Hopkins Golf Chairman At Washington C. C.

Mrs. S. C. Hopkins was elected chairman of the Washington Golf and Country Club women's golf committee yesterday in the annual meeting at the Virginia club.

Mrs. R. E. Hotze, this year's capable publicity chairman, was elected vice chairman, Mrs. John R. Hogan, treasurer, and Mrs. H. Ingman Harr, secretary.

Ringer prizes for the year were awarded, Class A going to Mrs. Wilda Martin with a 65, and Class B to Mrs. Lloyd Dennis, 72.

Mrs. Harr, winner of The Washington Post Trophy among the Class B players, and Mrs. A. C. Richmond tied in Class C with 78s.

McPhail Reported Seeking Pitcher Higbe of Phillies

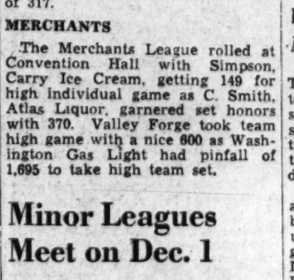
By George Kirksey
United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 4.—Baseball potpourri: Larry Macphail, who is now hunting at Sea Island, Ga., claims he's spent over half a million dollars for Brooklyn players in three years and adds that he's not going to stop until the Dodgers have won the pennant . . . the next big outlay Macphail makes will be for Kirby Higbe, the Phillies' ace . . . Gerry Nugent, Phillies' president, claims the club went something like $200,000 in the red the past season and that he has to sell one of his stars. . . . It was only a couple of years ago that Nugent hired Doc Prothro and announced that he was through selling his classy talent.

Those rumors about Ted Williams going to the White Sox for Pitcher John Rigney are pipedreams . . . Williams stays with the Red Sox . . . The only 1939 National League .306 hitter who increased his average last season was Pepper Martin . . . he added 19 points to his 1939 mark, boosting it to .316 and then wound up managing the Sacramento Coast League club . . . Cincinnati's pay roll last season was $39,423.26 more than in 1939 and promises to jump another $25,000 in 1941 . . . The Browns are banking heavily on Maurice Newlin, who won 23 and lost 8 for San Antonio and compiled a 1.98 earned run average, becoming a starting pitcher.

Phil Rizzuto, Yankees' rookie shortstop from Kansas City, gets sick at the sight of blood . . . Bucky Harris is supposed to have submitted the Cleveland Indians a proposition for a three-year contract which would net him about $30,000 a year, including a percentage of home attendance . . . that probably means Luke Sewell will be the next Indians' boss with a one-year contract at considerably less dough . . . The Tigers have a young rookie pitcher coming up named Harold Manners who's a cousin of Bob Feller's . . . if Joe Medwick's getting $20,000 next season wonder what Dixie Walker, who led the Dodgers in hitting with .308, will get.

The draft has a lot of ball players perplexed more ways than one. . . . Some of them have been wiring their ball clubs requesting their draft numbers. . . . Joe Cronin's plea for some workhorses for the Red Sox staff were heeded by Boston scouts who turned up Mike Ryba, who pitched 274 innings for Rochester; Oscar Judd, who pitched 298 innings for Sacramento, and Dick Newsome, who pitched 315 innings for San Diego. . . . Johnny Berardino, Browns' infielder, is an actor with the Community Players in Pasadena, Calif., during the winter. . . . His most recent role was in Damon Runyon's "Slight Case of Murder." . . . Oscar Vitt is said to have $100,000 salted away and not worrying whether he gets another baseball job.



LARRY MacPHAIL

Bill Brandt has uncovered the fact that the Reds' 41 one-run victories last season is a National League record. . . . The highest previous one-run victories was 37 by the Cubs in 1907. . . . Johnny Mize's 43 homers set a new all-time record for a St. Louis Cardinal, replacing Rogers Hornsby's 1922 total of 42. . . . Joe Schenck Victor in 2nd Straight Autumn 'Cap at Pimlico

Birch Rod Second to $23.10 Shot

Son of Insco Scores 5th Victory of Year; 38 Bettors Split Double of $377

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 4.—There are courses for horses, according to the old turf adage. Pimlico is the track for Joe Schenck. The 5-year-old sprinter, winner of the $2,500 added Baltimore Autumn Handicap last year, came right back today to win the same race. Beaten off in a distance event in his previous start, the son of Insco was the longshot of the small field today and he hung up a $23.10 mutuel after driving home a length and a half ahead of the nearest opposition.

George D. Widener's Birch Rod, coupled in the betting with Dr. Whinny, was second the same distance ahead of Howard Bruce's Jay Jay. Joseph E. Widener's Roman, heavily played favorite, defeated only one horse in the field of six while racing under the top weight of 123 pounds. Jockey Wayne Wright tried to keep him going but the colt simply was not there under the assignment.

$16,395 in Earnings

Joe Schenck earned $2,665 today to bring his earnings for the year to $16,395 and made it five victories in fifteen starts for 1940. His time of 1:12 3-5 was 2-5 of a second over his time of last year. Jockey R. L. Vedder did the riding on the winner.

Roman broke on top but was forced into second position early when Equistar forged to the front. The son of Equipoise opened a length and a half on Roman at the first turn. Dr. Whinny was racing in the first flight at this time with Joe Schenck fourth and on the outside.

On the swing to the stretch, Equistar continued to set the pace. It was evident that Roman was fading and Dr. Whinny was being pressed by Joe Schenck. The ultimate winner came wide entering the stretch. Dr. Whinny and Roman dropped out of it. The new Challengers were Joe Schenck and Birch Rod, the latter coming from last position.

Vedder Pressed

In the straightaway, Joe Schenck, placed to a hard drive, disposed of Equistar and drew out, but Vedder kept him to a hard drive to insure victory.

The daily double resulted in a $377.10 mutuel to 38 customers. Flaming High, owned by Bobby Curran, of Silver Spring, Md., won the first race, three lengths ahead of Count Morse. The favored Roar was third in the limit field of 12. Flaming High paid $26.20 in the 6-furlong sprint.

The finishing touch on the twin wager was the work of K. D. Kolseth's Swami, paying an individual mutuel of $32.50. He won by two and a half lengths from Cheer Me, with Challante third.

The day's steeplechase went to Mrs. William Roth's Don Roberto, capably handled by Jockey J. Brooks. S. Bryce Wing's Balk was second, with Charles D. Pierce's Frantz Wilhelm, third. The $50 fourth money was saved by East Liberty when Jockey W. Bland, after being thrown, remounted and finished within the time limit. Don Roberto paid $10 and won by five lengths after running head and head with Balk most of the way.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLAMING HIGH, $26.20, $10.20, $4.80; COUNT MORSE, $6.30, $3.60; ROAR, $2.80.

FLAMING HIGH, off alertly, forged to the front of ROAR approaching the stretch and drew out to win easily. COUNT MORSE was hard ridden on the inside and closed gamely, but was no match for the winner. ROAR was rushed to take command, drew clear and weakened gradually in the stretch run. PLAY GOLD made up some ground to show a good effort.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 1:47. Off at 1:47½. Winner, K. D. Kolseth's br. g. (3), by Display—Hindu Queen. Trained by K. D. Kolseth. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:48⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWAMI, $32.50, $10.40, $7.60; CHEER ME, $4.90, $3.40; CHALLANTE, $8.00.

SWAMI, in the first flight from the start on the outside, moved up approaching the stretch, bumped CHALLANTE and drew clear of CHEER ME to hold sway to the end. CHEER ME raced on the inside, set a good pace, but could not resist the winner. CHALLANTE moved up between SWAMI and CHEER ME approaching the stretch, was bumped by the former and came gamely along the rail after being snatched up. TALENT improved his position in the late stages to close willingly.

Daily double, FLAMING HIGH and SWAMI, paid $377.10

THIRD RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,000. Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:15. Off at 2:15. Winner, Mrs. William Roth's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DON ROBERTO, $10.00, $4.00, $3.00; BALK, $4.10, $3.30; FRANTZ WILHELM, $4.30.

DON ROBERTO alternated in setting and pressing the pace with BALK and drew out under a drive after fourteen jumps. BALK raced along with DON ROBERTO, but weakened in the closing stages. FRANTZ WILHELM was outrun throughout. EAST LIBERTY lost his rider while trailing at the twelfth, was remounted and finished within the time limit.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:46. Off at 2:46. Winner, E. M. Sturgis' b. g. (2), by Nassak—Selka. Trained by M. Hirsch. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:15.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IRRELEVANT, $3.40, $2.70, $2.40; LARGO MINT, $4.00, $3.50; RUNNING LIGHTS, $7.30.

IRRELEVANT took command in the opening furlong, drew clear and held away thereafter, winning easily. LARGO MINT was hard ridden from the start and held on gamely, but was no match for the winner. RUNNING LIGHTS came through on the inside entering the stretch to better his position, moved up boldly, but lacked racing room along the rail. TODDLE TOP, slow to begin, came to the outside and finished with good energy.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:17½. Winner, C. Oglebay's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OCEAN BLUE, $6.90, $4.00, $2.70; HY COP (entry), $2.80, $2.20; EARLY WARRIOR, $2.80.

OCEAN BLUE, steadied while closest to HY COP'S pace, came around the latter when asked and drew out to win easily. HY COP was first away, set the pace under hustling tactics, was no match for the winner, but closed willingly. EARLY WARRIOR dropped out of it early and closed with a bold rush between horses. WAR BUGLE raced evenly.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,500 added. The Baltimore Autumn Handicap. For all ages. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:44. Off at 3:46. Winner, Woolford Farm's b. h. (5), by Insco—Stitches. Trained by R. O. Higdon. Net value to winner, $2,665; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $125. Time, 1:12⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOE SCHENCK, $23.10, $8.70, $5.50; BIRCH ROD (entry), $4.50, $3.90; JAY JAY, $5.40.

JOE SCHENCK, not hurried in the early stages, improved his position gradually on the outside and disposed of EQUISTAR and held BIRCH ROD safe in the closing stages. BIRCH ROD was outrun early, swung out to improve his position and closed gamely under punishment. JAY JAY could not keep up with the early speed and closed with good energy. EQUISTAR set a strong pace and weakened when displaced. ROMAN had early speed and flattened out when placed to a drive.

SEVENTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:15. Off at 4:16. Winner, C. Putnam's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLYMELIOR, $20.20, $8.80, $7.50; WATER CRACKER, $16.50, $3.60; PRAIRIE DOG, $7.60.

POLYMELIOR worked his way to contention on the inside, came through between horses to improve his position and won going away. WATER CRACKER raced WISE BEE into defeat to take command and closed gamely, but could not resist the winner. PRAIRIE DOG came out for the final drive and closed resolutely. CLYDE TOLSON went evenly. BILL FARNSWORTH, in the thick of contention for the early part, flattened out badly in the stretch.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,300. Grade C. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:48. Winner, W. M. Jeffords' br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROLLO, $23.80, $6.80, $3.70; UP THE CREEK (entry), $2.70, $2.10; COUNTERPOISE, $3.50.

ROLLO, allowed to settle into his best stride, came out for racing room on the backstretch, went to the front with a bold rush and lasted under good handling. UP THE CREEK was rated early, came with good energy when placed to a drive and fought it out with good energy on the outside of the winner. COUNTERPOISE had speed in spots and was tiring at the end. REX FLAG and YALE O'NINE closed with rushes.

Selections at Pimlico

Dear Al:

George Tappen, assistant trainer to "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, was a very surprised man when he found out Bold Irishman, the colt he saddled in the Futurity, had won $33,830 last Saturday. Tappen thought the $15,000 added money was all that went to the winner. However, the mistake served to make his joy complete. "I thought Jockey Gilbert was making too much use of the colt when he took the front early but it seems the boy knew best. I didn't give Gilbert many instructions," said Tappen. "He had been riding the colt all season and the track was bad so I told him to use his own judgment. He did pretty good, too." Bold Irishman's dam was Erin, she is a daughter of Rosie O'Grady, abundant reason for the name. The colt goes in The Walden opposed to Whirlaway and others. However, Our Boots is not eligible. Apprentice Jockey Billie King got in. He is contract rider for the J. C. Ellis Stables and rode triples on three straight days in the West. A green wash is used on the steeplechase jumps here—vegetable matter that will not infect horses or jockeys in case of accident. Former Jockey Nick Huff, now agent for Eddie Arcaro, arrived. His son Jockey Nick Huff, jr., has inspired a cry of "get out of the rough with Huff" by riding longshot winners in the North. Who remembers when the theme song used to be "here we go on old Sun Beau?" A good horse but he missed at odds on several times around Maryland tracks. Jockey Jimmy Stout arrived and will pilot Foxbrough in the Riggs today. Don Meade got in and swung into action. Trainer J. P. Jones shipped in Level Best from New York. How about the fellow who parlayed Monday Lunch and Cherry Jam last week-end? Good idea that went wrong, at least half wrong. Those who had a daily double ending on Challante yesterday wondered why Jockey Bobby Merritt didn't claim a foul. I didn't have any interest in the horse but Swami gave him a good bumping entering the stretch, forcing Merritt to pull up and knocking him out of second money. Where were the stewards? Despite the fact that Merritt did not register complaint it was a case that needed action. The gray ambulance in the infield is placed there by the Jockey's Guild. It is on the job during training, schooling and racing hours. Might be a good idea to have it follow the jumpers around the course. See you on the rail.

Bill.

First race—Blue Linnet just missed when second to Unknown Land at Laurel. Stepping down a notch in class, she receives top figure. Silver Voice showed a fair effort this spring at Bowie and hails from a smart outfit. Machree rates a chance off New York form.

Second race—Stable appeared to be the winner of her recent New York outing, but faltered in the final furlongs to give up to Kurdistan. She may stick it out here. Wayriel didn't care for the off going last start and must be given another chance. Dark May won her last but best races have been on slow tracks.

Third race—Dundrillon, fourth to Broadside King last start, demonstrated enough speed to score at the expense of the cheaper grade jumpers he faces in this contest. Perfect Liar and Horner Wood finished in the order named behind Forest Charm and should find those positions today.

Fourth race—Son Altesse turned in a surprise performance to score over Iron Shot and Raise Up at Laurel, and provided he can repeat that performance he holds a slight edge. Vantage Point nosed out Predicate the last time they met, and should do it again.

Fifth race—Thorn Apple whipped O Play over this strip opening day and appears at her best. Colorado Ore has had tough breaks in recent races and should be able to show an improved performance in this small field. Raise Up had no excuse in her last, but appears best of the others.

Sixth race—Foxbrough, when second to Mioland in New York Saturday, finished six lengths in front of the laboring Hash. With the latter picking up an additional 4 pounds, Foxbrough looks hard to beat. Get Off is at his best and rates as a strong contender.

Seventh race—Early Morn bowed to Fleetborough at Empire in fast time, but she was a good winner in a Class C handicap in her previous start. Stout opposition is expected of Rifted Clouds as this filly has proven herself a top line performer in New York this fall. Beau James to beat the others.

Eighth race—Barbed Retort has been second in his last two trials over this route and though beaten by Alsang receives a 12-pound weight shift which should turn the tables. Alsang, hard to beat at this distance, may stop under his high impost. Orchid's Next was a good winner in New York and should not be overlooked.

Best bet—Blue Linnet.

Pro Game Postponed

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—The American Football League game scheduled for tomorrow between the New York Yankees and Boston Bears, today was postponed until Nov. 23 at the Yankee Stadium. Both teams played yesterday.

General Motors Votes Another $1 Dividend

Latest Declaration Makes Total for Year of $3.75

Directors of General Motors Corporation declared yesterday a dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, payable December 12 to holders of record November 14. Previous payments this year were $1 each in September and June and 75 cents in March.

Total disbursements for the year, including the latest declaration, are $3.75, against $3.50 paid in 1939.

The big automobile company has outstanding about 43,100,000 common shares. The stock is extensively held in Washington.

New Agency Head Named

Jack F. Crofoot has been appointed manager of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co.'s Washington office, according to an announcement released yesterday by J. Hobert Haviland, vice president in charge of agencies.

Mr. Crofoot was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1928. Previous to joining the Connecticut General's Philadelphia office in 1932, he was in the investment business. After several years' experience in personal solicitation and management work he was transferred to the company's Chicago office as assistant manager. In 1937 he was brought to the home office as agency assistant.

Mr. Crofoot will take the place of Armand Durant, who is resigning to devote his entire time to personal production for the company.

Institute Classes to Start

Classes of the Washington Chapter, American Savings and Loan Institute, will start tonight in the newly-selected headquarters at Benjamin Franklin University, according to William H. Rippard, faculty head.

Meanwhile a committee, headed by Clarence E. Kefauver, plans to form a board of regents for the institute and consolidate the various study groups. Other members of the committee are Wilfred H. Blanz, subchairman; Fred A. Smith, F. Willson Camp, William N. Payne, jr., Martin A. Cook, Carl H. Ellingson, Edward K. Jones, R. W. Santelmann, J. Fitzgerald, Robert E. Buckley, S. Schuyler Symons, Chapin Beauman, E. C. Baltz, E. J. Carlson, O. Hermann, E. L. McAleer, George M. Emmerich, and Howard S. Gott.

Week's Clearings Rise To $8,968,000,000

By the Associated Press

Check transactions rose last week in response to increased business, the Federal Reserve Board said yesterday.

In the seven days ended October 30, banks in 274 leading cities cashed $8,968,000,000 worth of checks, compared with $8,814,000,000 in the preceding week. Last week, however, was below the $9,488,000,000 of the corresponding week last year, because a year ago the week included November 1 with its usual large first-of-the-month transactions.

Boston Wool

Boston, Nov. 4 (AP). (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—The wool market in Boston was very quiet today. Actual trading in domestic wools was confined to occasional purchases by mills with Government orders. Trade calls were largely for fine and half-blood territory wools, and prices were steady compared with last week's close. A fair number of inquiries was being received on foreign wools of fine and half blood grades.

Buying Spurt In Final Hour Boosts Wheat

Preelection Doldrums Rule Until Sudden Closing Upsurge

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Preelection trading in the grain pits was slow today and price fluctuations were irregular until the final hour when a sudden spurt of buying lifted wheat quotations more than a cent a bushel.

The urge to even up trading accounts for the holiday and the electorate's decision dominated the market much of the time, accounting for quiet dealings early in the session and covering of previous short sales later. Some buying also was credited to mills and to merchandisers lifting hedges on grain sold to the Red Cross for shipment to Finland.

December wheat rose to 85⅝ during the final hour, up 1¾ cent from the previous close, and final prices ranged from gains of ¾ to 1⅝ cents, compared with Saturday's close, with December 85⅝@85½ and May 84¾@84½.

Low-Priced Utilities Lead Irregular Rally After Brief Dip; Election Stirs Caution

New York, Nov. 4.—The stock market attracted buying support today after a brief midday sellout in steels and other industrials had knocked down prices fractions to more than 2 points.

The list displayed mild rising inclinations at the start, then ran into a batch of offerings sufficient to bring the sharp drop. It was a short lived tumble, however. Active bidding in the final hour, with low-priced utilities all over the ticker tape, brought a close that was only moderately irregular, with gains and declines almost evenly split.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks managed to finish with a net advance of .01 of a point at 46, which compared with 44.8 a month ago. Of 853 individual issues traded, 329 were up, 324 down and 200 unchanged. Transfers amounted to 1,245,280 shares against 1,258,905 last Friday.

Many commission house customers were said to have lightened commitments in the forenoon pending tomorrow's national election, when the stock exchange will be closed along with other major financial markets.

Constructive business news was offset to some extent by further earnings statements which exemplified the effect mounting taxes were having on corporation net. War news again was in the background as a market motivator.

Among the day's encouraging items were: This week's steel mill operations were estimated up .3 of a point at 96 per cent of capacity, another new record on the present basis of compilation; General Motors directors, after the close, voted a dividend on the common of $1 a share, the same as paid in June and September, and sales of new automobiles were said to be holding at a high mark.

Although coming back from their lows of the day, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors and Chrysler ended under water. So did N. Y. Central, Kennecott, Anaconda, Dow Chemical, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft and North America.

Commonwealth & Southern was the liveliest performer, changing hands in blocks of as much as 13,100 shares at the same as Saturday's quotation of 1⅛. It ended up ⅛ at 1⅜. United Corporation was a close second in the utilities turnover without change in price.

On the upside were Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Pennsylvania, Westinghouse, American Can, Texas Corporation and Union Carbide.

Gulf Oil and Humble Oil edged forward in the Curb, in company of American Light & Traction, Cities Service, Pantepec and Phoenix Securities. On the offside were Bell Aircraft, Glen Alden Coal, Electric Bond & Share and American Gas. About 226,000 shares were dealt in here compared with 212,000 in the previous full session.

Bond prices fluctuated irregularly today in a quiet preelection market. Slight gains among some utilities were balanced by declines in a few rails. Industrials generally were steady. A few leaders in the foreign list improved.

Turnover was $5,162,900, face value, compared with $7,614,100 Friday.

United States Governments closed 7-32 point higher to 4-32 lower, with about half the Treasury list untraded.

Gainers among corporates included International Paper 5's at 103¼; International Telephone 5's at 25 1-8; Commercial Mackay 6's with warrants at 30½; Bethlehem Steel 3⅛'s at 107⅞; and Standard Oil of N. J. 2¾ at 104⅞. On the downside were Rock Island General 4's at 13¼; Western Union 5's of '51 at 74 1-8; Missouri-Kansas-Texas first 4's of '90 at 20⅜; and Nickle Plate 4½'s at 59¾.

In the foreign list, improvement was registered for issues of Buenos Aires Japan, Australia, Germany, France and Colombia.

Terms Revealed For Loft Merger With Pepsi-Cola

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—Stockholders of Loft Inc., would get one share of new stock of Pepsi-Cola Co. for each share held under details announced today for a merger proposal to be submitted to stockholders of the two concerns in special meetings at Wilmington, Del., November 22.

The incorporation certificate of Pepsi-Cola would be amended to increase the authorized capital stock from 300,000 to 2,000,000 shares. There are 1,461,559 Loft shares outstanding.

After the merger Pepsi-Cola would have 1,913,815 shares outstanding of which about 76 per cent would be held by Loft stockholders and the rest by Pepsi-Cola minority sockholders.

The major interest of Loft, Inc., consists of its Pepsi-Cola holdings.

Index Upturn Spurs Fear of Rise in Prices

Peril of Sharp Climb Seen in Wholesale Commodity Trend

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Nov. 5.—The rise in sensitive commodity prices since mid-August to the highest levels in more than a year has aroused again in many quarters the fear that, as has always happened in great wars, prices will get out of hand.

In two and a half months Moody's daily commodity index has moved up 15.2 points, or approximately 10½ per cent, and the index figure has achieved a level about 3 points under the high reached three weeks after the European war broke out.

The weekly index of wholesale prices of the Bureau of Labor Statistics has risen from an August low of 78.9 per cent of the 1926 average to 78.6 per cent on October 26, a rise of nearly 2¼ per cent. According to this index the wnoiesale price level is only 0.9 per cent under its September, 1939, peak. The Bureau of Labor index shows the following changes in its principal divisions since the low of last August 10:

	Aug. 10	Oct. 26
All Commodities	76.9	78.6
Farm products	65.2	67.0
Foods	69.3	70.8
Hides and leather	97.9	101.9
Textiles	71.8	73.6
Fuel	71.6	72.2
Metals	94.9	97.4
Chemicals	76.7	77.0
Building materials	92.8	95.0
House furnishings	90.0	90.0
Miscellaneous	78.7	77.0

The cost of living can be expected to reflect fairly promptly the firming tendency of foodstuffs, leather goods and textiles. Following the spirited rise in commodity prices in the first month of the war in Europe, the cost of living index advanced in one month from 84.5 to 85.9 per cent of the 1923 average. Since August, 1939, the cost of living index of the National Industrial Conference Board has risen nearly 2 percentage points, with much of the late hardening of prices yet to be reflected in the cost of living. The various items in the index have shown the following changes since the war broke out:

	Aug. 1939	Sept. 1940
Food	78.7	80.7
Housing	86.3	87.0
Clothing	74.9	78.1
Fuel and light	84.0	85.3
Sundries	96.9	97.9

Steel Production To Reach 86%, New High Level

New York, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Nation's steel mills, again stepping up production, will set a new high record this week when operating schedules are raised to 96 per cent of capacity, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

This represents an increase of .3 of 1 point from 95.7 per cent in the preceding week. A month ago output was 94.2 per cent and a year ago 92.5 per cent.

This week's raise is the sixth consecutive advance.

London Stocks

London, Nov. 4 (AP).—Demand expanded for all types of securities of investment caliber in the market today.

Buying was stimulated by prospect of the release of money acquired through the recent requisition of Canadian securities. Center of attraction in the investment group were British government bonds, which moved on outside of ¼ point.

In the foreign bond market a Greek 7 per cent loan rallied and Brazilian unsecured issues attracted a speculative following. Far Eastern issues tended downward. Most in favor in the industrial list were tobacco, brewery and selected electrical supply shares. Minor gains spotted the oil list. Dividend payers in the Kaffir group slanted upward and some nonproducers moved considerably ahead. Coppers were ignored.

300 Honor Heinie Miller At Testimonial

Although Col. Miller is leaving his varied duties in Washington, he won't find them missing when he returns.

"I know of no man with such an intense loyalty to whatever he is doing or to the things he serves as Col. Miller," Dr. H. C. (Curly) Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, where Col. Miller has been coaching boxing, said. "When he returns, and I hope it'll be in a month, he can have his job at the University of Maryland for life if he wants it."

Furthermore, he'll retain his duties as executive secretary of the National Boxing Association, which he headed last year as president.

To Retain Duties

"All those four years Heinie served with the N. B. A., I don't know of any fairer or more accurate ratings of fighters nationally than he turned out as chairman of the ratings committee. When he goes into active duty he'll retain his duties as executive secretary and for as long as he likes thereafter," James A. Blake, of Richmond, second vice president of the N. B. A., said. He presented Col. Miller with the N. B. A. past presidents' medal.

Going over Col. Miller's record in the District boxing world for the past decade, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, boxing commissioner and superintendent of the Metropolitan Police, said that Heinie's departure is a source of "keen regret" to himself, the Police Department and the District commission.

"Heinie has been a true servant of the people," Maj. Brown said. "I recall on that cold and wintry inaugural day in 1936 when the Police Department was so sorely pressed we called on Heinie's Fifth Battalion for help and he gave it to us in a big way.

"We all hate to see Heinie go, but we know he'll make just as good a record in the service as he has at everything he's undertaken here. Some of my men in the Police Department are going to serve under him, I'm the loser here, too, but I'm sure the record they'll make together will be a mark of distinction for the City of Washington."

Other distinguished speakers who had words of sincere praise for the 52-year-old colonel included James A. Blake, second vice president of the National Boxing Association; Maj. William B. Onley, U. S. M. C.; Commander Ellis Reed-Hill, United States Coast Guard; Maj. W. W. Stickney, of Col. Miller's staff; David A. Rochon, chairman of the Montreal Athletic Commission and candidate for mayor of Montreal, and Thomas P. Morgan, jr., boxing commissioner and chairman of the dinner.

They painted a picture of Miller's career from the time he fought as a lightweight in the Pacific fleet up to the date in 1929 when he founded the Fifth Battalion and on up to the present date when he volunteered for active duty and was accepted.

In the crowd which came to say farewell to Col. Miller were two fighting champions of the world, Petey Scalzo, featherweight king, and Ken Overlin, middleweight titleholder. The gathering also included the great and small from the sports world, civic and business leaders, lawyers and members of the press and radio.

G. W. High Out of Cellar In Class A

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 4.—By virtue of a 12-6 victory achieved at the expense of Lane High at Charlottesville on Saturday, George Washington High School pulled out of the cellar in the Virginia Class A Conference standings for the first time this season, according to the official standings released from league headquarters at Charlottesville today.

The Presidents advanced three notches, moving from fifteenth to twelfth place with a record of one victory and four defeats, and leaving the Lane eleven in last place.

John Marshall High School's powerful Justices, who haven't had their goal crossed in winning four consecutive conference engagements, continue to set the pace in the Old Dominion league, but Maury High School's Commodores are running a close second with five victories and one tie in six starts. The championship will in all probability be decided at Richmond on Friday afternoon, when these two teams clash in Virginia's scholastic game of the week."

George Washington will have one more opportunity to improve its conference record, when it entertains Hopewell High School here on November 15 in a floodlight contest at the G. W. Stadium. The Blue Devils' record shows one victory, one tie and three defeats.

Official Standings

All members who have suggestions or recommendations are invited to attend the committee meeting and present their views and for the benefit of those who cannot be there, the committee will accept written suggestions at any time.

Washington Boy Wins 2 Mercersburg Events

Special Dispatch to The Post

Mercersburg, Pa., Nov. 4.—William M. Grimes, jr., of Washington, D. C., won first place in the pole vault and broad jump events of the forty-eighth annual field day track meet at Mercersburg Academy. Grimes jumped 10 feet in the pole vault and leaped 20 feet 9½ inches.

Bucknell Co-Captains Bulwarks of Line

Texas Aggies Ranked at Top By Williamson

Cornell, Michigan Placed Second, Third In Weekly Grid Poll

liamson System fairly mopped up Friday when it called Wake Forest over George Washington, Marshall over Morris Harvey, St. Louis over University of Wichita, North Dakota State over South Dakota State, Texas Tech over Miamia, Fla., and others.

Then on Saturday the system called the turn on the big boys in such games as Boston College over Manhattan, Temple over Bucknell (although close), Oregon State over California, Oklahoma Aggies over Creighton, Dartmouth over Sewanne Tulsa over Detroit in a whale of a prediction, Duke over Georgia Tech, Duquense over Marquette, Fordham over North Carolina, Colgate over Holy Cross, Alabama over Kentucky, Michigan State over Kansas State.

Picked Penn to Win

More Saturday triumphs: Missouri over N. Y. U., Bradley over New Mexico State, Ohio State over Indiana, Nebraska over Oklahoma, Pennsylvania over Navy, Penn State over South Carolina, St. Anselm over New Hampshire, Georgetown over Syracuse (which helped a whole lot to prove up the Hoyas), S. M. U. over Texas, Arizona over Texas Mines, Stanford over U. C. L. A., Villanova over Kansas, V. P. I. over Virginia (a mighty good prediction), Drake over Washburn, Hardin-Simmons over West Texas State, West Virginia over Washington and Lee, Wisconsin over Illinois, Brown over Yale and Centenary over Washington of St. Louis.

We batted well in the minors too. We called among others, San Jose State over Loyola of Los Angeles, Peru over Hastings, Bowdoin over Bates, Case over Baldwin-Wallace, Cedar Falls over Morningside (which makes the sixth week the Iowa State Teachers have come through for us), Sam Houston over Commerce, Niagara over Detroit Tech, Presbyterian over Mercer (against most predictors), Buffalo over C. C. N. Y., St. Thomas of Minnesota over St. Olaf, and Slippery Rock over Thiel.

Missed Only a Few

Sure, we had some misses, but far fewer—relatively speaking—than in any previous week this season. Among those cock-eyed results were Louisiana College over Hattisburg, 7-0; Rollins over Appalachian (although called a toss-up beforehand), S. F. Houston over Louisiana Normal, 14-7 (the first defeat for Normal in a year and a half); Utah tying Colorado, 21-21; Centre stopping Davidson, 12-7; Tufts over Northeastern, Forum over North Carolina State, 20-6; Georgia over Auburn, 14-13, and West Virginia Wesleyan over Davis-Elkins.

Really surprising upsets were Coast Guard over Wesleyan, 27-7, and Cincinnati over Carnegie Tech, 7-6, despite being out first-downed, 20-1.

The Williamson System's record on 144 representative games was 83.3. On the leading 80 games of the week we had an average of 89 per cent.

Two Redskin Stars Return For Dodgers

of the field with Jimmy Johnston, Justice won out by about one step. Johnston and Dick Todd—the latter runs the 100-yard dash in 9.7 seconds—are Redskins' next best speedsters.

Return of Justice, Edwards, Farkas, Moore and Sanford to form is expected to greatly increase the Redskins' offensive power which already far exceeds that of any other team in the pro league.

Meanwhile, members of the Washington Football Writers Association yesterday voted Bob McChesney, former University of California at Los Angeles star end, now playing his fifth year with the Skins, as the outstanding player in Sunday's 37-10 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Won Out by 10-5

McChesney won out, 10-5, over Johnston. The veteran end played a good, all-around game Sunday and time after time was instrumental in tearing up Steeler interference so teammates could get to the ball carrier.

By their victory Sunday, the Redskins increased their offensive superiority in the National Football League no end. They lead the Western Division title-bound Bears 61 points in scoring.

In ground-gaining, the Redskins lead Green Bay, closest rival, by 205 yards with a total of 2,339. They lead the Packers 60 points in scoring. The Redskins' passing efficiency is 20 per cent ahead of the 1939 champion Packers. In fact, the Redskins are averaging two pass completions and 4 per cent better than existing league records and have completed 93 out of 204 aerials for an efficiency of 62 per cent. And still there are any number of characters who insist the Bears will stomp on the Redskins 12 days hence.

Duquesne Off Today On Its Longest Jaunt

Pittsburgh, Nov. 4 (AP).—A squad of 30 Duquesne gridders entrain tomorrow on the longest journey a Red and Blue eleven has ever undertaken—a transcontinental trip to play St. Mary's at San Francisco next Sunday. The Dukes plan after-breakfast workouts at Omaha, Neb., Wednesday and Ogden, Utah, Thursday. They'll arrive at Frisco Friday.

Arturo Godoy, Musto To Meet in New York

tale of the trekking of old Arkansas A. & M. College. They play here November 16 against dear old Hofstra.

The Boll Weevils, as they disarmingly call themselves, went from Monticello, Ark., to Alexandria, La., on September 16 to play Louisiana College. Next they moved on to Richmond, Ky., to meet Kentucky Teachers. By October 4 they were up at Hershey, Pa., for a night game against Lebanon Valley. From Pennsylvania they took a long breath and jump and landed in Denton, Tex., for the Texas Teachers game of October 12. Following week they met the University of Nevada at Reno. Then, on October 23, they tackled California State College at bizarre old Eureka, Calif. By Monday, October 28, they got to Rapid City, S. Dak., where in due time they met South Dakota Mines.

From South Dakota they dropped down to Monticello to play one of their two home games, this one against Hendrix College. Digging a toe in their starting blocks, they were off the next day for Philadelphia and St. Joseph's, where this dispatch finds them waiting to play an Armistice night game. Then Hofstra. They stop off at Springfield, Mo., on the way back to Arkansas for their great game against Northwest Mississippi College.

As regards Georgetown's preparations for the Maryland game Saturday, the Hoyas are expected to take few precautions other than setting a defense for Joe Murphy, the Terrapins' great little quarterback who was troublesome to the Hoyas last year. Murphy, ever a dangerous ball carrier because of his great speed and also a fine kicker and a good passer, won unanimous selection on the 1939 Georgetown All-Opponent team.

Hoyas Turn Out For Light Drill

Only a light practice was held at the Hilltop yesterday and many players were excused to recover from slight injuries received in the Syracuse game Saturday. Al Blozis, big Georgetown tackle who has been playing All-America football, is sporting a nifty shiner accrued from the elbow of Leo Canale, Syracuse fullback.

Georgetown will lose one player and regain the services of another for the Maryland game. Joe Mickey, junior guard and a product of St. John's Prep School here, has a bad ankle and is not expected to be ready until the Boston College game November 16. However, Al Kull, triple-threat sophomore halfback, has thrown off the effects of a similar ankle injury and will be again ready for action with the second-string Georgetown backfield.

C. U. Practices Until After Dark

Catholic University, with only three days to practice before leaving Wednesday night to tackle strong Tulsa in the Oklahoma eleven's stronghold, worked until after dark last night.

The Cards, beaten by Detroit and tied by St. Vincent, consider the Tulsa game their biggest chance to attain any national recognition this season. The Oilers boast successive victories over Texas Christian and Detroit. Their 7-0 conquest of the Titans Saturday spoiled Detroit's perfect record.

The C. U. squad will stop over in St. Louis for a workout Thursday afternoon before arriving in Tulsa Friday.

No injuries were reported from the Cards' 0-0 tie game with underrated St. Vincent Sunday.

Eddie Reich, energetic Catholic University publicity pounder, yesterday had a new method of booming "Pistol Pete" Sachon for All-American quarterback honors. Eddie rigged up a chart of Sachon's kicking and punting accomplishments and transformed it onto stationery which is embellished with a strip of pictures of Sachon passing, kicking, boxing and throwing the javelin.

From Reich's figures we learn that Sachon in five games has averaged 47 yards on 45 kicks good for 2,112 yards, and has completed 38 of 64 passes for 626 yards and an average of 9.8 yards per toss. Against St. Vincent we are told that Sachon kicked four times for distances of 75, 64, 53, and 42 yards respectively, and that he passed 15 times, completing five for 56 yards.

Bucknell Is G. W.'s Homecoming Foe

Little Bucknell, invading the District Saturday to provide homecoming opposition to George Washington, will carry an unsuccessful but not unimpressive record into battle. Though the Bisons have not won a game since they swamped Ursinus in their opener, neither have they been outclassed by such strong rivals as undefeated Penn State and Temple. Saturday Bucknell played its best game of the season in forcing Temple to kick a list-minute field goal for a 19-7 decision. To Penn State the Bisons lost only, 9-6.

One Bucknell player in particular will bear watching by District football fans. He is Walter Plewak, a guard and one of the finest little linemen you'll find anywhere. Weighing no more than 155 pounds, Plewak singlehanded wrought havoc with Georgetown's famed spread formation plays last year as he led Bucknell in a surprisingly fine stand against the mighty Hoyas who won, 13-6.

Plewak also made an impression upon George Washington Coach Bill Reinhart who scouted the Bisons against Temple. Other Bucknell players who starred against the Owls are Melvin Knupp, a fine all-around halfback and Fullback George Boner.

The Colonials will be at greater strength for Saturday's game than they have in three weeks. Ken Batson and Sam Babich both are expected to be fully recovered from injuries that handicapped the former against Wake Forest last week and held the latter out of the game completely. Henry Agusiewicz and John Kokoski, regular guards, and Johnny Picco, crack end, also should be back in shape, Reinhart said.

Wisconsin Invades Columbia Saturday

Madison, Wis., Nov. 4 (AP).—Victorious in their last two Western Conference starts, Wisconsin's football Badgers today began intensive preparation for Saturday's intersectional clash with Columbia at New York City.

The squad came through the Illinois game with only a few bumps and bruises and Coach Harry Stuhldreher said his team would face Columbia in the best physical shape of the season.

French Deny Nazis Will Get Possessions

Envoy Discounts Chance Of Early Intervention In Martinique by U. S.

The chances of early American intervention in Martinique were discounted yesterday by Gaston Henry-Haye, French Ambassador, after he had delivered a note from his governemnt to the State Department said to deny any intention of turning over French possessions and bases to the Germans.

While nothing was given out by the State Department concerning the note, either textually or by way of comment, Henry-Haye said later that he got the impression from his conversations with Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, and Under-secretary Sumner Welles, that "their reaction to the French note was satisfactory."

The French Ambassador previously had brought to the State Department personal assurance of the Vichy government's non-intention of knuckling under to the Germans so far as granting them bases for operation in the south of France in North Africa, West Africa or in the Western Hemisphere. His personal message was to bridge a rather long gap before the official answering of a note by President Roosevelt to Marshal Henri Petain, calling to the attention of the Vichy government that the United States would look with concern on any move toward a change in the sovereignty or control of the islands near the continental United States.

While reports came from Puerto Rico that two destroyers, a portion of the American Naval squadron which had been dispatched from Key West recently, had arrived off Martinique and were patrolling the entrance to the harbor of Port de France, the capital city, curiosity was further whetted by reports that two State Department officials were also there conferring with the French authorities.

The French Embassy here definitely appeared to be satisfied with the course of events and to be highly optimistic that there was no truth to persistent rumors lately which had the American marines practically landing and taking over Martinique.

The French Ambassador was asked to comment on a report that 75 per cent of the people of Martinique would like to see the United States take control of the island.

"I think it is a bit exaggerated," he said, smiling. "I know of no such sentiment in favor of exchanging the tri-color for the Stars and Stripes."

It has been learned that Vichy's complete and final instructions about the Martinique situation are being carried personally by a French officer, Gen. Benevita, who is shortly expected to reach Washington. Not even coded cables are entrusted with the instructions.

Shortly after the arrival of Gen. Benevita, Capt. Pierre Benech, French naval attache, will be sent to the island to carry out instructions.

In French circles also it was said that the larger part of the American naval patrol has not gone to Martinique but to Santa Lucia, one of the British islands in the Caribbean which figures in the bases-for-destroyers deal between this country and Great Britain.

1 Dead, 1 Shot; Man Jailed in West Virginia

Farmer Killed, Wife Seriously Wounded By Shotgun Blast

By the Associated Press

Union, W. Va., Nov. 4.—State Trooper C. E. Hawks said today that Walter Caldwell, about 41, had been placed in the Monroe County Jail here after the fatal shooting of Arnold Hoffman, 56-year-old farmer, and the wounding of Mrs Hoffman.

Mrs. Hoffman was in a hospital at Roncerte suffering from shotgun wounds. Physicians said her condition was serious.

Hawks said the shooting occurred yesterday along a road near Paint Bank, close to the West Virginia-Virginia State line. The trooper said the farmer and his wife were walking down the road, when Caldwell without saying anything fired at them with a shotgun.

The trooper said Caldwell did not leave the scene and was arrested upon Hawks' arrival. Caldwell did not offer any motive, Hawks said, other than he believed the Hoffmans had been "stealing things" from him. Hawks said Caldwell recently had been released from an institution at Staunton, Va.

No formal charge was placed immediately, pending further investigation, and no date was set for a hearing, Hawks said.

Butter Futures Rise To Seasonal Peaks

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP).—Butter futures on the Mercantile Exchange rose to new seasonal peaks on gains of about ¼ cent a pound.

Influenced by the strength in the cash butter market, light receipts and satisfactory demand for storage reserves, all futures contracts advanced to 29.45 cents a pound, December rising to the best level since 1937.

Cash prices weer up ½ cent a pound to new highs since February, the extras quality being traded at 30½ cents. The New York cash market also reported a ½-cent advance as new supplies were considerably short of a year ago.

Transit Head Named for Va. Draft Army

Cavan to Supervise Movement of 9,747 Men in First Year

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 4.—State selective service headquarters announced today the appointment of R. L. Cavan, district passenger agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway at Richmond, as chairman of its transportation committee in connection with preparations for the induction of Virginia's initial quota of 122 men into the peacetime draft army.

The headquarters staff also began the work today of apportioning the State's first year net quota of 9,747 men to the various local boards, a task that may require several days. The State's gross quota was 38,883 men, but the net figure made allowance for the more than 5,000 men in the Virginia National Guard and the estimated number of men who will have volunteered and have been accepted by the Army, Navy and Marine Corps between now and July 1, 1941.

The initial call for 122 men, so small that 37 of Virginia's 153 local boards were not included in its allocation, was passed on to the local draft officials today. Only seven boards were called upon for as many as two men and the other 109 for only one each.

Lieut. Col. Mills F. Neal, State selective service director, said later calls would make allowances for localities' contributions in manpower to the regular branches of the Nation's armed forces.

Named to the transportation committee with Cavan were J. W. Edwards, Richmond City passenger agent of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railway, and R. Vaughan Lloyd of the Seaboard Air Line, Frank H. Postpon of the Southern, C. A. Overton, jr., of the Norfolk & Western, and W. W. Robertson, of the Atlantic Coast Line, all district passenger agents at Richmond.

The committee will supply State headquarters with data on rail routings from various localities in the State to the three Virginia induction centers, Richmond, Roanoke, and Washington, D. C. The information then will be passed on to the local boards.

It also was announced today that the State Department of Health laboratory at Richmond would handle all blood test laboratory work required in connection with the examination of Virginia trainees. Supplies have been sent the local examining physicians.

Md. First Quota Is 157

Baltimore, Nov. 4. (AP).—Maryland's first draft quota will go into training between November 25 and 29 and the second will be inducted into service before Christmas. Third Corps Area headquarters said today.

The first quota includes 157 men; size of the second still is undetermined, but plans for the men to report between December 2 and December 15.

Officers said no draftees would be inducted between December 15 and January 3 because of the Christmas season. The second quota, they added, would depend on housing facilities available and various requirements of Army training centers.

The exact number of men to be furnished by each local draft board was held up pending information from Washington as to the number of Marylanders to be inducted in Washington. Lieut. S. W. Wilson, State quota director, said five southern Maryland counties would send men to Washington with the rest coming through Baltimore.

Farm Income In Md. May Hit 11-Year High

County Agent Head Sees Prosperous Year Ahead

By the Associated Press

The national defense program and "a general improvement in business conditions" will mean a "more prospersous year for Maryland farmers in 1941," Paul E. Nystrom, county agent leader of the University of Maryland extension service, said yesterday.

Nystrom said Government and other reports indicated "farm income, including Government payments, may be the largest, since 1929," and declared the "1941 outlook is for improved domestic demand for farm products, higher general average of prices, and larger total income from marketings."

Osetting some of this gain, however, will be ::increased costs of commodities and services used in farm production, such as higher wages, larger machinery costs, and increased costs of living."

Nystrom warned that after the period of "defense expenditures is over, there may come a tremendous let-down and depressed conditions such as we have not yet experienced."

He said he believed farmers "in the best position as to prices and income are those producing for the domestic market—producers of dairy and poultry products, wool, meats, and some fruits and vegetables. However, export demand for farm products is likely to be worse in 1941 than in 1940 because continental European markets are virtually closed. This will have an adverse effect on prices of such products as wheat, tobacco, canned goods and some fruits."

Hurt Football Player In Serious Condition

Woodstock, Va., Nov. 4 (AP).—Howard Childress, Massanitten Academy end who was injured in a football game here Saturday against Bullis Prep, was reported today to be in a serious condition in a Harrisonburg hospital with a brain injury. Childress is from Elizabethton, Tenn.

To Raymond Stoner and Marion Penrod Stoner, parents, and all other interested parties: Notice is hereby given that the petition of Paul Gerard Felix and Dorothy Bride Felix, of 9 New Brighton Road, Ben Avon Heights, Pa., for the adoption of Olive Stoner, a minor, was presented at No. 4809 of 1940, in the Orphans' Court of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, whereupon the Court issued a citation returnable DECEMBER 5, 1940 at 10 o'clock a. m., when all parties interested may appear and be heard.

JOHN M. HUSTON,
5.12.19 Clerk of the Orphans' Court.

FRED B. RHODES, Attorney,
314 National Press Building.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. William A. Strauch, et al., plaintiff, vs. J. Newton Brewer, trustee, et al., defendant. Equity No. 52995. Order limiting time for filing claims. This cause came on for further hearing October 28, 1940, pursuant to notices heretofore given and orders of adjournment heretofore taken herein, and it appearing to the Court that Edward F. Colladay and Enoch A. Chase, receivers herein, ceased to operate the Tenleytown Sale Apartments (North Section), located at 1028 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, Washington, D. C., on August 31, 1940, and are desirous of settling their accounts as receivers of the leasehold interest therein, it is by the Court this 1st day of November, 1940, ordered that all persons, firms and corporations, other than those whose rights have been adjudicated by orders heretofore entered herein, having claims against Edward F. Colladay and Enoch A. Chase, as receivers, or against the funds in their possession as such, shall file herein statements of such claims, under oath, which shall include the amount and nature of the claim, and serve a copy thereof on said receivers by delivery at the receivership office, ninth floor, 1331 G Street Northwest, on or before the 30TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1940; and claims so filed and served shall be for consideration and determination by the Court on the 5th day of December, 1940, at ten o'clock a. m., at a hearing hereby set therefor, or as may be then by the Court directed; otherwise such claims shall be forever barred from participation in the funds held by the receivers, and orders may be entered herein on and after said 5th day of December, 1940, for the disposition of funds in the hands of the receivers and discharging the receivers from all liability in respect of such claims; provided a copy of this order be published in the Washington Law Reporter, The Washington Post and the Evening Star once a week for three successive weeks before the said 30th day of November, 1940; and it is further expressly ordered, so that it may be included in said published notice, that holders of notes of Raymond G. Leeth, dated June 15, 1928, formerly secured by deed of trust on said leasehold interest, need not file claims nor take any other action pursuant to this order, except for any interest claimed to be due and unpaid on said notes prior to June 15, 1934. ? ? WOULD YOU ? ?
If you had a good income every week, if I were a good friend of yours, and if I were out of a job and had no income, and if you knew I could do the same kind of work you are doing and could also have a good income each week, would you tell me about your work and help me get the same connection as you have? I believe you would. Well, I have told several men about this work and they are now enjoying good incomes and are happy. I'll be glad to tell you about it and help you get started, at first during your spare evenings, then, after I am positive you can handle it successfully, on a full-time basis. If you are married, 25 to 50 years old, willing to do any kind of honest sales work that you are capable of doing, see me at 5 o'clock sharp, Tuesday evening at Suite 205, Denrike Bldg., Vermont ave. and K st. nw.

SUPERMAN — Lois Plan — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

LOIS...CARRYING OUT BENTON'S ORDERS!
INSTINCT CAUSES SUPERMAN TO TRAIN HIS TELESCOPIC X-RAY VISION ON THE DISTANT DREXMORE MANSION...
TOWARD THE MANSION LEAPS SUPERMAN AT TOP SPEED...
I CAN'T UNDERSTAND HOW LOIS COULD HAVE BECOME INVOLVED IN GEORGE BENTON'S SCHEMES! HERE'S WHERE I FIND OUT!
WHAT SUPERMAN HAD SIGHTED...
OKAY PER US TO ENTER NOW?
YES-AS YOU CAN SEE, I'VE DRUGGED EVERYONE!
NICE WORK, LANE! LEAD US TO THE VAULT-SAFE!
WHAT-!?! THE COMBINATION DON'T WORK!
IF YOU'VE DOUBLE-CROSSED US....
KEEP YOUR HANDS RAISED! I GAVE BENTON A FALSE COMBINATION WITH THE EXPRESS PURPOSE OF CATCHING YOU RED-HANDED!

MR. AND MRS. — One Of Her Many Trials — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

THINK I'LL GET A HAIRCUT TODAY
IF YOU DO, DON'T LET THEM CUT IT SO CLOSE
THEY ALWAYS CUT YOUR HAIR TOO SHORT AROUND THE EARS. TELL THEM NOT TO USE THE CLIPPERS
UH-HUH
I'LL JUST HAVE IT TRIMMED. STRAY ENDS OFF WITH THE SCISSORS, THAT'S ALL
I WISH I COULD GO WITH YOU (THAT EVENING)
WELL, HOW DOES IT LOOK?
OH—WHAT IS THE USE?

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — Dead Men Tell No Tales — BY MONTE BARRETT AND RUSSELL ROSS

BY GOLLY, I'LL BET NAPOLEON'S POINTING A COVEY OF QUAIL! I'LL CRAWL THROUGH THE FENCE AND SNEAK UP ON THEM.
HELP, NAPOLEON! I'M STUCK!
I'M PUTTING ON THE STOLEN NUMBERS— THEY'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO TRACE US— BUT I STILL THINK A GUN OR KNIFE WOULD BE SURER!
NO— I WANT IT TO LOOK LIKE AN ACCIDENT!
REMEMBER— AS HE APPROACHES THE CORNER, SIGNAL ME BY TAKING OFF YOUR HAT— YOU KNOW THE REST—
OH, WE CAN'T MISS, TERPO!
HE LIVES IN THIS BLOCK— HERE'S THE CORNER WHERE HE CROSSES—
EXCELLENT— I'LL COME FULL SPEED, WHEN YOU GIVE ME THE SIGNAL—

The Post Radio Time Table

THE ELECTION RETURNS will take over every radio station in the land. First reports will be from New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Denver and San Francisco over WMAL at 1:45 p. m. From 6 on the stations will loosen up as the early reports trickle in.

This column suggests setting the dial to WJSV, on which reports will be heard from The Post city room during the course of the evening in regard to the results in nearby Maryland and Virginia. Robert C. Albright, William V. Nessley and Joseph Mathias will be among The Post staff writers heard. This barrage may be expected from 9 through the finish, from which hour WJSV has canceled all of its commercial bookings, planning to relieve the bare stretches with studio music. Speaking for the Columbia network will be Albert Warner, interpreting Senatorial, Congressional and Gubernatorial contests; Bob Trout, tallying up the latest returns, and Elmer Davis, discussing the Presidential race as it reaches its climax.

OTHER THINGS (believe it, or not):

9:15 a. m., WRC—The Boyd triplets, Lena, Mildred and Edith Boyd, daughters of the Panamanian minister to the United States, sing a group of Latin-American numbers for Mary Mason.

8:30 p. m., WJSV—Remember when elections in Mexico used to bring forth headlines like this: "Elections Quiet in Mexico; 25 Killed?" Anyway, the First Nighters have a play called "See Mexico and Die!"

8:30, WMAL—It's a reunion for the Information Please quartet which has been heard most often: John Kieran, F. P. A., Oscar Levant and Christopher Morley.

9, WRC—Cliff Nazarro, Walter Abel, Denis O'Keefe and Dick Purcell join Pat Morison, Lillian Cornell and Ellen Drew for the Battle of the Sexes.

Listen! with Glynn

Tonight will tell the story about which all of us have been wondering these past few months. And it's probable that, if you stay up late enough, which you probably will, you'll be able to hear the closing lines of that story from the lips of the successful candidates themselves.

For, in addition to its elaborate plans for collecting the election returns and broadcasting nothing else from 9 p. m. on, radio—specifically CBS and its Washington component, WJSV—will have representatives and equipment at the national headquarters of the opposing parties as well as at the homes of the major candidates who will not be at those headquarters.

For the residents of Washington and its vicinity, interested in the returns from nearby Maryland and Virginia as well as the national results, WJSV representatives will be on hand through the night in the busy city room of The Washington Post to bring you figures as they've been collected by Post correspondents in all nearby communities. From the city room, too, from time to time, Post political experts, William Nessley and Joseph Mathias, will get before the microphone to give you their interpretation of what these figures mean.

Azana, Head Of Spanish Republic, Dies

Former President Had Been in Exile In Southern France

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, Nov. 4.—Manuel Azana, President of the Spanish Republic during the Spanish civil war, died early today at Montauban, in southern France.

He was 60 years old.

Azana became President in May, 1936, only about two months before the insurrection of Generalissimo Francisco Franco which overthrew the republic after nearly three years of war.

His role in the war was minor, so far as the public was concerned. Forced to flee from Madrid with the government in November, 1934, by Franco's nearby armies, Azana went to Barcelona and from there traveled about the republic's steadily dwindling territory for cabinet meetings.

At the end, after the republic had asked Great Britain and France to negotiate peace terms with Franco on the sole basis of clemency, Azana resigned as President and urged his followers to yield.

By then, Franco's armies had swept northward through Catalonia to the French border and Azana was in exile at Collognes-sous-Saleve, France.

Love Loses To Career

Montgomery Denies Permit For Rezoning

Neighbors Opposed To Change at Pine St. And Saratoga Ave.

Vigorously opposed by adjacent property owners, rezoning of property at Saratoga Avenue and Pine Street, Silver Spring, Md., from residential to commercial was refused yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners.

The property is across Pine Street from a commercial development along Saratoga Avenue, which also was attacked by the citizens of the neighborhood but was granted by the previous board of county commissioners.

In refusing to rezone the property, the county commissioners held that the area has enough commercial zoning, a considerable portion of which is still undeveloped.

The Fusion commissioners, who were in office at the time, also granted the rezoning of the property refused yesterday, but the County Circuit Court set aside the zoning on the grounds that a quorum of the board was not present at the hearing.

A second hearing on the petition for rezoning was held before the present board of county commissioners and was attended by an overflow crowd of nearby residents who contended the rezoning was unnecessary and that buildings now constructed were not occupied.

The fight against the rezoning was led by President Stewart D. Lashley, of the Sligo Hills Citizens Association, and a special citizens committee headed by Gerald Ryan.

Lashley expressed appreciation of the action of the county commissioners. The meeting of his association, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed because of the election.

Nadia Boulanger Conducts Here Nov. 14

Nadia Boulanger, eminent French conductor and composer, will conduct the Washington Choral Society in Gabriel Faure's "Requiem" on Thursday evening, November 14, in Washington Cathedral. The program includes the society's second performance of Bach's "Magnificat," under direction of Louis A. Potter.

Dr. Boulanger sailed for this country October 23, her departure having been delayed by the Italian attack on Greece, which necessitated a change in the port of embarkation. She is expected to arrive here late this week in time for the final rehearsals. Her previous appearances here have been at the Library of Congress and as guest conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Aero Contest Nears Its End; Here Are Last Five Questions

Five Men or Women Who Answer 75 Most Capably Will Be Eligible For Ground School, 8 Hours of Flight

With the accompanying set of five aeronautical questions, the Aero Contest sponsored by The Post, arthur Godfrey, the Aero Club of Washington, Columbus University Junior College and Beacon Airport, nears its end.

Fifteen sets of five questions each have now been published in The Post and broadcast by Arthur Godfrey over WJSV. The five persons, men or women, who in the opinion of the contest's three judges answer the total of 75 questions most capably, will be eligible for a ground school course and eight hours of dual flight instruction. Winners will be required to undergo, at their own expense, the physical examination required for pilots' licenses by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and, should they fail to pass, must give way to the next in rank.

All answers to all questions must be in the hands of The Post's Aero Contest Editor by midnight Thursday. Winners will be announced in The Post and by Arthur Godfrey Saturday morning. They will be guests at the annual dance of the Aero Club of Washington at the Raleigh Hotel the night of Armistice Day, November 11.

Today's Contest Questions

(Series No. 15.)

1. In what order must aircraft give way?
2. How many lights must an airplane display for night flying, and where are they placed?
3. What is an isobar?
4. What is a "Great Circle" course?
5. Give the aeronautical significance of the following dates and specify the years in which they became significant: December 17; January 1; May 20-21.

It isn't the number of years you have a suit that tells its age. Not by a long shot. It's telltale "SHINE" and "WEAR" on the trouser seat, elbow and coat cuff. What to do about it? That's easy. Wear one of these famous Wearlong Worsted 2-Trouser suits. The exclusive "chain-weave" does away with the bugaboo of old-age "shine." And your suit goes merrily on its way to a life of longer wear and a smarter appearance.

Now add in the second pair of trousers and the figure-flattering British Lounge model. It's a suit that will win on any platform.
